Mr. Stanley Tells His Own Story of His Herald Mission Into Africa.

THE FINDING OF LIVINGSTONE

Just Tribute to the Correspondent and Hearty Recognition of the Herald Enterprise.

PARIS, August 1, 1872.

Henry M. Stanley, correspondent of the NEW YORK HERALD is to-day the lion of the great city of Paris. Fresh from the jungles and swamps and marshes of Central Africa, that strange and mysterious country, as full of danger and wild and fanciful romance as any fabled land of antiquity; fresh from combats with its savage inhabitants, its lions and tigers, and its equally savage human beasts; but, above all, fresh from the society of the far-famed Dr. Livingstone, so oft reported dead, so oft resuscitated, and killed over again; bringing news from him, messages from him, letters written by his own hand—he is sought for, honored, fêted, talked about in a way that will turn his head if he has a head capable of being turned. It is no easy thing to get the London and Paris worlds talking about you for days, but that is what Stanley has accomplished, much to his own surprise, too, apparently. He has been in Paris now about a week, and during the whole of that time he has had scarcely a moment's rest. All sorts of people call and ask to be presented to him. He is overwhelmed with invitations, a tithe of which he would not be able to accept were he to remain here a year. He is interrupted by newspaper reporters, importuned by correspondents of the pictorials for sketches and scenes from his travels, and generally lionized to an extent that has astonished him beyond measure. For the poor man did not know he had done anything so extraordinary until he got out of the wilds of Africa and found that the whole civilized world was ringing with his exploits.

THE FRENCH PAPERS are full of gossip concerning him; and, as usual, when talking about anything or anybody not of their own country, make all sorts of funny and amusing mistakes.

The Soir, for instance, announced the arrival of the discoverer of Dr. Livingstone in Paris as Lord Stanley, son of the great Lord Derby, who, at the instigation of the NEW YORK HERALD, "notre confrère fameux," nobly undertook to find the great traveller, and, finally, after unheard-of difficulties succeeded, to which were added many details and particulars of an equally reliable and astonishing nature. The Figaro came out next day and declared the whole thing to be a canard of the most stupendous proportions. It declared that Lord Stanley being the son of the late Lord Derby, now deceased, had succeeded to his father's name and title; that consequently there was no Lord Stanley, and therefore the whole story as well as the report of the discovery of Dr. Livingstone was an immense hoax. The Figaro has itself mentioned so many canards that its faith in the capacity of other papers to manufacture sensational news is unbounded, and its credulity was therefore wofully imposed on, as it soon found out. The next day the Gaulois and the République Française came out in long articles, poked fun at the Figaro and the Soir, showed up their absurd mistakes, made some of their own almost as bad, and gave, respectively, a glowing account of the expedition, in which the courage and energy of Mr. Stanley and the enterprise of Mr. James Gordon Bennett, notre illustrieux confrère, were extolled to the skies.

STANLEY'S MARCH TO UJIJI.

Stanley suddenly finds himself a great man; nor the carping criticism of the London Spectator, that hopes no great good from the expedition; nor the absurd doubts of the Standard will prevent all honor being accorded him or detract one iota from his meed of glory. And Stanley merits it all. That march of a thousand miles through the jungles and swamps and marshes of Southern Africa, over mountains that had never yet been scaled by any white man who had ever come back to tell the tale, through forests dense and dark, and dank with the heavy vegetation of a tropical clime; inhabited only by savages, wild beasts, venomous insects and monster serpents, and the still more ferocious cannibal negro; crossing rivers whose swift-rushing currents made it almost impossible to pass them; wading for hours, for miles and miles through swamps and marshes, rank with their dark, slimy vegetation, waist deep with the green, filthy, stagnant, stinking water that poisoned the very air. Again, across arid, thirsty, burning plains and deserts, right under the equator, where the sun pours down his burning rays, withering up every living thing with his fiery eye; making his own roads, finding his own provisions, fighting his own battles; now making war with his little army against some hostile chief who refuses to let him pass, now employing all the arts and seductions of an old and experienced diplomat to accomplish his purpose; again quelling a mutiny among his own men; fording rivers, scaling mountains, passing defiles, threading narrow forest paths, dark with the luxurious vegetation and beset with danger at every step; but, worst of all, struggling in the continual, unceasing grasp of an enemy more deadly than the coils of the slimy boa constrictor, more ruthless than the fangs of the African tiger, more fatal than the poisoned shafts of the cannibal negroes—an enemy that racks the bones and dries up the blood and crazes the brain with his fiery breath, and reduces in a few hours a hale, hearty man to a mere "ruckle of bones"—the terrible swamp fever of Central Africa. This malaria, this miasm of the marshes, is something dreadful. It rises from the putrid, stinking, filthy water, rife with the seeds of death, and hangs over the country in the form of a dense, but invisible, fog, thickening and poisoning the atmosphere like the plague and rendering life impossible to any but the strongest animal organization. One can understand the success of such an expedition when undertaken in a country where this enemy has not to be met. With good health, a sound body and a clear head insured to him, anybody might carry it to a successful conclusion. But far different is it when laboring under the continual attacks of this insidious enemy, with the frame reduced to a mere skeleton, the blood boiling with fever, the brain in a whirl, delirium with all its horrors ever threatening, and to preserve through it all sufficient energy to command 140 wild negroes and Arabs, to keep them in subjection, to crush every attempt at mutiny, to keep on the march through days and weeks and months of sickness and fatigue—then is the wonderful part of the story. And then to have found Livingstone. To have undertaken a project in which the Royal Geographical Society of London, backed by the ready purses of the whole English nation, had failed; that the mighty English government had pronounced impossible; for a simple newspaper reporter to carry it out to a successful conclusion, while the government and the Royal Geographical Society and the whole English nation were talking about it, is it not worthy of all praise? And will it not rank with Kane's expedition to the North Arctic regions, Bonaparte's passage of the Alps, Hannibal's march upon Rome, Sherman's march to the sea?

HIS BREAKFAST WITH WASHBURNE AND TALK WITH GENERAL SHERMAN.

The day after his arrival he was invited to breakfast by Mr. Washburne, and found a small but select company assembled to meet and welcome him, among whom was General Sherman. The General, without ever suspecting that they had met before, was delighted at the opportunity thus offered of talking to a man who had been the leader of one of the most remarkable search expeditions ever undertaken, and they were soon engaged in an animated conversation relating to the interior of Africa. Sherman was interested in every detail given by Mr. Stanley, followed with a breathless interest every incident and every phase of the interesting story and became as absorbed in this romantic history as though it had been a new and brilliant campaign of which he then for the first time was learning the details. Their heads together, leaning over the maps, Stanley pointed out to him his course from Zanzibar, explaining as he went along the nature of the country and the peculiarities of the vegetation, the curiosities of the animal kingdom, the courses of the rivers, the means employed to cross them, the disposition of the natives, their costumes, manner of warfare, types to be seen among them, their villages, how he paid his passage through some, fought his way through others, stole through others again at dead of night like a robber; how he made war on one chief without success, what detours he was obliged to make to get around the country occupied by him, how he came upon other tribes that were at war and was again and again obliged to go back and go around to the right and the left and wind about in all conceivable directions through swamps, jungles and marshes; the death of the two white men with him, his hours and days of fever and delirium, when the world seemed to whirl around his throbbing brain as around an axis, and negroes, Arabs, donkeys and trees and forests appeared to his feverish vision as one jumbled, undistinguishable mass of objects, without consistency or reason; the mutiny of some of his men, the treachery of others, the long night watches, when he could trust to nothing for his safety but his trusty revolver, until at last, after five months of weary marching under a tropical sun, he arrived within sight of Ujiji worn out, broken down, discouraged, without having found the least trace of the man he was looking for. The sudden intelligence that he was in the same village with Livingstone, the meeting and formal introduction and bows, the stream of conversation, of questions and answers, broken by exclamations that followed once the flood gates were opened; the meals taken on the veranda of Livingstone's house, with thousands of wondering natives gathered around, looking on in astonishment at the second white man they had ever beheld. All this interspersed personal adventure and explanations upon the map, commentaries and questions on the part of the keen-eyed old hero, and related by the principal actor in it, formed a story and a scene rarely equalled in interest even by the most sensational romances of Charles Reade or Wilkie Collins. Then, with Stanley's great maps before us, we explored the shores of the Lake Tanganyika; we sailed past the "NEW YORK HERALD Islets;" we ascended the famous Chambesi; settled forever the problem of its direction; visited Lake Lincoln, and thought it was meet and just that the man who gave his life for the freedom of the Africans should here in Central Africa, at the sources of the grand old Nile, have his memory embalmed and his name made immortal as the old river itself, in being borne by one of the springs that supply its waters. It was interesting and curious to watch the old hero and the young in conversation—the one with his sharp, keen eye and quick, appreciative mind, grasping details, foreseeing events and often eagerly anticipating the story and hurrying on to the point where the whole interest is concentrated; the other, with his dark, resolute eye, somehow reminding one of General Sheridan, and his tawny complexion and quiet voice, calmly telling his story, both leaning over the map on which Stanley had traced all his sinuous wanderings.

"It is a great thing," said Mr. Washburne. "I only know of one other great expedition brought to so successful a termination."

"What is that?" asked Sherman.

"That is Sherman's March to the Sea," replied Mr. Washburne.

"That was nothing to this," said Sherman; "it was easy in comparison to this march to the centre of Africa and back."

"It is your modesty makes you say so, General," remarked Stanley. "By the way, do you remember ever meeting me before?"

"No," replied Sherman.

Whereupon Stanley commenced and repeated a speech of some minutes in length, a speech evidently meant for the red men, for it was full of high-flown metaphors and contained references to "fire water," "the Great Spirit," "our brother," the "pale face," "our Father in Washington" and a variety of other subjects in which the Indian is supposed to be particularly interested.

"Why, that's a speech I made some years ago to the Sioux Indians while out on the Plains. Were you there?"

"I was there," replied Stanley, "reporting it for the HERALD, and, to tell you the truth, I have had occasion to repeat your speech, almost verbatim, more than once to the negroes of Central Africa."

"Well," said Sherman, "I would never have recognized you, and certainly never expected to see in that HERALD reporter the future discoverer of Dr. Livingstone."

Some people have said that General Sherman is crazy. If he has any weakness in that way it must be, like Moltke, on the subject of maps. A bit of paper, covered over with marks representing mountains and rivers, and roads and woods, and land and water, possesses for him untold attractions. One scarcely ever meets him now without a map in his hand, and I have no doubt that he finds more pleasure in contemplating one than he would in a Rubens or a Raphael. The latter are good enough in their way, but give him for real beauty a map of the world large enough to cover the wall of his room. As a matter of course, then, he asked Stanley for a map, and as a matter of course Stanley was only too happy to give him a copy of one he and Livingstone had made themselves while in the wilds of Central Africa, and they separated with mutual expressions of satisfaction and good will.

THE STANLEY BANQUET.

For some days preparations were being made by the prominent Americans here, principal among whom was Mr. Washburne, to give Mr. Stanley a dinner such as would have gladdened his heart could he have eaten it in the wilds of Africa, and three days ago he accordingly received the following letter:—

THE AMERICANS' INVITATION.

PARIS, July 29, 1872.

HENRY M. STANLEY, ESQ.:—

SIR—The undersigned, your American fellow citizens, temporarily sojourning in Paris, have heard with great pleasure of your safe arrival in this city, after the accomplishment of an object which has challenged the deepest interest throughout the civilized world.

In order to testify our high appreciation of the indomitable courage, energy and perseverance which crowned with such brilliant success your efforts to find Dr. Livingstone, as well as to express our sense of the enterprise and liberality of the NEW YORK HERALD in sending you forth on such an extraordinary mission, we beg of you to afford us the pleasure of meeting you at a dinner to be given at such a time as will best suit your convenience. STANLEY'S REPLY.

To which Mr. Stanley replied as follows:—

HOTEL DU HELDER, PARIS, July 30, 1872.

GENTLEMEN—I have received your letter of this date, asking me to accept the compliment of a dinner from my compatriots and friends now resident in Paris, to be given in acknowledgment of the "enterprise and liberality of the NEW YORK HERALD" in sending out an expedition in search of Dr. Livingstone, as well as of the extraordinary good fortune and perfect success which, under Providence, attended the footsteps of the expedition I had the honor to command. Gentlemen, believe me, I am deeply conscious of the great honor you would do me, and through me not only to the journal I have the pleasure of serving, but to the patient, resolute, brave and Christian gentleman whom I left in Central Africa. I therefore gladly accept your invitation, and shall be pleased to meet you July 31 at any house or place that may be deemed most convenient. I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your obedient and humble servant,

HENRY M. STANLEY.

To His Excellency E. B. WASHBURNE, Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States of America, and many others.

THE BANQUET.

The Hotel Chatum was fixed on as the place of meeting and eight o'clock the hour. The dining hall, which is on the ground floor of the hotel, was ornamented in the most beautiful manner by a perfect forest of flowers, which, as seen through the glass walls of the hall, on the side next the court, presented a most fairy-like and enchanting appearance. At least so seemed to think a large and respectable crowd that gathered in the court of the hotel and watched the proceedings through the glass doors and listened to all the speeches with untiring vigilance during the whole evening. There were nearly one hundred gentlemen present, the most prominent of whom were His Excellency Mr. Washburne, Mr. W. Vesey, United States Consul at Nice; General Love, of Indiana; General Kiddoo, Mr. Young, late proprietor of the Albion; Mr. William Bowles, Mr. John Russell Young, Rev. Dr. Hitchcock, Colonel Moore, W. J. Florence, the comedian; Mr. Home, &c., &c. After grace had been said by the Rev. Dr. Hitchcock, who made some feeling allusions to the trials through which their guest had passed, the Chairman, Mr. Washburne, rose and addressed the company as follows:—

MR WASHBURNE'S SPEECH.

FELLOW COUNTRYMEN AND FRIENDS—Some three years ago our distinguished guest, Mr. Henry M. Stanley, who was then, as now, the correspondent of the NEW YORK HERALD, was in Europe. He was then, as now, a young man, who had been schooled in the best fields of newspaper enterprise, not only in our own country, but in another hemisphere. He had been on the press in New York city, and in the West, in Chicago and in St. Louis, and most likely in Galena. (Laughter.) He had been a war correspondent at home, and had been with Grant, and Sherman, and Halleck, and Terry. He had also been a war correspondent abroad, and had followed the Abyssinian expedition, and won fresh laurels by his activity, enterprise and intelligence. The managing editor of the HERALD, Mr. James Gordon Bennett, Jr.—(applause)—was in Paris at that time. A great English traveller and explorer had disappeared in the wilds of Africa, and the curiosity of mankind was excited to know what fate had befallen him. Nothing definite could be found out in regard to him. All efforts failed. With the enterprising genius which belongs to an American journalist Mr. Bennett conceived the idea of sending, at his own expense, Mr. Stanley, single handed and alone, to find Dr. Livingstone, the long-lost traveller. (Cheers.) Our guest was sent for to come hastily to Paris from Spain, and he met Mr. Bennett in his room at his hotel after he had retired for the night. A conversation of five minutes completed the business, and the journalist summed up his instructions to his correspondent about this way:—"You shall have an unlimited credit; find Livingstone." That brief and sententious and effective speech reminds us of what took place between Grant and Sheridan in the Valley of the Shenandoah. After Sheridan had explained his plans his chief only answered, "Go in, Sheridan," and Sheridan did "go in," and Stanley went "in." It also brings to mind the incident that took place between our great American traveller of his time, John Ledyard, and some eminent English geographer of that period. He had heard of Ledyard, who was then in London, and sent for him to come and talk about some great exploration, and concluding that Ledyard was the man he wanted asked him when he would be ready to start. "To-morrow morning" was the emphatic reply of the great traveller. Our friend here loses no time in entering upon and completing his work, and when accomplished he does not have to make the same return that the Mississippi sheriff made to a writ against a debtor who had run off into a swamp—non comatibus in swampo. (Great laughter.) We soon find him at Zanzibar, on the coast of Africa, organizing his expedition. From there he crosses over to Bagomoyo and then heads for Unyamyembe, a little pleasure trip of some three months, I believe. This long march had been terrible, and had brought with it sickness, discouragement and demoralization. But it was always "On Stanley, on"—(laughter)—and with unsubdued courage. It could truly be said of our guest at this time—

No danger daunted
And no labors tired.

And I think it was from here, sir, you bid the civilized world farewell, until, as you expressed it, you should see the "old man face to face or bring back his bones." And, as I understand, it was from here that your great troubles began. You found yourself in a deadly climate, struggling in jungles and in fastnesses, amid wild and hostile savages at war with each other; you were scorched by an African sun, bringing burning fever and wild delirium, but on you went. You cut through forests and you passed over mountains; you fought battles and you won victories; you gave fight to the great Mirambo, the chief of the Wamogas—(laughter)—who concluded that "discretion was the better part of valor" and retired, realizing there, no doubt, in the centre of Africa, the full force of the couplet:—

He who fights and runs away
Will live to fight another day.

And then you appear to have commenced a great flanking operation in getting outside of Mirambo's dominions, and I think you must have gathered some experience in that business in Grant's great campaign of the Wilderness. (Cheers.) And your experiences at home must have been useful to you in other respects, for I was greatly amused at breakfast the other day to hear you tell General Sherman that you had occasion to make the same speech to a wild African chief that you had heard him make in camp at Fort Laramie to a chief of the Arapahoes. (Laughter.) We follow you with breathless interest and become excited as you approach Ujiji, on the banks of the Tanganyika, and we participate in the feeling of hope that you had that you might there hear something of the object of your long and grievous search. We see your brave little party enter the village, sick, ragged, worn down, emaciated, drums beating and flags flying. But the flag still highest in air was the starry banner of our own Republic—(long continued cheering)—that emblem of our nation's glory and grandeur, respected and honored everywhere by Christian civilization, and saluted with reverence even in the wilds of Africa. (Great applause.) Our interest intensifies when we find that there is a white man in Ujiji, and we participate in your joy when you step out from among your Arabs and address this white man—"Dr. Livingstone, I believe?" And we throw up our hats when we see a smile light up the features of the brave old man, and when he answers, "That is my name, sir." (Applause.) That was an introduction worth having, and which must become historical. We congratulate you, Mr. Stanley, on the glorious success that has crowned your efforts and your labors. We pay a respectful homage to your courage, your energy, your fidelity and your perseverance in overcoming all obstacles in your path. (Great cheering.) We honor the enterprise and liberality of Mr. Bennett, who conceived and carried out with his own means this wonderful expedition. (Applause.) We thank you for the intelligence you bring us of Dr. Livingstone, and we rejoice that you met him face to face, and that he still lives to pursue his explorations still further and give to the world the result of his explorations. (Cheers.) We were all interested in the fate of that great traveller, and we admired, too, his courage, his tenacious purpose, his "gift of continuance"—persevering through long years for the attainment of the great object of his life; cut off from the civilized world, in solitude and isolation; prostrated by disease; worn out with longings; the victim of treachery and deception, yet ever intent on his great purpose; crossing continents, threading rivers, navigating lakes, scaling mountains and bringing new countries and peoples to the knowledge of mankind. And from what you told me, sir, I find that Dr. Livingstone has made a pathway to all American hearts. He has given to one of the great lakes he has discovered the name of that man whose memory dwells in all our hearts—Lincoln. (Long continued cheering.) But, gentlemen, I will detain you no longer, for I know you wait anxiously to give your approbation to a sentiment which I now propose to offer:—"Henry M. Stanley, the correspondent of the NEW YORK HERALD, the man who discovered the discoverer." We honor him for his courage, his energy and his fidelity. We rejoice in the triumphant success of his mission, which has gained him imperishable renown and conferred additional credit on the American name. We cordially welcome him on his return, and "may he live long and prosper." (Great applause.)

MR STANLEY'S SPEECH.

Mr. STANLEY responded to the toast in a speech in which he narrated the incidents of his expedition from the period at which Mr. James Gordon Bennett gave him his first instructions down to the discovery of Dr. Livingstone in the wilds of Africa. His adventures were related in an easy, unembarrassed, conversational style, occasionally interrupted by bursts of natural eloquence, which held his auditors spell-bound. He said that the expedition which had procured him the honor of their approbation was not the first thing of the kind which he had attempted in the service of the NEW YORK HERALD. He had accompanied the gallant army of Abyssinia as far as Magdala, and they all knew how the enterprise of that journal had been rewarded by his being able to flash over the wires the news of the triumph that had been accomplished there. (Applause.) He subsequently assisted at another triumph of civilization—a victory of mind over matter—the conquest effected by Lesseps over the sandy dunes and expanses of the Suez Isthmus. (Applause.) He had explored the great mysterious Nile, the temples that dominated its shores, and the grand old granite and syenite statues that guarded the sacred precincts up as far as the fanes of holy Philæ, the gloomy aisles of the great Luxor, and the sad, tuneful Memnon tracing the history of Egypt from the glorious days of Sesostris down to the deep degradation of Mameluke times and its uprise again to the dawn of a fresh regeneration and the knowledge that civilization means power. He had not time to descant to them upon that occasion on the relics of refined art which he had found in Greece, nor to warm up their religious sentiments by speaking to them of Jerusalem and Nazareth. Nor would he detain them by telling what he had seen in Spain, Italy and in the land of Hafiz and Saadi. The rude Caucasus and India must be passed by. No more of these, he said; but, gentlemen, animated by your friendship, encouraged by the sentiment which led you to compliment the enterprise and liberality of the NEW YORK HERALD, and the generous idea which induced Mr. James Gordon Bennett to send relief to a good old man almost perishing on the shores of the Tanganyika and to get news the world so much desired, I will proceed to touch upon a few brief points which I know will not be devoid of interest on the present occasion. (Applause.) Do you know what Zanzibar is? I am sure I did not. I had not the slightest idea what sort of place it was. It is a gem of the ocean. You find there one of the most attractive of islands, laved by the most sparkling of seas, warmed by rich sunlight and verdurous beyond imagination. Do you know what Africa is—that portion of Africa to which our attention is now drawn? Its coasts, even while you look on it as you approach its shores, fascinate the imagination. I remember even now the ardent hopes that sprang up as I gazed upon it. How grand appeared those groves of graceful-topped palms, how mysterious the bold headlands to the north, how grandly heaved the land swells toward the west, what solemn thoughts crept over my mind, as the fact that those undulations, those forests, those groves, must be crossed by me! for who knew what might happen, who knew what fate awaited my little army and myself? However, as all augured well why should our spirits be dashed when heaven and earth seemed to smile a welcome? But I dread the ridicule that perhaps would be excited if I told you all that was in my mind when I set foot upon the sandy beach, and was greeted by many sonorous "Yambos" from the grim-looking people who were thus saluting me. I had no boats to burn, for those which bore me were not mine; but there were resolutions to form as well as sadness to banish, and I assure you the spirit was not wanting. (Applause.) After narrating the difficulties and annoyances which beset him on his advance into the interior Mr. Stanley thus proceeded:—Dim and indistinct are the memories of the many annoyances which I bore. All my difficulties recede from my memory when I see such an array of faces smiling a cordial welcome. Had any one told me that such things would be my reward on my return; that such hearty compliments would be paid to me as the representative of the NEW YORK HERALD in Central Africa; that I should receive such loud-sounding praise from journals representing such a variety of languages, I should have doubted. Then there were pains—grievous bodily pains—always present; dangers and hardships ever in the perspective; but here I find pleasures and joys which are almost intoxicating. And what pleases me greatly is the fact that Mr. Bennett, like the generous-hearted man he is, kept up his hopes of my success. On December 31 he says in an editorial:—"We have great faith in our experienced Oriental campaigner, who conducts this expedition, and strong hopes of his complete success." The editor guessed accurately when he goes on to say, "We think that by this time he has accomplished his journey to Ujiji, and has found Dr. Livingstone." He was only wrong when he expressed his belief that at that time I was back at Zanzibar. "Meantime," he says, "from the newspaper extracts on the subject which we transfer to this paper, it will be seen that our African expedition is attracting much attention." In this he only spoke the fact. The speaker reverted to his interview with the great explorer. Let me speak again, he said, of Livingstone, the enduring man, the brave and resolute traveller, the practical Christian gentleman. What a weary, despondent look his face must have worn when he arrived at Ujiji! He had much of that when I saw him; but what a pleasure it was to me to see him brighten up little by little, to feel almost a childish interest, so intense was it as I enacted the part of a newspaper in what I told him. It was medicine to him, this long series of startling events that I had the pleasure of relating! It was life to him, this fresh white face from the United States, which came to tell him that America and Europe had not forgotten him. Can any of you imagine yourselves in his position? Can you imagine yourselves communing with your own thoughts on the weary march through those silent forests, with their appalling, intense silence, his utter loneliness warning him, as he saw the bleached skulls of those who had gone before, of his own littleness and his possible fate? I could not, indeed, had I not seen these things. I remember well, when in just such a scene as I have pictured, I thought of this and addressed him on the subject. He said if he died he would like to be buried in just such a place, and with only the dead leaves of the forest over him. No grave would he like better; often and often had he thought so. Gentlemen, Mr. Stanley said, it was no exaggerated account I wished to bring with me from the heart of Africa. I vowed I would bring nothing but the plain, unvarnished truth, for this was a case where there was no necessity for exaggeration. I wished to bring home facts; you see yourselves how they have stirred the hearts of nations. Those tiny flags, emblems of governments and nations, unite in praise of them. Seldom was there such unanimity upon any one topic as on that of Livingstone. The story of your reception of his words, of your gathering together around such a hospitable board to praise the liberality of the young gentleman who sent me to find him, will be very attractive and interesting to him. (Applause.) I know well how pleased he will be; his is a heart to be touched by it. Permit me, in his name, and on behalf of Mr. James Gordon Bennett, to thank you for your kind impulse, and for the interest you have manifested in myself accept my deep and sincere gratitude. (Great applause.)

AFTER MR. STANLEY

had concluded Mr. Washburne said he was certain the company had in their minds the gentleman who had set on foot the expedition, and who had furnished the sinews of war to carry it successfully forward. He would, therefore, propose "Mr. James Gordon Bennett, Jr., the eminent journalist, who conceived the idea of sending Stanley to find Livingstone, and whose unbounded liberality sustained an undertaking the success of which has given to his journal a still more world-wide reputation." This toast was received with immense and long-continued applause. There were two HERALD correspondents besides Mr. Stanley, but with the proverbial modesty which has ever distinguished HERALD correspondents, they both declined to make a speech, averring that they were readier with the pen than with the tongue, and that their province was reporting other people, not themselves.

MR. RYAN'S SPEECH.

Mr. Ryan, of the American Register, therefore responded to the toast by expressing the gratification which he felt at finding one of his old associates and co-laborers meeting with the reward to which his energy and daring justly entitled him. It was unnecessary for him to say more in regard to Mr. Stanley. Other speakers were prepared to dilate on the subject of his expedition. As to Mr. James Gordon Bennett, Jr., no one admired more than he did the sagacity and power of initiation which were marking his course, and which had resulted in such brilliant successes as the Abyssinian expedition and the discovery of Dr. Livingstone. At the same time it was due to the memory of the great journalist, his father, to say that it was to the training which he had received from him that he owed the development of those qualities. (Applause.) The same might be said of their distinguished guest, who had caught the spirit of enterprise and contempt for difficulties which were characteristic of Mr. Bennett, Sr. (Applause.) As to himself, he (Mr. Ryan) could say that if he were good for anything in his profession he owed it entirely to the severe training which he had received in the HERALD establishment, and to his becoming thoroughly imbued with the ideas of the greatest journalist and greatest worker of his time. (Applause.)

After this speeches were made by General Kiddoo, General Love, Mr. Young, Dr. Austen, of the London Times, and Mr. Crawford, of the Daily News.

MR. YOUNG'S SPEECH.

You have been good enough, sir, to toast me as an Englishman. A countryman of the illustrious Livingstone by descent, as I am proud to own—born in England, but with my dearest affections and all my worldly interests vested in your fortunate land—I am sometimes almost puzzled as to my nationality. Yet on this occasion I could well wish myself a John Bull, pure and simple, that I might with better grace offer my tribute of warm admiration and profound gratitude to the gentleman who is the guest of the evening. I am not, indeed, authorized to speak on behalf of others; but, if I know anything of my countrymen, I am certain that my feelings represent those of our universal public, and that they will care little for the difficulties that have arisen concerning Dr. Kirk and his conduct. These may well be left to the members of Mr. Stanley's own profession, so numerously gathered around this table. Many a good squabble they will have over what was done and what was left undone. For my own part, as a retired journalist, I have leisure and inclination to look above and beyond these comparatively trifling disputes. It is to the future, sir, that I turn my regards, as I think over what there remains for the enterprising genius of a Bennett to map out and the persevering energy of a Stanley to accomplish. And there seem to me to be three great discoveries still to be undertaken for the benefit of mankind and the further glory of the NEW YORK HERALD. Can you not, in the first place, fancy Mr. James Gordon Bennett summoning by telegraph Mr. Stanley to his presence, and asking him in the coolest way in the world whether he believes in the existence of a veritable North Pole? The reply is "Yes," of course. "Can you discover it?" is the rejoinder, to which Mr. Stanley answers with his habitual modesty: "I don't know, sir; but I'll try." "All right," says Mr. Bennett; "go ahead; you shall have unlimited credit; find the Pole, and hoist the Stars and Stripes upon it!" I leave you to judge, gentlemen, whether the thing will be done. Again, can you not fancy Mr. Bennett, sitting quietly on the deck of his yacht, and once more summoning Mr. Stanley to his side? The dialogue between them is, as usual, brief and practical. "Mr. Stanley, do you believe in the great sea serpent?" "I do, sir." "Then go and find him. You can have unlimited credit. Twist a cable about his jaws, tow him in from sea and beach him upon the spit of Sandy Hook." Gentlemen, I leave you to determine whether this feat will not also be accomplished. The third and most important of the discoveries yet to be made by this combination of rare enterprise and dauntless perseverance carries me back to the days when I, too, was in the press, and used, with many others, to shoot puny arrows against the tough and impenetrable shield of the redoubtable New York journal; for Mr. Bennett in this crowning instance is not indebted to his own desire for the diffusion of useful knowledge, but to the marvellous forethought and sagacity of his late father. You must, many of you, often have read the wierd problem propounded in his columns, but remaining to be solved by a Stanley. I give it you in three words, as I resume my seat:—"Who struck Billy Patterson?"

OTHER FESTIVITIES.

Mr. Home delivered a clever dramatic recitation in the course of the evening, and was followed by Mr. W. J. Florence and Mr. Bowles with song and story.

MR. CRAWFORD'S SPEECH.

Mr. Crawford, correspondent of the London Daily News, on his health being proposed by Mr. Washburne, said he felt overwhelmed by the unexpected compliment. The many friends he saw about him understood the French phrase, chaleureuse improvisation, which meant an excellent speech on the sudden, and if that was looked for from him the audience would certainly be disappointed. He would take the opportunity of expressing the pleasure he felt in being among Americans. He believed that, owing to peculiar circumstances, very few Englishmen knew Americans as well as he did. It had been his privilege to be acquainted with every American Minister in Paris from the time of Mr. Mason downwards. Mr. Bigelow was one of his dearest friends, and he had successively introduced him to General Dix and Mr. Washburne. In the ever-hospitable drawing rooms of the United States Legation he had for many years met the élite of American society in Europe and had made many friends. In a peculiar manner, therefore, he shared in the sentiment of rejoicing which had been well expressed by a preceding speaker at the happy issue of the Geneva Conference. As an old journalist of twenty years' standing and a more or less "special" correspondent, he was proud of belonging to the same profession as the guest of the evening, who, by his daring and successful enterprise, had made himself the first "special" in the world. His feelings with regard to the youthful Mr. Stanley, by the side of whom he had the honor of sitting that evening, were akin to those of Salvator Rosa, when, entranced with admiration and stimulated by the sight of a great masterpiece of a great painter, he exclaimed, "Anch' io sono pittore."

DR. AUSTIN'S SPEECH.

Dr. Austin, of the London Times, made a very neat and appropriate speech, in which he spoke in glowing terms of the energy displayed by Mr. Stanley and the enterprise of the HERALD. He said that, according to the proverb that "two in a trade can never agree," he should be jealous of the success of the HERALD, but he was not in the least. He only praised the daring of one journalist and the generosity of another, undertaking an expedition, in doing a great thing, which his own paper ought to have done. He said he regretted exceedingly the unfortunate quarrel that seemed inevitable between Dr. Kirk and Dr. Livingstone; but he felt sure that whatever be the result few Englishmen would not refuse the due meed of glory to Mr. Stanley. They had unfortunately in England a few learned geographers and savans, who, jealous of each other as of Dr. Livingstone and Mr. Stanley, were disposed to indulge in carping criticism and fault-finding sneers. These people were, however, few, and he felt sure that the great mass of the Englishmen would rejoice over the success of the expedition as thoroughly as if it had been carried out under the auspices of the English government. It was truly a great deed, worthy of the great journal that had accomplished it.

The company separated at a late, or rather early, hour of the morning, the utmost good humor having been the characteristic of the evening. Take it all in all, it was a most brilliant success and the most remarkable testimonial and compliment ever rendered to a journalist.

LIVINGSTONE AGAIN.

[From the Evening Mail, August 17.]

The HERALD to-day gives all the letters sent by Dr. Livingstone to Lord Stanley, Earl Clarendon, Earl Granville and Dr. Kirk, seven in number and mostly very long. Altogether they occupy two pages of fine print in the HERALD, enough for a moderate-sized volume. These are the letters which Earl Granville certifies to be genuine, after they had passed the severe scrutiny of subordinates in the Foreign Office who were familiar with Dr. Livingstone's handwriting and with all the existing information concerning Africa. This official certificate cannot be impugned, and the controversy about the genuineness of the letters may as well be given up forever.

For ourselves we must say that such decided testimony was not needed. That the letters are not those of the ideal Livingstone who is known through his published works we admit. We have, however, known of more than one instance in which books of travel have acquired a literary finish which their avowed author was incapable of imparting to them; and even were it certain that Dr. Livingstone dispensed with all literary aid, we must not forget that a man who has for years been isolated from civilization and had led such a life as he has would hardly write with the same care and attention to the proprieties as though seated in his own library, with abundant leisure and with favorable surrounding influences.

The letters published in the HERALD to-day will afford abundant opportunities for criticism as to their literary faults, but are none the less interesting or valuable for that. Their very freedom from the constraint of conventionalities gives additional freshness and piquancy to their revelations of interior Africa. The unstudied sentences are full of vitality and give most vivid impressions. Thus, in the letter to Lord Stanley, the explorer takes very few paragraphs to explain some of the difficulties and dangers of African travel, yet the picture is complete.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * *

"Bad water and frequent wettings told on us all, by choleric symptoms and loss of flesh," he adds, as we can imagine from the fact that fifty-eight inches of rain had fallen that year up to the middle of July. He found "continued wading in mud grievous" and for the first time his feet failed, irritable ulcers having fastened on each foot.

No wonder that with such and even worse experience he felt like writing to Lord Clarendon in November, 1871.

It seems singular that after so many ages have elapsed the most successful of modern explorers should avow his determination to follow the suggestions given by the father of historians and geographers, Herodotus. But in this he has simply acted as many others have found it wise to act. Successive revelation of the countries described by Herodotus all tend to enhance his reputation for accuracy and judgment. It remains for Livingstone to furnish further proof that Herodotus had information concerning the interior of Africa which no modern man has been able to acquire. We see nothing inexplicable in the steady determination with which the veteran explorer continues this work. Being a man of firm purpose and unfaltering courage, and having gone back to Africa with a full comprehension of what was before him, we are not surprised that he pursues his task not merely without repining, but with a sense of humor that seems to offend some of his critics. They have as little comprehension of the man as those critics of Abraham Lincoln, who could not believe that the Saviour of his Country indulged in humorous stories of a questionable character.

BRIGHAM YOUNG ON A TOUR.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, August 17, 1872.

Brigham Young and a party of Church officers are making a notable tour through the northern counties of the Territory. They are received by the Mormon people with processions, music, flags, banners and flamers.

CAPSIZING OF A BOAT IN NEW YORK BAY.

FORT HAMILTON, N. Y., August 17, 1872.

This evening, as William H. Rudkin, of William street, New York, with his wife, were out fishing in a small boat, they were run into by the steamboat Trenton and capsized near the Swash Channel. Messrs. James McNulty and Charles H. Losier, of Brooklyn, who were in another small boat at a distance, hastened to the scene, and through their exertions the parties were finally rescued.

THE PHILOSOPHER'S RETURN.

Mr. Greeley's Parting Speech at Rye Beach.

What He Knows About the Beauties of New Hampshire's Seaside Resorts.

ON TO NEW YORK VIA BOSTON

BOSTON, August 17, 1872.

Mr. Greeley bade adieu to Rye Beach this morning, in the midst of a driving rain storm. He rode in a close carriage from Mr. Jenness' cottage to Hampton Beach, a distance of some six miles, and thence a mile further, to Hampton station. At the various hotels at Hampton Beach—the Granite, the Hampton Beach, the Boar's Head and the Ocean House—he was the object of a great deal of admiration. The rain cleared away and he entered most of these hotels in order to shake hands with the guests. At the Hampton Beach Hotel he found himself formally welcomed by Mr. George Lunt, of Boston, in a set speech, and he was compelled to make a reply.

He spoke as follows:—

MR. GREELEY'S PARTING SPEECH.

MR. LUNT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—It has not been my good fortune—as I should certainly esteem it my good fortune—to spend any considerable part of my life at seaside resorts. I have been a hard worker all my life, and my work has been of that nature which required daily attention, so that I have rarely ever mingled in gatherings such as this, which I understand are for that laudable purpose, the pursuit of health. I have always understood, however, that one great specialty of the seashore was immunity from speechmaking. I have always understood that whatever was done here, this American matter of oratory did not descend to the beach. In the presence of the mighty ocean, which you continually hear rolling in upon you, human impotence and insignificance stand dumb. It seems, however, that in late years more upon us, and resorts such as this are not proof against temptation, so that on this occasion a few words may be said. It has always been doubtful whether the mountains or the ocean present the better and stronger attractions for the weary worker. Some go to the mountains and rejoice there in the continued increase of strength. Others resort to the seaside and find there, in the ever-rolling wave and the fresh breezes, not unmingled, perhaps, with the pleasure of fish, their great attraction and delight. I presume the wisest—perhaps I should say those better able to do it—try both; spend a few weeks at the seaside and then at the mountains, and this, I presume, is the best way; but this I know, that the seashore of my native State, which I never visited until yesterday, has marvellous attractions for me, at once of beauty and strength. It is so noble a coast that one might well wish it were longer—that there were more of it. However, we may be glad to see so great a number of people here—rejoice to see so many of our States, such diversities of climate, represented. My idea is that mainly educated and enlightened men and women, from different sections of our country, is conducing toward the better understanding—that reconciliation of the heart and understanding which seem to me so indispensable. I was not among the most strenuous in favor of conquest and subjugation, but I am among the most earnest and hopeful for thorough reconciliation among all classes of the American people, believing and trusting that your coming here, whatever its purpose may be, most conduces to that beneficent, that most essential end. I rejoice to find so many of you here, and I trust you will go home, each and all of you, strengthened not only in physical health, not merely prepared for the labors of the coming year, but strengthened also in heart and purpose to love and labor for the upbuilding of the American republic and the genuine unity of all classes and sections of this great Union.

OUR WORST HABITS HAVE GROWN

THIS INTERMINGLING OF MEN AND WOMEN,

HOMEWARD BOUND.

At the conclusion he drove to the station and took the Eastern Railroad for Boston. There had been no previous intimation along the route that he was coming, except an item in the Boston papers that he was expected or else private telegrams; but, nevertheless, at every little station there were knots of people collected to see him, and at one or two places the crowds assumed, without prearrangement, the proportions of an ovation. At Newburyport he was compelled to appear on the platform and shake hands with a large crowd. They appeared to be quite enthusiastic, and one individual remarked:—

"We'll show 'em what we know about beans next November, Uncle Horace."

At Ipswich, Beverley, Salem and Lynn similar demonstrations were made, evidently impromptu and quite hearty.

On arrival at Boston, Mr. Greeley drove at once to the Parker House, where he dined and where he was waited upon informally by a number of the political dignitaries of Boston. He left this afternoon by the Old Colony train for Fall River, and will arrive in New York to-morrow (Sunday) morning.

THE "STAR IN THE EAST."

Great Preparations for an Exciting Campaign—A Call Issued to Union Soldiers of the State—A Grand Republican Demonstration to Take Place on the 27th Inst.

PORTLAND, Me., August 17, 1872.

The next great political event of this season in this State will be the mass Convention of Union soldiers to be held in this city on the 27th inst. The call is to all Union soldiers in Maine who cherish the great principles for which the war was fought to a victorious end; who believe that a Union soldier who fought to save the Republic has larger claims upon the government than a rebel soldier who fought to destroy it; who believe in extending a just and generous hand to a defeated foe, but who are opposed to granting amnesty and pardon to such rebels as Jacob Thompson, who plotted the destruction of Northern cities by the most cruel incendiarism, involving the destruction of women and children; who believe that the Union soldiers are entitled to the largest pensions the government is able to pay, and who view with alarm even the remote intimation of placing the rebel soldiers on the same basis, which, if accomplished, would not only withhold much needed aid from those Union soldiers who were rendered helpless by their wounds, but would utterly confound all demonstrations of patriotism and treason, and would deprive the government in future exigencies of that loyalty and love on which it must always rely in times of great public peril; who believe that the present unparalleled and unjustifiable assault upon the private personal character of the President of the United States—the first soldier of the age—are but the emanations of bitter partisan hostility, and should be rebuked and denounced by all who appreciate the honesty of the man and the modesty of the hero.

The call has the names of 1,000 soldiers in all parts of the State already appended, and additions are made by every mail. Invitations are to be extended to all the campaign clubs in the State, and an evening demonstration is expected that will equal the great torchlight procession of 1860. General Burnside, Senator Wilson, General Butler and General John M. Harlan, of Kentucky, are expected to be present. By the arrangement for extra trains and half fares the committee expect to make this the greatest political gathering that ever has taken place in Maine.

ANDY JOHNSON.

Speech of the Ex-President at Nashville—A Roundabout Way to Congress.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., August 17, 1872.

Andrew Johnson made his promised speech to-day at the Exposition building, in this city, to about three thousand people. It did not vary much from his Knoxville speech, though more elaborate. He referred to the general preference for military men for office, and warned the people against it as of evil tendency, and while speaking of amnesty asked amnesty for himself. It is inferred from this that he desires the nomination for Congress for the State at large.

MASSACHUSETTS POLITICS.

BOSTON, Mass., August 17, 1872.

It is stated that at a meeting of liberal republicans and democrats in Boston to-day, it was resolved to ask Charles Francis Adams to become their candidate for Governor of Massachusetts. A telegram on the subject is said to have been despatched to Geneva.

ALABAMA POLITICS.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., August 17, 1872.

The republicans of the Second district of Alabama nominated J. T. Rapier (colored) for Congress on the first ballot, over C. W. Buckley, late member of Congress.

M., with compline (also choral) at eight P. M. This church, unlike the Low-Church Episcopal edifices, is open all Summer.

Spiritualism and the Bible.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In a recent issue of your paper "A Bible Spiritualist" wishes to know "Why the Lord prohibits, under the most fearful penalties, the consulting with familiar spirits, or even with those who have such spirits." Or, as I understand him, he, with other Spiritualists, wishes to know what evil can grow out of an open communion between this and the other world. The question is a fair one, and should be fairly answered. The answer I have before given to the world in a more elaborate manner than can be given in a newspaper article; but the importance of the subject, and the influence which Spiritualism is exerting, will forbid the idea of its being too frequently repeated. This will also justify me in requiring more space than is usually given to a moral topic. First a few fundamental principles.

Spiritual mediumship, in whatever form it manifests itself, is simply a law of intensity growing out of a peculiar susceptibility to spiritual influx. It may arise from either constitutional conditions or be induced by certain continued habits of life. The human constitution during mundane existence is the only battle field between heaven and hell; and in this contest every individual is compelled to take an active part, so that he who is not for is against one or other of the parties—there is no neutral ground. By the freedom of the human will man is placed in a moral equilibrium between these two contending forces, and the septum which interposes between his external consciousness and the contending hosts is gradually absorbed or suddenly rent according to the degree of his activity on the one side or the other. It is in virtue of this principle that every individual, to a greater or less degree, becomes a medium for alternating the forces of either heaven or hell; and whatever principle finds access into the natural plane of life goes to make up the general stock of the moral constitution of the world, and like every other principle in nature reproduces itself in a geometrical progression.

The sources of spiritual influx may be from either heaven or hell; but its ingress into the individual from these two sources is through two directly opposite principles of the human constitution. Influx from heaven is through the interiors, or religious nature, into the exterior; but influx from hell is through the exteriors, or sensual nature, into the interiors. Standing as these do in directly antagonistic relation to each other, one is opened in the degree as the other is closed, so that each individual becomes a receptacle of divine influx in the ratio as the exteriors are closed and the interiors are opened; but the hellish influx in the ratio as the exteriors are opened and the interiors are closed. And the only means of closing the exteriors to the ingress of the hells is by keeping the Commandments, which consists in suppressing, from religious motives, every disorder of life; but the exteriors are opened and the interiors closed by the habitual violation of their precepts. By closing the external avenues of ingress the Lord descends into the ultimate planes of the individual by first casting out every infesting or possessing influence, and so setting in order the entire constitution. Hence "if you would enter into life keep the Commandments."

Evil spirits are in possession of such infernal acts, and at the same time hid from mortal view, that they are capable of deceiving the most wary researcher after truth. To this end they can transform themselves into angels of light; they can personate the Lord, our kindred or any one with whom we may desire to communicate; they can read our thoughts, reveal past and future events; they can perform such wonders as to astonish the sceptic and bewilder the credulous. Were angels and devils permitted alike to communicate, by what means, then, could we distinguish between them? This would be impossible, and the door would be thus open for the most terrible impositions upon mankinds—impositions which could not fail to ultimate in a complete subversion of all social order. To avoid such a calamity we are explicitly commanded to regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither to seek after wizards to be defiled by them, and are assured that the soul that disregards this precept shall be cut off from among his people. Hence to those who heed the divine injunction there can be no deception, for they know that, as intercourse with familiar spirits is forbidden, angels cannot occupy forbidden ground. So whatever spirits communicate, be their pretences what they may, they are of no higher order than devils, whose unceasing efforts are for the destruction of mankind. An honest man cannot rob his neighbor, for in the attempt to commit such an outrage he would become a villain. Neither can an angel commune with mortals in the manner of familiar spirits, for in any such attempt to violate a divine prohibition he would become a devil. It is folly to say that God has not sufficiently regarded the interest of mankind in this particular, for he has abundantly warned us against the influence of seducing spirits or giving heed to doctrines of devils. Hence whoever does it does it at his peril and in open violation of the divine injunction, and facts abundantly demonstrate that no vice is more pernicious in its consequences.

To become magnetized by spirits is to become charged with the properties of demons. Through the influence of their infernal aura the imagination may be made to teem with all desired images projected into the mind; their ears are opened to soothing and enrapturing melody; their passions are quickened into newness of life, and their judgment is made to approve of every sinful impulse. All now becomes smooth sailing; no evil to suppress, no moral good to crave that they do not already possess. The demon well knows how to soothe his medium, producing at will pictured scenes of heaven upon the imagination, and pleasing emotions upon the senses. The spiritual clairvoyant and clairaudent whom they have enslaved are in this condition. Thus charmed and infatuated, no appeals can be made to arouse them from their fearful condition. With them sensation is more than philosophy, passion more than religion. The demon, like the skilful mesmerist, however depraved, can will his subject into a sensational rapture and produce the wildest mental hallucination. This continues until the demon secures full possession of his oracle, and then old heathenism becomes re-established and hell has free access to earth.

But now comes the change: the demon, instead of soothing his medium, rules with a rod of iron and mounts his new victim and rides him or her into every shameless abomination. Every lawful effort is defeated and every wicked desire is gratified. Having returned to a new human body—to all practical intents its own—a new career of power now opens before the smooth and subtle Anarch. They use the brains of their mediums as the workshops of the vilest sophistry, their tongues to utter slanders and cursings and their bodies to gratify their lusts. They artfully insinuate into the minds of their slaves that they cannot retrogress; that there is no hell to shun, no evil to repel, and those who have any remaining consciousness of the existence of evil are persuaded that the only way to rid themselves of it is by an unconstrained indulgence in it, that they may thus exhaust its force. These are the deplorable facts demonstrated in every spiritual circle in the nation. Now will you ask why God has rendered the communication with familiar spirits an offence against morals, or that he should have forbidden this accursed commerce. The great lessons of the Christian Scriptures would fall comparatively powerless upon mankind without this prohibition. Those who disregard it throw the Bible overboard, and with it every principle which underlies the moral order of society. Unabashed by the terrible degradation which has befallen them, they boast of their own shame. Stripped of every divine quality which should conjoin them to heaven, looking to devils for inspiration and lust as the best means of its ingress, they hurl from them the only divine code of morals as an unwarrantable restraint upon their passions and a libel upon their inspirations. They thus yield up their personality as willing agents of devils, so that they become open sewers for the influx of hell to earth, and with infinite wisdom the Lord warned us against them, and at the same time ordered that such vile persons should, for the general good of society, be removed from the face of the earth. No one who has critically watched the present spiritual phenomenon and its effects can fail to see the folly of our penal regulations in disregarding this injunction. I am abundantly able to show, in more ways than one, the wisdom of divine legislation upon this subject. Magic or Spiritualism paralyzed Egypt, overthrew the Roman Empire, and will hurl the American Republic into the most shameless degradation. Is it not wisdom, therefore, that these connections between the baser passions of man and the lower world should be cut off and mankind screened from the debauching influence which flows through them? Such was God's decision, and he is a bold man who will dare to ignore it.

My unknown correspondent has a right to assume whatever name he pleases; but I must confess my inability to discover any important difference between the appellation of "Bible Spiritualist" and Christian Devil. Both are misnomers.

OBSERVER.

The Jesuits—Who Wrote the Constitution of Maryland?—Remarkable Speech of Daniel O'Connell.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I perceive that the HERALD, acting in a spirit of justice, has exposed the impolitic and unjust course taken by Prince Bismarck with reference to the Jesuits in Germany. The Prince has carried a measure for the expulsion of the Order from the territory of the Germanic Empire. This is a foolish as well as a harsh act. It can possibly do no good, and will most certainly redound to the discredit of Bismarck and the German nation. The age of persecution on account of religion is over. When conscience is attacked those in whose persons it has been assailed at once become martyrs.

I am well aware that for the last thirty-five years a cry has been kept up in England that if the Jesuits were not expelled from that country public liberty would not be in existence for five minutes. Yet, at this moment, there are plenty of Jesuits in England—the brother of Sir John Coleridge, the Attorney General, is a Jesuit, and a most learned one, too—and public liberty has not ceased to exist. On the contrary, the spirit of liberty, notwithstanding the presence of the Jesuits, is strong and active in Great Britain, one of the freest countries in the world. I do not write this letter for the purpose of defending the Jesuits—they require no defence at my hands—but I respectfully ask your permission to correct misrepresentation and remove unfounded prejudices which have been put into active force by well contrived falsehoods against a learned body of men, whose only fault, in the eyes of unbelieving and free-thinking men, is that they are true to the cause of their Redeemer, whose holy name the order of Jesuits bear.

It is perfectly capable of proof that the Jesuits have done much for the advancement of liberty and civilization, though the very opposite is persistently but falsely maintained by those who will not allow themselves to see the truth. The Jesuits have been identified with the freedom and independence of America. And here is proof of this assertion. At a meeting held in the city of Waterford, Ireland, on the 30th of August, 1826, Daniel O'Connell, stating the case of the Catholics, and demanding their enfranchisement from the penal code, made use of the following language:—

> Behold the epitome of the history of Maryland. When the Presbyterians had power they persecuted Papists and Prelatists; when the Prelatists were in power they persecuted Presbyterians and Papists; when the Catholics were in power they persecuted neither Presbyterian nor Prelatist, nor any sect, but gave perfect freedom of conscience to Christians of all denominations. There is one fact untold respecting Catholic liberality in Maryland which I wish I had a trumpet loud enough to call on all England to hear. Who was it advised the liberal law of 1649? Who was it wrote every letter, word and line of that statute? Is England prepared to hear the answer? It was one of that class who have been persecuted and are still calumniated, but who, in my judgment, deserve to be placed among the benefactors of the human race. It was—hear it, calumny!—it was a Jesuit.

These are the very words of Daniel O'Connell, taken down at the moment by the reporter of the London Morning Herald who attended the meeting specially to give a full and accurate report of his speech. O'Connell was in favor of the emancipation of the negro from bondage. It would be well if the American people, who are so intelligent and who read so much, would bear in mind, when they are discussing questions affecting the Church and then our liberty, that it was a member of the Society of Jesus who drew up the liberal public law of Maryland in 1649—a law that protected the conscience of every citizen of that State, no matter what might be his religious opinions, from oppression or wrong. That good work was the work of a Jesuit priest; and I appeal to the justice of the HERALD to publish the fact to the world, so that it may go to mitigate, if anything can mitigate, the hostility of men who work themselves into a fit of religious passion and seem to think that the world is coming to an end and public liberty on the brink of destruction because a few Jesuits, whose mission is to instruct and enlighten youth, are permitted to dwell in this country, where, we are told, all men have equal rights.

The Jews: Their Rabbinical College, Their Sabbath and the Herald.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

A recent editorial article in the HERALD upon "Rabbinical Education" has struck the keynote of a wide and growing sentiment among American Jews and provoked thought and discussion which must bring forth good and lasting results.

You are quite right, Mr. Editor, in assuming that Jews need more preaching in the vernacular in their synagogues, which were established originally for instruction, and not merely for prayer, as, according to the Jewish ritual ten males ("minyan") who have attained nineteen years of age are a quorum competent for religious worship anywhere and at any time; consequently the only object of congregating in large numbers was to hear the law read and expounded, which custom, as we read of in the Bible, is as old as the law itself.

We of the orthodox school believe in the necessity of retaining the Hebrew language as the medium of conveying our thoughts and expressing our wishes to our Father in Heaven. There are others who prefer the use of their native tongue interspersed with a few Hebrew sentences; but all agree that religious instruction is essential to the well being of the House of Israel, and the anxious inquiry comes from all sides—How can the demand be supplied? We answer by the establishment of a theological seminary upon a broad and liberal basis, wherein a first class classical education can be acquired, combined with a thorough theological course of instruction. The means for this are in large part ready at hand; for, as suggested by your correspondent, "An Israelite," Mr. Sampson Simson, who died some twenty years ago, bequeathed several acres of ground in Yonkers, New York, for precisely this purpose, and why no step has been taken, so far as we are aware, by the trustees appointed by the testator, or their successors, to carry out the spirit of the will of the poor Israelite, we are at loss to understand. The property is very eligibly located, and is now of great value. There is much more than is needed for the purpose, and, therefore, if after a proper appeal to the public for aid to erect a suitable building a liberal response be not forthcoming, then we think it would be eminently proper for the trustees (if there be no prohibition in the will) to apply to the Legislature, or any court having competent jurisdiction, for leave to sell such surplus part of the grounds as would enable them to erect a building and launch the undertaking fairly into existence. Further valuable time should not be lost. The trustees owe a duty to the deceased and the public which must not be longer ignored, and we hope to see them wake from this Rip Van Winkle nap and be up and ready to supply the much needed want. So much for the Rabbinical College.

Now in reply to a part of your article on that subject published in your edition of last Sunday, August 4.

After taking exception to the views of one of your correspondents, you go on to say "it is believed and reported, however, that the leading Jewish rabbies of this city are in favor of observing the Christian Sabbath instead of their own, as being the only means of keeping their congregations together and their synagogues respectably filled. They are, undoubtedly, right. But, then, the Sabbath question comes up and demands a hearing."

In all this you have been misinformed; for we venture to assert, without fear of denial, that there is not a minister of a respectable Jewish congregation in the city of New York that will subscribe to or undertake to perform a religious somerset of that kind. About a year ago such a motion was made by a member at a meeting of his congregation in New York; but it was voted down by such an overwhelming majority that the proposition is not likely to be made again in a hurry; and, just here, permit us to correct you and others who apply "Sabbath" to Sunday. Sabbath is derived from the Hebrew word "Shabat," meaning "to rest," or "Sheba" (which is said by some to be accidental) meaning "seven." Now the traditional Sabbath of the Jew is what corresponds to the modern Saturday, and dates back from the time God himself designated the day as described so unmistakably in the sixteenth chapter of Exodus, when the children of Israel subsisted upon manna for forty years in the wilderness and were commanded to gather it every day except the Sabbath. That the attempt to lay aside for a succeeding day, except on the day immediately preceding the Sabbath, failed by the substance becoming wormy and offensive, &c. Such testimony as this makes it reasonably sure that Saturday is the Sabbath, or seventh day of the week, whereas Sunday is the "Lord's day," or first day of the week, and has its origin some three hundred years after the death of Jesus of Nazareth, who, a Jew himself, religiously kept the Sabbath of the Jews.

Further on you say, "Has the Almighty more affection for one day of the week than another? or is worship on Saturday or Sunday more pleasing to Him than it can be on Monday or Friday? To state the questions is to answer them, and we cannot therefore see wherein we should offend God were we to abolish the present Jewish and Christian Sabbaths and substitute any other of the days of the week for the contemplation of His character and the worship of His name and Godhead."

We have too good an opinion of you, Mr. Editor, to believe that you seriously entertain such vague ideas of the spirit and letter of the law relating to the Sabbath as found in the Bible, and are rather disposed to believe that your object is to "bring out" replies from indignant readers and thus create a beneficial excitement in the public mind. Lest, however, you are really in earnest, we will remark that we do not know what reply Christians will make to such "liberal" sentiments as these, but for the Jews permit us to say that the Fourth Commandment of the Decalogue, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," is obviously so emphatic in contradistinction to a Sabbath day, that there is no room left to choose if we would.

Give yourself no uneasiness, Mr. Editor, "Judaism will be maintained on this Continent" and elsewhere, as it has existed in the past 5,000 years of its checkered career, and Jews will continue to read and admire the NEW YORK HERALD for the intelligent, liberal and disinterested views of them and all other religious denominations so frequently expressed in its unsectarian columns.

SEMI-OCCASIONAL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 9 1872.

Ministerial Movements, Changes, &c.

METHODIST.

The new Wabash avenue Methodist church, Chicago, will be ready for occupancy about the 1st of October, when the congregation will move in then and sit under the ministrations of Rev. J. F. McClelland. Eleven old-fashioned Methodist Protestants withdrew recently from a country church because instrumental music was introduced into the Sabbath school, and to be consistent they united with another church in which are three organs. At the Annual Mission Conference of Switzerland and Germany, recently held at Zurich, seven preachers were received on trial and six into full connection. The increase of members during the year has been 495 and of Sunday schools 22, with 855 scholars, so that the Conference reported 7,955 members and 10,071 Sunday scholars. Alexander Winchell, LL. D., now professor of geology in the University of Michigan, has been elected president of the Syracuse Methodist University. The Methodists of South Carolina number sixty thousand communicants. Dr. Long writes from Constantinople that he has returned from a tour of inspection of the Methodist missions in Bulgaria. He says:—"Passing first to Tultcha, I visited our Russian brethren, who, though few in number, I found making a good witness for Christ. The brethren at Sistof have done and are doing well, considering their position. There is only one other place in Bulgaria where the truth has gained so much of a position as in Sistof, and that is in a mountain station in the field of the American Board." A new Methodist Episcopal church at Baldwin's, L. I., will be dedicated on Sunday, September 1, by Rev. Bishop Harris. It is proposed to call a special session of the General Conference of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church at Augusta, Ga., to elect new bishops. In consequence of the death of Bishop Vanderhorst, Bishop Miles will have to attend all the conferences. A handsome new church at Rutherfurd Park, N. J., is in prospect. Bishop Harris will dedicate the lecture room of the new church at Oxford, N. J., on Sunday, August 25. Rev. Dr. B. F. Crary, late editor of the Central Christian Advocate, has been transferred to the Colorado Conference and appointed presiding elder of Denver district. Rev. C. E. Felton, pastor of Union church, St. Louis, has left for a six weeks' vacation. A fine and commodious brick church has just been completed at Eleventh and Christy avenue, St. Louis, by the African Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. Dr. Whitefeather, a distinguished Indian preacher of the Shawnee Nation, was present at the Philadelphia Preachers' Meeting last Monday. He addressed the meetng on the condition of the Indian tribes in the great West. Bishop Peck has been suffering much for many weeks past. His friends have been apprehensive of serious results from this illness. He has so far improved as to admit of his going to Clifton Springs, N. Y. Open air services are held in Jersey City every Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, at Hamilton Park and on the Cunard docks. The Methodist pastors of the city do full duty in these services, and find that their camp meeting training stands them in good service for these occasions. On last Sunday Rev. John Atkinson preached at Hamilton Park, and Rev. R. B. Yard, assisted by a full choir from St. Paul's church, conducted the service at the docks. Commodore William Voorhis, of the New York Yacht Club, has given the Nyack Methodists land and stone whereon and wherewith to build a new church, which they are about to begin at once. They have sold their old church, and have built a beautiful parsonage for their pastor, Rev. S. B. Rooney.

BAPTIST.

There are 15,000 white and 50,000 colored Baptists in the State of Louisiana. Rev. T. C. Richards has resigned at Downer's Grove, Ill., and proposes to engage in educational work. Rev. William C. Wilkinson has been elected Professor of Homiletics and Pastoral Theology in Rochester Theological Seminary, N. Y. Mr. Wilkinson graduated from the University of Rochester in 1857 and from the Seminary in 1859. There are in the State of Missouri fifty-nine Baptist associations, 1,251 churches, 76,016 church members, 846 ministers, 806 Sunday schools, containing 54,508 teachers and scholars, and the money raised and expended during the last financial year by the scholars is $18,346 19. Two-thirds of the churches have Sunday schools; there is one minister for every ninety-one church members, and the Baptist membership comprises about one-twenty-seventh of the population of the State. Rev. W. C. Gunn has closed a pleasant pastorate in Rose, Wayne county, N. Y., to engage in another department of the Master's vineyard. The Rev. E. A. Woods, after a pastorate of five years, has retired from the Baptist church at Flemington, N. J. During his ministry there the people have erected a new house of worship at a cost of $42,000; 160 new members have been added and the Sunday school numbers 295. The church has raised $51,794 and the Sunday school $2,206 during Mr. Wood's pastorate. The sixty-first anniversary of the West Jersey Baptist Association will be held in the Haddonfield Baptist church, commencing September 10. Rev. S. T. Catlin has changed from Osceola Mills to Bangor, La Crosse county, Wis. Rev. L. B. Hibbard has gone from Grafton, Vt., to South Adams, Mass., and Rev. W. F. Benedict from Broadalbin to Long Island City, N. Y., where his pastoral services will begin September 1. Rev. C. F. Hull has resigned the pastorate of the Baptist church at Beekman, N. Y. Rev. T. R. Gaines, of South Carolina, has retired from the Working Christian, as proprietor and editor, to accept the agency of the Palmetto Orphan Home. Rev. Arthur Swazey, D. D., has withdrawn from the editorial chair of the Interior (Baptist), Chicago, which he has filled from the first number of the paper. Rev. J. A. Chambliss, of Richmond, Va., has been unanimously called to the pastorate of the First Baptist church in Kansas City. Rev. R. W. Pearson, of Lafayette, Ind., is supplying the Fifth Baptist church of Philadelphia. The Twelfth Baptist church of Philadelphia have voted to continue their Sabbath services as usual through the summer. The pulpit will be supplied during the absence of the pastor, Rev. T. B. Bott. In 1729 the Baptists in North Carolina constituted but one out of every 512 of the inhabitants, the large majority being Quakers or adherents to the Church of England. In 1790 the Baptists numbered 7,000; in 1812, 13,000; in 1845, nearly 79,000; and last year over 100,000, or one to every twelve of the entire population of the State. Last year 7,000 were added. The Free Will Baptists number 3,300 and the Disciples of the State 3,475.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. O. P. Meeks has resigned his pastorate at Lawrenceburg, Ind., and proposes to finish his theological course at Hamilton, Ohio. The Reformed Presbyterians of the United States have 101 congregations, ninety-one ministers, 8,882 members, 517 Sabbath school teachers and 4,581 scholars. Seventy-five per cent of the ministers are in the pastoral work, and their average salary is $1,045 per annum. Thirty congregations are without pastors. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage opposes summer vacations on the part of ministers, because iniquity does not cease in the summer time. Sin never takes a vacation: the devil never leaves town, he says. But Mr. Talmage has taken a vacation; therefore he is not sin. He has gone out of town; in fact, he has gone to Europe; therefore he is not the devil. But Mr. Talmage preaches one thing and practises another. The Golden Age therefore leaves its readers to draw the inference for themselves. Professor Paton, of the Chicago Theological Seminary, is at present visiting Bermuda, his native place. Rev. J. S. Taylor has left the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland on account of the decision of Synod to tolerate instrumental music in the churches. Rev. E. L. Clark has left the pastorate of the North church, New Haven, and accepted a call to a new Presbyterian church in Harlem. Rev. Charles S. Dodd has accepted the position of evangelist of the Presbytery of New Orleans. He will labor on the Teché Bayou. The largest Presbyterian church building in New York is said to be that of the Rev. C. S. Robinson, corner of Fifty-third street and Madison avenue. It is to be dedicated in November. The Presbyterian church at Montclair, N. J., has increased the salary of Rev. Dr. Berry, its pastor, $500. The Second Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, Rev. Dr. Beadle, pastor, have nearly completed what in many respects is the most elegant church edifice in that city. It is Gothic, with transepts and clearstory, and is most richly decorated throughout. The cost is about two hundred thousand dollars. It will be ready for occupation in October. The monument to Jonathan Edwards, which is to be erected in Stockbridge, is being made in Scotland, of Scotch granite, and will probably be finished the 1st of January next. It is proposed to raise £50,000 for the Indian Mission of the Established Church of Scotland, in memorial of the late Dr. Norman McLeod. The Presbyteries of South Carolina number 14,264.

EPISCOPALIAN.

Dean Stanley is announced to preach to-day for the Rev. A. K. H. Boyd, D. D., in St. Andrew's church, Edinburg. The Episcopalians of Long Island diocese report 65 resident ministers, 82 churches, 10,519 communicants and 1,502 Sunday school teachers and 7,000 scholars. The Rev. James W. Coe has accepted the charge of St. Paul's church, Charleston, Ill., and Christ church, Arcola, and entered upon his duties. The Rev. George W. Dean, Professor of Latin and Greek in Racine College, has accepted the rectorship of Zion church, Freeport, Ill., and will take charge September 1. The Society for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge, London, with the sanction of the monthly board, has voted the sum of £5,000 "for increasing the number of students in church-training colleges as speedily as possible, or increasing the number of efficiently trained teachers in elementary schools." It is proposed to distribute £2,140 of this sum to seven training colleges for young men on condition that 107 additional students be received within their walls by Christmas next. The Episcopalians of North Carolina number 3,300 communicants. The Episcopalians of Ohio number:—Parishes, 116; clergy—bishops, 2; priests, 98; deacons, 6; total, 106; communicants, 9,740; total contributions for the last diocesan year (salaries to clergy excepted), $204,931. Last Sunday Bishop Niles, of New Hampshire, held two services in the Congregational church, Lancaster, and in the evening at the school house in the "Lost Nation." He preaches to-day at the old Judge Livermore church, in Holderness, just across the river from Plymouth village. It is the oldest Protestant Episcopal church in the State. Massachusetts has 128 Episcopal clergymen, 11,706 communicants and 10,817 Sunday scholars. The contributions for the diocesan year just closed amount to $222,485. In Kansas there are 28 Episcopal parishes organized and 3 unorganized and 26 ministers. The communicants number 1,018, Sunday scholars and teachers 864; contributions for the year, $9,239. In Texas there are 30 clergymen, 2,085 communicants, 1,602 Sunday scholars and teachers and the annual contributions amount to $29,058.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The Congregational church at Saugerties has been closed during the current month, to give the pastor, Rev. J. Danielson, a vacation. Rev. Dr. Rankin, of Washington, D. C., while visiting at Sandy Springs, Md., and riding in a buggy, was thrown out and slightly injured. His wife, who was with him, had a hip joint dislocated. Rev. J. H. Budd, of this city, because of impaired health, has tendered his resignation, to take effect October 1. The Congregationalists are building a fine church at Montclair, N. J. It occupies a commanding site on Fullerton avenue. The pastor is Rev. Mr. Bradford. Plymouth church, Brooklyn, has been closed for a few Sundays, and during the intervening week days mechanics and workmen have been actively employed in making much-needed repairs and giving the old place a general shining up. The services, which have been conducted in the lecture room for the past two Sundays, will be conducted to-day in the church, Rev. James C. Beecher, the junior of the Beecher family, officiating. Several Congregational theological students of Harvard University are improving their vacation, it is said, by serving as waiters at the Long Branch hotels. The first Congregational house of worship in the State of Alabama has been built and paid for and furnished with a bell and an organ, at Marion, within the past year. The church, which is composed mainly of those who were slaves, is small and poor, except in faith, and yet it has contributed $1,500 worth of labor toward its new edifice in a single year. The third Congregational church of San Francisco are divided upon the propriety of admitting to membership several Chinamen who have lately applied. The pastor, Rev. W. C. Pond, is in favor of taking John into the fold, and as a feeler has tendered his resignation unless they are admitted. It has not been accepted, and the probability is that the church will either agree to receive the Chinamen or that the malcontents will withdraw and leave the way clear for others to act. It is surprising how tenaciously religious and political prejudices cling to churches and communities.

REFORMED.

Rev. E. Miller, formerly of Berne, has been called to the churches of Breakabin and Blenheim, N. Y. The Rev. F. E. Schlieder has been called to Forreston, Ill. Rev. Alfred E. Myers, of Brooklyn, has returned to New Rochelle, N. Y., after an absence of a year in Europe. Rev. A. R. Thompson, of this city, is preaching to large audiences and doing much good in San Francisco. The North Classis of Long Island has dissolved the pastoral relation of the Rev. E. J. Fairchild with the Flushing Reformed church, to take effect September 1. During the absence of the Rev. D. N. Vandeveer, of the First Reformed church, Kingston, N. Y., the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. John Steele, of Newark, N. J. The Presbyterians and Reformed Dutch worship together in Freehold, N. J., during the summer vacation of their pastors. A Reformed church was organized Wednesday evening, July 10, on Jersey City Heights, Jersey City. The location is one of promise, on Central avenue, in a central position, and commanding a fine view of New York city and bay. A new Reformed church is in course of erection at Sag Harbor. The Rev. J. S. Heffernan is the pastor. Christ church (Reformed), Woodside, N. J., Rev. Dr. McAuley, pastor, are putting up a new house of worship for themselves. The Rev. Mr. Stewart, pastor of Hope church, Holland City, Mich., is now at the East, seeking aid to rebuild their house of worship, which was burned last October.

LUTHERAN.

Rev. G. A. Struntz, of Gilberts, Pa., has accepted a unanimous call to the charge at Mauch Chunk, Carbon county, Pa., and enters upon his new field of labor this week. An English Lutheran church is about to be organized in Knoxville, Tenn., by Rev. J. K. Hancher. Rev. J. S. Heilig, late of Jeffersontown, Ky., has accepted a call from the Lutheran congregation at Marklesburg, Huntingdon county, Pa. The Lexington street Lutheran church at Baltimore, made vacant by the resignation of Dr. McCron, has extended a call to Rev. J. H. Barclay, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, at Easton, Pa. Rev. S. A. Hedges has resigned the Bloomfield charge, Perry county, Pa., and accepted a call from the charge at York Springs, Adams county, Pa., and will enter upon his duties as pastor there on the 1st of October next.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

A "Union of German Catholics" has been formed to support the Church in its conflict with the German Empire. An appeal has been issued to all good Catholics for aid, in which it is assumed that in Germany a systematic "persecution of the Church" has begun, which is to be carried on, as the papers hostile to the Church maintain, until it is destroyed. According to Rev. George Herbert Curtis, in his Bampton lectures, the Catholics of England in 1854 numbered five per cent of the whole population, while in 1865 the number was but four and two-thirds per cent. A despatch from Constantinople says that the three schismatic Armenian Bishops, Padiaron, Vactosian and Kupelian, have all been stricken with apoplexy within the space of twenty days, and that the two former are dead, while the third, the new schismatic patriarch, has received the last sacraments. This news, says the New York Tablet, coming immediately after the announcement of the death of Juarez by the same awful stroke ought to make the enemies of God's Church and the oppressors of His people pause and think while time is yet given them. God is patient, but He is terrible in His wrath. The Jesuits are already leaving Prussia in great numbers. Some of them intend to settle in Prague, where they have purchased an old convent. Another accusation has been brought against the Jesuits. M. Alexander Weill has addressed a communication to the French Jewish papers on the subject of the Roumanian Jews, in which he considers the Jesuits to be the instigators of the excesses in the Principalities. He asserts, besides, that all the attacks against the Jews in the Paris press emanate from the Jesuits. Now that the Jesuits are in a narrow strait, it is characteristic to heap on them all the abuse possible.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Rev. Dr. Furness, of Philadelphia, has been settled over the same Unitarian church since 1825—longer than any other minister of his denomination in the United States. Rev. Dr. Ormiston, of the Fifth avenue Reformed church, of New York, is in the Yosemite Valley, measuring the big trees and preaching salvation by faith in Christ from the smooth stumps of some of them. Rev. E. L. Conger, of Taunton, Mass., has accepted a call from the Universalist church in Concord, N. H., and begins labors there the 1st of September. Rev. Rowland Conner, who was for a time associate with Dr. Miner, of Boston, and afterward "on his own hook" at Horticultural Hall, has now the charge of a free religious society at Florence, Mass. Rev. Thomas Vickers, of the Free Religious Society, Cincinnati, Ohio, is one of the few consistent liberals. He does not hold to the divine origin of the Scriptures or of Christianity, but only to natural religion. Instead of reading and expounding the Bible on the Sabbath he sometimes takes up Shakspeare and other poets. The Rev. George Fraser, of Greenville, Ill., has been elected Professor of Mental and Moral Science in Washington and Jefferson College, Pa. Robert Collyer has delivered the first lecture in a Sunday evening course at the Academy of Music, Chicago. He will be followed by Rev. Dr. Ryder, Professor Swing and others. The annual meeting of the Maine Conference of Unitarian Churches is to be held at Ellsworth, September 17, 18 and 19. Rev. Benjamin H. Bailey, of Portland, preached last Sunday morning in King's Chapel, Boston, before an attentive congregation of residents and strangers. The plan of having a church so centrally situated among the hotels as the chapel, open through the Summer, has worked well. The Protestant Church at Beyroot, Syria, has a Morning Star Society in its Sabbath school, which has just sent one of its teachers as a missionary among the Bedouin Arabs. Beloit College, Wisconsin, has in attendance upon its classes a full-blooded negro, an Indian and a Turk, and one of the students is instructing in Japanese. The Quakers of North Carolina number 3,633. On the arrival of Sir Moses Montefiore in Russia the Czar sent a special train to convey him and his party to St. Petersburg. The interview was held on the 25th of July. There is every reason to believe that Montefiore's mission has been successful. Immediately after the interview Sir Moses left St. Petersburg for Berlin, whence he was to proceed to Vienna, and thence return to England, to convey in person the results of his audience with Alexander. The Jewish Messenger comes again to the rescue of Rabbinical Colleges, and calls upon its coreligionists to "manfully face the present danger and determine to counteract its effects." It warns them again that they must not look to Europe for a ministry, but that each must put his own shoulder to the work and do something to sustain the cause of Judaism in America. The Rev. Oscar Hugo, of the Reformed Church of Hungary, preached at Keyport and Matteawan, N. J., on last Sunday. His sermons were powerful appeals on behalf of the Christian Sabbath and the use of the Bible in our public schools. The congregation Shaaraí Zedek of this city are looking for a lecturer in German and English to whom they offer $2,000 salary per annum.

The Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ is now in session in Philadelphia. Several of their bishops and prominent ministers officiated on Sunday in our churches to the edification of our people.

THE COURTS OF BERLIN AND OF ROME.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Whoever is the original aggressor, and it cannot be denied that Prussia deserves this designation, it is certain that ever-existing Rome and the new-made Empire of Germany are erect against each other in most hostile conflict. It is impossible to foresee all the consequences of the angry struggle, and no one can announce at what time it will end; but the history of Europe contains a plenitude of light, which is in no way dubious, for the identification of the final gainer of the battle. Rome has been in many a prolonged engagement—with Cæsars, with Hohenstaufens, with Bonapartes; but in each case it buried the enemy, put on his defeated remains the last shovel of hiding earth, and there is no room for apprehension that the annals of the past will be in beliement with the developments of the future; for, after more than eighteen hundred years of existence, Rome is still to-day as young, as absolute, as firm, as ambitious and as immortal as ever before. The unavoidable interpretation is that Bismarck and his master have opened a combat, the entire ultimate benefit and glory of which will shine on the battlements of the Vatican. The white-haired Pius IX. is animated with this truth. Reflecting on it makes him youthful again. Notwithstanding his imprisonment, in defiance of his eighty-two years, he tells William and his Chancellor that the pebble will be cast which will demolish the Colossus; and when he sees Berlin upheaved with fury and alarm for this stern prediction, he declares that there is no modification for any of his words, and that he will ever fearlessly perform all the sublime duties of his imperishable office. The past and the present make it a destiny for the Papacy to see the Kingdom of Prussia and the constitution and boundaries of the new sovereignty erased forever from the disc of Europe.

As the struggle progresses Prussia manifests two great ambitions—to have the new-made Empire acknowledged as the lawful successor of the Holy Roman Empire and to control all future Papal elections. We consider each of these extraordinary aims in turn.

It is certainly an absurd claim that the new-made Empire lawfully succeeds the Holy Roman Empire. The Holy Roman Empire was strictly founded on the Roman Catholic faith. The new Empire is founded on a confusion of Lutheranism and atheism. None but a Roman Catholic could wear the diadem of the former. None but a Lutheran can succeed to the latter. If an occupant of the first changed his faith, the Pope, chief upholder of the rights of the Crown and of the people, would have declared him excommunicated and dethroned for apostacy and treason, and Europe would have seen to the immediate fulfilment of each division of the sentence. But if an occupant of the second should become a Roman Catholic his reigning days would at once be terminated forever, and the two Parliaments of infidels who have recently enacted a cruel law of banishment for the sons of Loyola would expel the House of Hohenzollern from the limits of Germany. Finally, the Holy Roman Empire was quashed out of all tangible existence by the celebrated act called the "Confederation of the Rhine;" and, strongest reason of all, if the honors of Charlemagne legally and lineally belong to any House in Europe they belong to the Roman Catholic Hapsburgs, and by no natural title whatever to the Prussian dynasty.

These reasons make it sufficiently evident that the claims for the new Empire are founded in untruth, in injustice, in stupid self-conceit and in impossibility. This new military construction may stand for a few years, though it is certain that France recovered will break its vertebra in pieces. But it will never be acknowledged to be the heir of the Holy Roman Empire. King William may as well set himself up as the successor of the Ptolemies in Egypt as of the illustrious Carlovingians in Germany. Rome alone is an insurmountable obstacle to the success of this insolent dream.

We come to the control of the Papal elections. The ambition to get authority over the Papal elections rests on the fact that several of the mediæval German Emperors possessed much power in this respect, and on the right, until lately existing, enjoyed by the leading Catholic States of Europe—as France, Spain and Austria—to hinder, as far as one act of suffrage would go, through their Ambassadors in Rome, the election of a Cardinal objectionable to them.

But the power the mediæval Emperors—happily destroyed forever by Pope Gregory VII.—used over the conclaves was a wicked usurpation; the faculty of veto exercised by the leading Catholic States was given to them not as a right, but as a thing of favor, because they were champions of the faith; the withdrawal of this concession is deserved, for the once Catholic governments are no longer Catholic; the Church has a right from God to be free in her elections, and the ruling house of Prussia is a Protestant House.

These facts added together, where is the right of Bismarck and his master to have any control whatever over a Pontifical election? There is no vestige of such a right. Were William a Roman Catholic, there would be some little plausible justice for the claim. As he is a bigoted Lutheran, and as he is a persecutor of the Church, he has less right for the claim than the Emperor of Turkey himself.

And so it will be. The great age of the Pope, his virtual imprisonment and the usurpation of Rome, the natural seat of Papal elections, by Victor Emmanuel, have distended this ambition to an immoderate and indecent degree. But "many a slip between the cup and the lip." The aged, venerable Pontiff, may survive all who complot against him. Cavour, the well-defined anti-Papal exemplar of Bismarck, had his cherished plans for making Popes; but, strong and young though he was, the octogenarian of the Vatican has seen him laid low and unforgiven under the eternal mould of the graveyard. There are many more startling examples of the same kind in modern Italian annals. The Chancellor and the Emperor are not so young. They may be the first to go to judgment. And even though the venerable Pope Pius soon died, what then? Certainly it is in the power of Bismarck and William to send troops into Rome, seize the cardinals, offer those prelates a candidate agreeable to the new Empire and then proclaim that the candidate thus offered was duly elected. But this is all they can do. The Catholic world would never accept for Sovereign Pontiff the man that should be declared Pope in this manner, and thus the ambitious operation would bring nothing to its doors but dismay.

The Emperor and his Minister are going too fast. They are not Catholics, but Lutherans, and, therefore, they should not intermeddle within the circle of Rome; and as, notwithstanding all their greatness, they are, in comparison with the Papacy, only specks in the course of the ages, history, one would think, might teach them that the Vatican will be still in perfect youth when the unfailing detrition of time will have left not a single undestroyed granule of the lying marble of their tombstones. Of Nero, who put the first Pontiff to death, there is no vestige to be found. But of that first Pontiff there is a monument which is the wonder of the world, and a jurisdiction that embraces all men. It is the voice of history that as Peter was so are his successors forever.

FASHIONABLE CAMP MEETIMGS.

Ocean Grove, Sea Cliff and Martha's Vineyard.

Sketches of the Grounds and Places—Who Are Expected and Likely To Be Present—Grant and Greeley Seeking Religious Recreation.

The Methodist camp meetings, which began as early as last April and have continued without cessation in one part of the country or another ever since, show very little signs of weakening or giving out yet. This week three of the largest and leading meetings will be held in Ocean Grove, near Long Branch, commencing on Tuesday next; in Sea Cliff Grove, near Glen Cove, beginning on the same day, and in Martha's Vineyard, the resort of New England Methodists, to open to-morrow. Shelter Island, on the northern shore of Long Island, has also been chosen for camp purposes, and on the 25th instant the first meeting will be inaugurated there. This also promises to become in time a second Martha's Vineyard.

OCEAN GROVE CAMP MEETING.

will probably take the lead this week. It is so convenient to the Branch and possesses such excellent bathing and boarding and lodging accommodations that there is every probability that a large concourse of New Yorkers and Philadelphians will be on the grounds. There are also ample opportunities for boating, fishing and other amusements, but the camp officials say that all such sports must cease during the hours of religious service. There are two good-sized lakes on the grounds, named respectively Wesley, about a mile long and 100 yards wide, and Fletcher, a little wider but not so long, and a smaller one named Carvosso Lake. There are three parks connected with the encampment, denominated respectively Evergreen Park, near the entrance and bounded on the north side by Wesley Lake; Central Park, towards the southwest end and lying close to Carvosso Lake, and Thomson Park, which lies toward the southeastern part of the grounds and verging also on the lower part of Wesley Lake. The streets and avenues are laid out at right angles, except in one strip in about the centre, running from Wesley Lake to Carvosso Lake. The avenues running north and south are named after the great lights of British and American Methodism, such as Clark, Cookman, Asbury, Heck, Embury, Webb, Olin, Pittman and Abbott. The cross streets are named respectively Ocean avenue, Beach, Central, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware avenues. A few short streets south of Thomson Park are named Sea View, Atlantic, Surf, Bath, Beach and Ocean avenues. A beautifully shaded pathway runs from the tenting grounds near Thomson Park down to the ocean, where are several bathing houses free for the use of the campers. There are two entrances to the grounds, by Main avenue and Broadway. Besides the parks above named there are four little parks, squares occupying about one block each.

OCEAN PATHWAY,

as the shaded walk from the rear of the preachers' stand is called, is twenty feet wide and almost as smooth as a floor, and hard, so that pedestrians can travel thereon with comfort. From the head of the avenue, looking toward the sea, the prospect is very fine. There are two bathing grounds, one near Wesley and the other near Fletcher Lake. The camp grounds are enclosed with a high picket fence, and admission is prohibited except by the gates, which are closed every night at half-past ten o'clock. They are opened at half-past five o'clock every morning except Sundays, when they are kept closed all day long. The usual regulation respecting Sunday coaches running to the ground is enforced. Lots which a couple of years ago could be bought for $50 apiece are now set at $250 to $500, and there is said to be something of a compliment to get them choice even at these prices. There are about twelve hundred and fifty building lots, 30x60 feet, on the ground, without including the tenting ground. Ministers are offered lots at $150 each if they will build upon them.

BOARD AND LODGING.

The prices of tents range from $4 to $20 each during the twelve days of camp meeting, and those on the front circle and on Lake Pathway bring $5 extra apiece. There are six boarding places kept by individuals on their own account, subject, however, to the rules of the association, that they shall not charge more than $1 a day to those who stay over one day or $1 50 for board and lodging per day when they can supply both. Transient visitors are charged fifty cents each for breakfast and tea and seventy-five cents for dinner. The association has erected four new boarding houses, with extensive accommodations for as many as may visit the grove at any time. There is a regular post office on the ground open all the year round, and a telegraph office open during the summer months. Better drinking water than exists at Ocean Grove, they say, cannot be found on the face of the earth, and fresh fish, vegetables, milk, fruits, meat and fowl are brought in every morning from the surrounding country. The underbrush and leaves have been cleared away, so that mosquitoes find no resting place there. There are about 200 cottages erected by lot owners on the ground, and these, together with 300 or 400 tents, give the place a very lively appearance. Mr. William P. Beck, Dr. Isaac M. Ward, a Presbyterian, from Newark, Mr. J. H. Thornley, Revs. J. S. Inskip, E. H. Stokes, George Hughes, H. B. Beegle the late Alfred Cookman, A. R. Lawrence and others have handsome cottages on the encampment. Between this city and Long Branch teams and boats run daily, and from the Branch to the Grove stages make connecting trips over a sandy beach road for six miles—a weary ride indeed it is. There is talk, however, of having a spur of the New Jersey Southern Railroad laid between the Branch and the Grove.

PRESIDENTS PRESENT AND PROSPECTIVE TO BE THERE.

There are a large number of persons now on the grounds, and President Grant and family and President-Expectant Greeley and family, Bishops Simpson and Harris and most of our leading New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia ministers are expected to be on the camp grounds at some time during its continuance.

SEA CLIFF GROVE ENCAMPMENT.

For personal and general convenience Sea Cliff Grove stands and probably will stand unequalled in the country. It is located conveniently—near enough to the city to be reached either by water or railroad within two hours and at a comparatively moderate cost. The grounds are very extensive, and the plan and improvements of the association are on a scale of magnificence. Since the National Camp Meeting Association held their meeting there last month, finishing touches have been given to the tabernacle and to the grounds and walks, and over a score of cottages have been erected by lot owners. Without including the tenting grounds, which are ample for one thousand or fifteen hundred tents, the open plateau is laid out in lots to the number of more than one thousand six hundred and eighty. Several have been erected and a plank stairs has been laid from the boat landing over the cliff upon the ground whereby foot passengers can escape the dust of the road over which the wagons and hacks run. They come on the grounds too by this means in a few minutes. The meeting which opens at this place on next Tuesday is designed as a union meeting for all the districts in the vicinity of New York and Brooklyn. The presiding elders will have charge of the day meetings. Several of the city churches have prayer meeting tents on the ground, and Bishop Harris is expected to be present most of the time, and possibly Bishop Simpson may go up for a day or two. For the greater comfort and convenience of tenters the grove has been partially cleared of underbrush, and very many of the tents have been pitched in more suitable locations north of the tabernacle. Every indication at present points to a successful season at the Home Camp Meeting. The grounds and the boarding and lodging arrangements have been described heretofore, and need not be repeated here.

NEW BATHING HOUSES

THE PROSPECT CAMP MEETING GROUNDS,

at Shelter Island, are rapidly approaching completion, and many cottages are building. The new hotel is rapidly filling with guests. Religious services were held in the camp meeting grove last Sunday by the Rev. Mr. Meredith, of Brooklyn. The meeting will open on the 25th instant and close in September. The camp ground may be reached by steamer daily from pier 4 North River, or by the Long Island Railroad to Greenport, and thence by ferry, twice each day. Persons bringing their own tents will obtain ground free.

OTHER CAMP MEETINGS.

Besides the meetings here referred to the following are also to be held during the week:—One at Jamesport, L. I., commencing on Monday; at Plainville, Conn., same day; near Burlington, Vt., on Tuesday; at Waynesborough, Va., on Thursday; at Flint Stone, Allegany county, Md., on Thursday. The meeting in Denville or "Camp Tabor" will continue, as will also that in Rowland's Woods, near Monmouth Junction, N. J.; at Wesley Grove, near Baltimore; at South Framingham, Mass., and Yarmouthport; at Portsmouth, Va., in full view of Chesapeake Bay and Hampton Roads; at Williamsburg and Goshen, near Cincinnati, and at Urbanna, O., where the National Association have been preaching holiness for a week; in Emory Grove, in the vicinity of Baltimore, and at Green Ridge and Cumberland City, W. Va. Camp meetings will be opened also during the week at New Creek, W. Va.; at Aurora, near Buffalo, N. Y., on Wednesday; on the old ground at Coventryville, Chester county, Pa., on Tuesday, and one in the Juniata Valley, Pa., which was opened on Friday, will be continued. There are others for circuits and districts in different parts of the country, and the promise is that the camp meetings will be held until the end of September.

SARATOGA.

The Races at the Watering Place.

FASHION AND FUN.

The Reign of Fashion After the Rain of the Water God.

THREE CAPITAL RACES.

Joe Daniels Winner of the Kenner Stakes, Defender the Summer Handicap and Silk Stockings the Kentucky Stakes.

SARATOGA, August 17, 1872.

The first day of the summer meeting is over, and the races are a success. Twenty-five thousand ladies and gentlemen have so pronounced them. Winners of pools are jubilant. Losers are hopeful for to-morrow. Owners are full of excitement, and some are covered with the glory of their horses, while others are content with the chances of success born from new entries. Stable boys are in agony, while riders bear themselves with the dignity of mortals to whose shoulders wings have recently been attached. They are almost as grave as when in an unlucky moment they arise from the dust. All men are to-day centaurs, and all women, if we would believe trailing lawn and illusion, are angels. From early morn there has been alone witnessed on every hand bustle and confusion, and the scene closed at nightfall upon a brilliant throng yet thrilling with the ecstacy of eager enjoyment.

THE POETRY OF THE RACES.

There was a grand crush upon the piazzas of the Grand Union and Congress Hall to-night, and they were brilliantly lighted and resplendent with beautiful women in rich toilets. A poet sat among them—with long flaxen hair and deep Byron collar, surrounded by a very democratic group. There were present in a circle about him Chief Justice Sanford E. Church, Samuel J. Tilden, Senator Jarvis Lord and General Hartwell Carver. The poet was asked to improvise something of the races. He began, with a fine spun drawl—"The sun went down upon the first day of the races." "No it didn't!" said a voice abruptly. "Beg pardon!" answered the poet demurely, "but positively I looked in the almanac. The sun went down at precisely ——"

A long ripple of laughter, ending in the crash of heavy, bass men's voices, followed, and the poet was drowned in a sea of small talk which at once arose about him.

THE STORM OF THURSDAY, which began in a drizzling rain in the early morning, and continued fitfully during the day, increased in volume with nightfall, and those immured in the walls of the immense quadrangular hotels they so much affect sullenly or poutingly voted them prisons. At dark the gutters ran like country brooks, and one had to wade from one hotel to the other. The ball which was to take place at the Congress Hall was postponed till this evening, and everybody seemed chagrined except, perhaps, the waiters and porters, moved listlessly about, or clung shrinkingly to their seats. The place was, in fact, shockingly dull, and those who could neither play billiards in the hotels, encounter the cat-like and muzzled monster at the Honorable John's Club House, nor drink themselves sublimely happy upon champagne cocktails or brandy punches, were wandering about with a hopeless look, only made more ghastly by the contrast with magnificently over-dressed ladies, who trailed across the horizon like a comet twice every five minutes.

DREAMS.

When those upon whom the patter of the rain had fallen so chillingly retired for the night they still heard the gurgling water from the gutters and the rattling of the rain against the glass. As they sank to sleep their busy brains

Betook themselves to linking
Fancy unto fancy,

And each saw from the pillow the day's disappointments and mixed with them a thousand vagaries. Jockeys dreamed of being thrown, and having their necks broken and shoulders dislocated, while they beheld their horses lying with broken legs and blood-dripping nostrils, and, as is not usually the case after such experiences, they had the exquisite pleasure of relating their experiences to their gaping-mouthed associates at the stable doors in the early morning, though their faces were a little pallid as they did so, and a soreness and feeling of a strain in the neck and shoulder, owing to colds caught, gave some color to their gloomy recital. Others wore a laughing, reckless, air of gayety and an appearance of "keeping a silent tongue." They had dreamed in the night how, amid the wildest excitement, they had won the race, while a sea of people covered with a foam of white handkerchiefs was surging around them. In this sea of humanity they saw standing alone the owner or a sweetheart, whose beaming face looking out upon them had heightened the pleasure they felt in dream land. The dreams of those who had invested in pools were of too sordid a nature to win the sympathy of any but professionals and "policy" speculators.

THE MORNING OF THE FIRST DAY

broke at last, and the last drop of rain having been wrung from the wet clouds they went floating away, white and fleecy, in the indigo blue of the sky. The reign of fashion here has been disputed by the rain of the dashing water god, but the Hon. John came to the rescue of his patrons, stipulating for a fine day, which he won with a heavy course. At eight o'clock the sun was scorching hot and began to reclaim the ground the water had encroached upon and to dry the face of the earth—the same face that Horace Greeley tickles that he may make it laugh. Notwithstanding the good offices of the great luminary, the streets showed what must be the heavy condition of the track over which the horses were to run, and there was much head-shaking and muttering. At nine o'clock the drooping spirit began to revive, and many of the more interested ones left for the course, a mile away from the hotels.

GOING TO THE RACES.

At ten o'clock great numbers of people in carriages and on foot, in omnibuses and carryalls began to follow. The scene along the route was picturesque in the extreme. Smith and Jones, of Gowanus, drove out in state wearing an air as decorous as if they were going to a funeral. Senators and distinguished orators of the law came along in improvised equipages or jumbled together in a "red bird" express wagon or a Gumptown stage coach. Delegations of men famous in the councils of Tammany drove by in close carriages, through the windows of which passers-by caught glimpses of spotless, diamonded shirt fronts and immaculate Greeley hats. Great numbers of pedestrians filled the footpaths, and Dolly Vardens were conspicuous among them by reason of their scarcity. Mr. O. M. Bassett, in a full suit of gray, corresponding to the color of his close-cut hair, rode past with McDaniel, his partner in the ownership of Harry Bassett. Then came a long procession of grave and reverend Senators, who purposed taking an airing from their arduous duties in the Barnard impeachment trial, and who were out in full force. The leaders of fashion followed, in landaus, coupés and drags, brilliant in ribbons, flowers and feathers. Some natty establishments were on the road with fine teams, and coachmen and footmen in bright livery.

ARRIVED AT THE COURSE,

the track was found in a fearfully heavy condition from the night's rain, but all seemed to have fully recovered from their dampened spirits. The entrance was thronged, while a long line of vehicles were drawn up on the carriage stand, and the grand stand was well filled. Officers were busy everywhere; the best of order was preserved from the start. Men with badges around their hats, with the word "Police" printed upon them, were in attendance at intervals and gave information respectfully to all who sought it at their hands. Some of the ablest of the metropolitan detective force, were circulating about in the midst of every gathering, and the moments sped on rapidly till the bugle call sounded from the judges' stand for the appearance of the horses.

THE GRAND STAND

was crowded with ladies and gentlemen, among whom were many celebrities. Miss Cutting, the pronounced belle of the season here, held a crowded court to the right of the entrance, but was only visible so far as her "Dolly Varden" hat was concerned to the profane looker-on. Charles Carrol Smith, whose fame in New York is indissolubly connected with "the German," sat near a group consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Morgan, Mr. C. P. Morgan, of the Clarendon, and Mrs. John R. White, a "society leader." Near by was Eli Perkins, gotten up regardless of expense in a natty suit, and he explaining to an enraptured circle of auditors why Greeley's "moon" did not shine in the pages of Saratoga in 1901. The toilets of the ladies were not so stunning as is usual upon such occasions, and was consequently a success in the eyes of some people of prudish tastes, while others regarded it only as a lamentable failure.

IN FRONT OF THE STAND

were gathered a large number of gentlemen interested in "that noble animal the horse" or in the equally winning and losing "hazard of the die." There were a large number of Kentuckians engrossed with the movements on the turf, and noticeable here and there from their jean unmentionables and the Gratz Brown ribbons of their hats. Numbers of the betting fraternity were perseveringly insisting that stamps are the only guarantees of integrity of opinion and that they "talk" louder than words an all equine questions. With such men it was no difficult matter to arrange a little wager on the result of the race, and they soon became as little "children takin' notes." Conspicuous beyond, and not of this group, was Mr. Morrissey, the de facto manager of the races, bulky as Byron's phantom duchess—perhaps a trifle more so. He was dressed in a gray mixed suit, and wore a high crowned straw hat, shading a face nearly lost in its thick, short growth of black beard. He was in a very quiet, thoughtful mood, and his mind evidently preoccupied by the coming contest.

THE START

elicited a murmur of satisfaction from the entire concourse, and every form was at once bent forward and every eye dilated to catch each movement of the horses as they sped along. Fair lips conned over the owners' names or sometimes lisped the jockeys' in their efforts to associate with them the colors worn, that they might hail the winner. Hoarse voices, from time to time called out the winning horse's name, and, in joyful or doleful accents, the lengths behind of the others, or bawled out, "Hats off! Hats off!"

THE RACING.

The track was in a horrible condition from the heavy rains of the preceding day and night; but as the sun burst out this morning in all its grandeur and the sky was clear the management decided at an early hour that the racing should go on. It was good, notwithstanding the rain.

Three races were on the card, the first being the Kenner Stakes, for three-year-olds, two miles. This was the third time this race has been run, it being inaugurated in 1870, and was won that year by General A. Buford's bay colt Enquirer, by Leamington, in 3:48¾, and in 1871 by Colonel McDaniel's chestnut colt Harry Bassett, in 3:35¾. Jo. Daniels won it yesterday in 3:49 on a much worse track than Enquirer had the day of his victory. Meteor ran a good second and London a fine third. They were all very much exhausted at the end. The stake amounted to $4,500.

The Summer Handicap was the second race. there were but three starters for it. Last year, there were five, and it was won by Hamburg after a beautiful finish with Barney Williams, in 4:01¾. Defender won it to-day in 4:24½.

The Kentucky Stakes have been run three seasons, having been won in 1870 by Harry Bassett in 1:51¼, and last year by Sue Ryder in 1:47¼. Silk Stockings won it to-day in capital style over the worst track ever two-year-olds were compelled to run on, making the mile in 1:52.

In the first race there were six starters out of the fifty-seven original entries. These were C. C. & R. H. Park's bay filly Experience Oaks, by Bonnie Scotland, dam Sallie, by Lexington; Isaac W. Pennock's bay colt (brother to James A. Connolly). by Vandal, dam Margravine, by Margrave; D. McDaniel's chestnut colt Jo Daniels, by Australian, dam Dolly Carter, by Glencoe; D. R. Harness' chestnut colt Meteor, by Asteroid, dam Maria Innis, by Yorkshire; William Jennings' bay colt Cape Race, by Lexington, dam imported Zone, by the Cure, and M. A. Littell's gray colt London, by Lightning, dam sister to Jerome Edgar, by Star Davis. Jo Daniels was the favorite over the field, at five to four. He won the race by a length, Meteor second, London third. Jo Daniel has a grand reputation. He is a race horse, second to none of his age. Meteor is another good one and the only three-year-old that ever beat Jo Daniels in a race. He was close to him to-day.

For the Summer Handicap there were six acceptances, but only three starters, the others having gone amiss. Those that came to the post were Thos. W. Doswell's bay filly Wine Sap, by Vandyke, dam Nina, by Boston, four years old; D. McDaniel & Co.'s chestnut colt Hubbard, by Planet, dam Minnie Mansfield, three years old, and John Morrissey's chestnut horse Defender, by John Morgan, dam Cyncoria, by Herald. Defender was the favorite over the field just before the start. He won a very easy race. Defender, when in condition, is a race horse at all distances, but he has never been in order since he came to the North. He ran well today, but he was not fully up to the mark in preparation. A few such races, however, will put him in condition, and then it will take a good horse to beat him at any distance.

The Kentucky Stakes had six starters, comprising Mr. Belmont's chestnut colt Silk Stocking, by Kentucky, dam Fluke, and chestnut filly Electra, by Kentucky, dam Bernice; Hunter & Travers' two, chestnut colt Reviler, by Censor, dam Jenny Rose, and imported black colt Strachino, by Parmesan, dam May Bell; Oden Bowie's bay colt Catesby, by Eclipse, dam Katie, by Two Bets; and D. McDaniel's chestnut filly Katy Pease, by Planet, dam Minnie Mansfield. Belmont's team were the favorites over the field. Silk Stocking won, Reviler being second and Catesby third. This was a capital race, and created as much excitement as the Kenner Stakes. There was a great deal of money won and lost on the event. Silk Stocking, the winner, is a magnificent chestnut colt, with four white stockings and a blaze face. He is of fine size, being fifteen and a half or more, and is formed like a matured horse. He is a race horse now.

THE FIRST RACE.

THE KENNER STAKES, for three-year-olds; $100 entrance, $50 forfeit; $1,500 to be added by the Association; two miles.

D. McDaniel's ch. c. Jo. Daniels, by Australian, dam Dolly Carter, by Glencoe (Roe)	1
D. R. Harness' ch. c. Meteor, by Asteroid, dam Maria Innis, by Yorkshire (Gray)	2
M. A. Littell's gr. c. London, by Lightning, dam by Star Davis (Tatton)	3
Mr. Jennings' b. c. Cape Race, by Lexington, dam imported Zone, by The Cure... (Haywood)	4
C. C. & R. H. Park's br. f. Experience Oaks, by Bonnie Scotland, dam Sallie, by Lexington (Gillen)	5
Isaac W. Pennock's b. c. by Vandal, dam Margravine, by Margrave (Shy)	6

Time, 3:49.

THE BETTING.

McDaniel	$105	510	450	200	150	550
Harness	30	100	75	45	40	120
Jennings	26	65	70	35	35	125
Littell	28	100	50	25	20	75
Parks	5	15	17	6	5	23
Pennock	20	66	60	15	25	70

THE RACE.

Pennock's colt had the best of the send off, London second, Meteor third, Jo Daniels fourth, Experience Oakes fifth, Cape Race sixth. Going around the upper turn London went to the front, Pennock's colt second, Jo Daniels third, Meteor fourth, Cape Race fifth, Experience Oakes sixth. At the quarter pole London led one length, Jo Daniels second, two lengths ahead of Pennock's colt, who was two lengths in front of Meteor, the latter being two lengths in advance of Cape Race, who was one length ahead of Experience Oaks. There was no change of place or position on the backstretch, and as they passed the half-mile pole London still showed the way by a length, Jo Daniels second, two lengths ahead of Meteor, the latter being four lengths in advance of Pennock's colt, Experience Oaks fifth, Cape Race sixth. There was no change of place around the lower turn, but as they came up the homestretch several changes took place. As the horses ran past the stand at the finish of the first mile Meteor was leading half a length, Jo Daniels second, two lengths ahead of London, Pennock's colt fourth, Experience Oaks fifth and Cape Race sixth. The latter ran into fourth place on the upper turn, and Pennock's colt dropped in the rear. Meteor continued to lead past the quarter pole one length, Jo Daniels second, two lengths ahead of London. These three colts seemed the only ones in the race at this time. As they ran down the backstretch, Jo Daniels took the lead near the half-mile pole, and was half a length ahead at that point, Meteor being a length and a half in front of London, who was half a dozen lengths ahead of Cape Race; Experience Oaks fifth; Pennock's colt far behind. Jo Daniels led one length around the lower turn, Meteor second, two lengths in front of London. As they came into the homestretch, Jo Daniels took the extreme outside, which was the hardest part of the track, Meteor the middle of the course and London the inside, which was much the heaviest; and as soon as they got into straight work a rattling struggle took place. Whip and spur were in vogue to the end, Jo Daniels winning a capital race by a short length, Meteor second, a length and a half ahead of London. The latter beat Cape Race six lengths, Experience Oaks fifth, Pennock's colt sixth. The time of the first mile was 1:56, the second 1:53, the heat 3:49, a most excellent race for such a track.

THE SECOND RACE.

THE SUMMER HANDICAP, for all ages, $100 entrance, half forfeit; only $20 if declared; $1,000 added. Two miles and a quarter:—

John Morrissey's ch. h. Defender, by John Morgan, dam Cynconia, by Herald, 5 years old (Gilpatrick)	1
D. McDaniel's ch. c. Hubbard, by Planet, dam Minnie Mansfield, 3 years old (McCabe)	2
Thomas W. Doswell's b. f. Wine Sap, by Van Dyke, dam Nina, by Boston, four years old (Gibson)	3

Time, 4:24½.

THE BETTING.

Defender	$305	300	900	650	600	300
Hubbard	230	240	400	265	250	120
Wine Sap	100	130	345	245	315	100

THE RACE.

Defender cut out the work after a very even start, but came very leisurely up the homestretch. As he passed the stand he led two lengths, Hubbard second, eight lengths in advance of Wine Sap. There was no change around the upper turn, but at the quarter pole Winesap closed up a few lengths and continued to close on Hubbard down to the backstretch. At the half mile pole Defender was three lengths ahead of Hubbard, the latter being two lengths in advance of the filly. Going around the lower turn Hubbard closed up a trifle and came away further from the filly; but as they came into the homestretch they were just two lengths apart. There was no change up the homestretch, and as they passed under the string Defender was leading two lengths under a strong pull, Hubbard second, a length and a half ahead of Wine Sap. Going around the upper turn Hubbard made a dash at Defender, but the latter soon shot away from him. Then Wine Sap ran up; but by the time she reached Hubbard's head she lost her grip and fell back. From the half-mile pole to the end it was play for Defender. He had both the others whipped at that point. He opened the gap around the lower turn and entered the homestretch six lengths ahead of the other two, who were struggling on side by side. Defender galloped up through the mud to the stand a winner by ten lengths, Hubbard second, half a length ahead of Wine Sap. The time of the two miles and a quarter was 4:24½. The value of the handicap was $1,690.

THE THIRD RACE.

THE KENTUCKY STAKES, for two-year-olds; $100 entrance; $50 forfeit; $1,000 added. One mile.

A. Belmont's ch. c. Silk Stocking, by Kentucky, dam imported Fluke (Floyd)	1
Hunter & Travers' ch. c. Reviler, by Censor, dam Jennie Rose (McCue)	2

THE BETTING.

Belmont	$250	700	1,200	850	300
Bowie	175	400	410	315	120
Hunter & Travers	55	200	300	200	100
McDaniel	110	265	760	360	150

THE RACE.

The youngsters had a very good start, but in an instant almost afterwards they were tailed out several lengths apart, Reviler leading, Katy Pease second, Silk Stochino third, Strachino fourth, Electra fifth, Catesby sixth. At the quarter pole they were in the positions given above, about two lengths apart. Going down the backstretch Reviler kept the lead, but the youngsters drew closer together and some changes took place. At the half-mile pole Reviler still showed the way, Katy Pease second, Silk Stocking third, Electra fourth, Catesby fifth, Strachino sixth. At the three-quarter pole Catesby was fourth, but as he came into the homestretch he got into the pocket and was kept there for some time. When he got out he was too close to home to shut up the gap and get to the front; but he nevertheless made a gallant run home, securing a place. He was the worst ridden colt in the race, and the stupid boy who rode him should have a lecture at least. Silk Stocking won the race by a short head, Reviler second, half a length in front of Catesby. Strachino was fourth, Katy Pease fifth, Electra sixth. Time of the mile 1:52, which was capital time. The value of the stakes was $3,200.

There will be three races on Monday, the first being a steeple chase, the second a dash of a mile and a half, and the third a selling race of a mile and three-quarters.

A SAD CASE OF POISONING.

Death of a Respected Brooklyn Citizen—The Apothecary of the Brooklyn Navy Yard Poisoned by a Draught of the Tincture of Aconite Taken by Mistake.

As the officers and crew of the United States receiving ship Vermont, Captain John Watters, at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, were mustering in preparation for the weekly fire exercise on board of the ship yesterday morning, at ten o'clock, the whole ship's company were thrown into a state of consternation as the word was passed to the Executive Officer that the apothecary of the ship, Mr. Maynard, had taken a dose of poison, and that the presence of the Medical Officer was required without delay in the "sick bay." Dr. Streets, the ship's surgeon, immediately responded to the call, and upon arriving in the "sick bay" found Mr. Maynard already under the influence of the fatal drug. Mr. Maynard told the surgeon that, having been attacked with cramps in the stomach, he had gone into the dispensary with the intention of taking a spoonful of tincture of ginger, and that he had not found out his mistake till he had swallowed the draught and discovered that he had taken a spoonful of tincture of aconite root, which is a deadly poison, and is so powerful in its effects that when taken in poisonous doses it rapidly produces paralysis, numbness, coma and ultimately death. The regular dose of the drug in medicine is from two to ten drops, diluted in water. Without loss of time Dr. Streets administered the proper antidotes, and with a stomach pump tried to relieve the unfortunate man; but the drug had with lightning rapidity already diffused itself through his system, and it was found impossible to relieve him in that manner. Stimulants and other antidotes were persevered in, but with no good result, as the sufferer had already lapsed into a state of unconsciousness. The symptoms, which at first were persistent vomiting and retching, were quickly followed by insensibility and coma, the extremities became cold and paralyzed, and in spite of all efforts Mr. Maynard expired shortly after eleven o'clock—about an hour and a half after taking the poison. The deceased had, unfortunately, been shortsighted for a number of years, and, having gone into the dispensary without his glasses, committed the unfortunate and fatal mistake of taking one drug for the other. It so happened that the bottle containing the poison was placed next to that containing the ginger on the dispensary shelf; and owing to the hurry consequent on the fire-quarter exercise the mistake is easily accounted for, as there is but little difference in the color of the two drugs. Mr. Maynard was a man of sober principles, and was to have left last night for Philadelphia, with his wife, on a short leave of absence. He was rated on board as a first class apothecary and druggist in the United States Navy, and the high esteem he was held in on board by the officers and crew for his kindness and affability has cast a gloom over the whole ship. The remains were removed from the Vermont yesterday afternoon, at five o'clock, and conveyed to his residence, 107 Park avenue, from where his funeral will take place.

ANOTHER JERSEY MURDER.

A Cumberland County Hotel Keeper Brained by a Drunken Delawarian.

Bridgeton, a place in Cumberland county, South Jersey, has had its tragedy too. On Thursday last a Wilmington (Del.) fire company, known as Fame, visited Bridgeton. They numbered 500 strong, and included some pretty hard cases. These tried to take possession of the dining room of Davis & Son's Hotel. The efforts of the proprietors of the house to eject them met with opposition from the rowdies, who were joined by quite a number of their friends, and made a brutal assault upon Mr. Charles O. Davis, giving him a severe cut upon the forehead; his son, George M., received a severe blow upon the temple. Officers were soon on the ground and arrested one of the principals and removed him to the lockup, despite the efforts of his friends to rescue him. George M. Davis was immediately carried to a bed and physicians summoned, when he was found to be in a dangerous condition. He was struck between two and three o'clock in the afternoon, and became insensible about an hour and a half afterward, and notwithstanding the efforts of the physicians he remained unconscious till the last moment, and died towards midnight on Thursday.

The man said to have inflicted the fatal wound is named William Sweeny, and was at once taken into custody. He is held.

MASSACHUSETTS CRISPINS.

The Strike at Lynn Ended—The Factories Started Again and the Prices Agreed Upon.

LYNN, Mass., August 17, 1872.

The Reporter this morning says the Crispin strike is virtually ended. Nearly all the manufactories that stopped have started again, but some of them with a diminished force. The manufacturers find little difficulty in procuring all the help they require. The question of prices has been settled between the employers and the employed, who have returned to work in an amicable manner. The only point insisted upon by the manufacturers has been that their workmen should declare themselves independent of any organization, and free to carry out their own contracts without dictation or hindrance.

LOWELL, August 17, 1872.

Very severe showers with a southwest wind prevail this morning. The amount of rain which has fallen this week up to ten o'clock A. M. to-day is four and one-quarter inches. Reports from the country are to the effect that the brooks and streams are all overflowed and the low lands inundated. The coffer dam for the water works at Hunter's Falls, on the Merrimack, was carried away last night and the work will have to be abandoned for the present and probably for the season.

AN UNKNOWN MAN FOUND DROWNED.

FORT HAMILTON, N. Y., August 17, 1872.

The body of an unknown man was found at Bay Ridge to-day. It was dressed in cassimere pants, Dolly Varden coat, white shirt, white flannel undershirt, gray drawers and gaiter shoes. A gold button was found in the shirt collar. Deceased was about thirty years of age and apparently had been two or three days in the water.

LONG BRANCH.

Race of the Hoeydelphia Jockey Club—Doctor Wins the First and Emma Robertson the Second Race—Heavy Track, but Fine Racing—Arrival of the President.

LONG BRANCH, August 17, 1872.

The President, accompanied by General Porter, arrived here at noon to-day.

The promised race by gentlemen riders, belonging to the Hoeydelphia Jockey Club, lately formed by a number of "young bloods," came off at three o'clock this afternoon. The rainy weather almost prevented the race. At an early hour this morning Pluvius showed no sign of relaxation, and the ardor of the brave spirits who made up the race was considerably dampened; for it seemed as if they would be obliged to postpone their cherished sport. But towards noon the rain ceased, though the sky was still overcast with clouds that threatened a renewed opening of the sluices of heaven. In spite of the unpropitious state of the weather the Hoeydelphians refused to be baffled. They assembled in conclave and determined to brave it out, although it seemed almost certain that ladies would be precluded from gracing the occasion with their presence, and the race be thus deprived of the softening, incentive element essential to its brightness and interest. This consideration agitated their minds for a while, but about half-past twelve o'clock the sun broke forth and dissipated all gloomy forebodings. By two o'clock there was a select, brilliant attendance on the race course. Carriage after carriage deposited at the club house their precious freight of fair ladies and escorts, and at three o'clock the eyes of a numerous assemblage were fixed upon the happy Hoeydelphians, and inspired them to deeds of daring.

The badge, or insignia, of the Hoeydelphia Club is curious and unique. It consists of a diminutive tin plate, with spoon and fork attached crosswise, and a cup, suspended by a blue ribbon. The tin plate bears the inscription, "Hoeydelphia, Long Branch."

Among the distinguished persons present were Lieutenant Fred Grant, Mr. T. P. Howell, the Misses Howell, Mr. Theodore H. Myers and lady, with Miss Dora Hart; Mr. Charles Cooper and family, Mr. H. W. Brevoort and family, Colonel McAllister and family, Hon. James R. Durand and family, Messrs. H. S. Leech and D. C. Leech, Miss Agnes Rennie, Mr. G. W. Peters, Mr. Ralph Newton, Miss Margie Murphy, Mrs. Chauncey Depew, Mrs. Hegeman and others.

THE FIRST RACE

was for a purse of $500, mile heats. The following horses were the starters:—Emma Robertson, ridden by Mr. Harry Blessing; Hotspur, by Mr. W. A. Perry; Lilly of the West, by Mr. H. W. Brevoort; Doctor, by Mr. Stoughtenburg, and Little Jack Horner, by Mr. F. Durand.

There was lively betting in making up the pools last evening. Doctor was the favorite on the race track, Hotspur the second and the other three horses were the field.

The judges' stand was occupied by Mr. R. G. Murphy as the starter, Messrs. Harry and David Leech as the judges. Mr. T. H. French officiated as the president with becoming dignity. The West End Hotel band was on the track, and under the leadership of Mr. Meyer discoursed excellent music.

THE FIRST RACE.

The horses shot away at the tap of the drum at three o'clock, Doctor taking the lead and Lilly of the West following second. As they passed the half-mile pole Doctor obtained the lead and kept it, closely followed by Emma Robertson, with Lilly of the West half a length behind. Coming up the backstretch Doctor showed in front, closely pressed by Emma, but the former passed under the string the winner by half a length, with Little Jack Horner, Lilly of the West and Hotspur distanced. Time, 1:59½.

In the second heat only two horses—Doctor and Emma Robertson—took part. They made a good start, Doctor taking the lead and holding it the entire race, winning by about three lengths. Time, 2:08.

THE SECOND RACE

was a mile dash for the Consolation Purse of $250, presented by Mr. Theodore H. Myers. The following three horses took part:—Little Jack Horner, ridden by Mr. F. Durand; Lilly of the West, by Mr. H. W. Brevoort, and Hotspur, by Mr. W. A. Perry. Hotspur took the lead, but on reaching the quarter pole Little Jack Horner was ahead, and kept the lead, winning by a length, with Lilly of the West second and Hotspur third.

There was a dinner at the club house after the race. Twenty-four gentlemen participated. Speeches and songs enlivened the affair, in which Mr. George C. Hoey and Mr. W. A. Perry distinguished themselves, causing much merriment to those present.

A DRESS HOP.

There was a dress hop at the West End Hotel this evening, which was, as usual, attended by the élite of the place.

ARRIVALS.

Among the latest arrivals at the West End are General Stewart L. Woodford and lady, General McCook and family, Ohio; Mr. A. R. Gavett, and Mr. and Mrs. Paterson, Philadelphia, and others.

TWO WOMEN DROWNED.

A girl, eighteen years old, belonging to Hennessy's cottage, was found drowned in front of the West End Hotel at four o'clock this afternoon.

Four servant girls were bathing this evening, and were overcome by the heavy surge. Two were saved easily, and the third was rescued when nearly drowned by a resident at the West End Hotel, named Henry Woodruff, at the risk of his life. She was resuscitated after an hour's exertion. The fourth girl is lost. This makes the second death by drowning within four hour's this afternoon.

AQUATIC.

The Harlem River regatta will take place in the first or second week of September.

The Gulick Boat Club will have its annual regatta during the first week of next month.

The Dauntless Boat Club have appointed delegates to the Harlem Navy.

The boat clubs of the whole country, it is thought, will be well represented at the approaching National Convention of Amateur Oarsmen to be held in this city.

The Gramercy boys entertained the Gulicks and Atlantics last Sunday at their boat house.

SUPPOSED TERRIBLE BUTCHERY.

Horrible Tragedy—Crews of the Towboat Helen Brooke and a Trading Vessel Murdered in Cold Blood.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., August 17, 1872.

Early this morning a fisherman discovered the little steamer Helen Brooke floating down stream, near Head Cheeks Chute, some ten miles above here, and apparently abandoned. He rowed out to the steamer, made a line fast, and pulled her towards the bank, but before reaching it saw a negro, with a shot gun on his knee, in a sitting position asleep on the lower deck, who, as soon as the boat struck the bank started up, leaped ashore and ran into the woods.

The fisherman then boarded the steamer and found traces of a desperate struggle having taken place and the decks wet with blood. He then came to this city and reported what he had done and seen. Subsequently the Grand Tower, from St. Louis, arrived here, bringing a message from the magistrate at Bradley's Landing, eighteen miles above here, stating that the crew of the Helen Brooke and the proprietors and families of a trading boat which the Brooke had towed up there had been murdered and the boat plundered. Assistance was at once despatched on the steamer John Overton.

The report is that Captain William Pott and his brother, the proprietors of the trading boat, together with their wives and two daughters, were all murdered and their bodies thrown into the river.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

Rear Admiral Pennock will be relieved of the command of the Portsmouth Navy Yard on 5th October, with orders to proceed to San Francisco by 15th October and assume command of the North Pacific station. The United States ship California will be his flagship and will meet him at that place. He will be accompanied by Captain De Krafft, also on duty at the Portsmouth Navy Yard. The successor of Pennock has not been named.

Naval Orders.

WASHINGTON, August 17, 1872.

Commander Carpenter is ordered to equipment duty in the Portsmouth Navy Yard; Commander Luce, to equipment duty in the Boston Navy Yard; Lieutenant Commander Hoff, Lieutenant Amory, to the North Pacific station; Paymaster Stephenson, to the Lackawanna, Asiatic station; Rear Admiral Pennock, to assume command of the North Pacific station; Captain Fairfax, from the Portsmouth Navy Yard, and placed on waiting orders; Captain English, from special duty, and ordered to duty as executive officer in the Portsmouth Navy Yard; Captain Spicer, from equipment duty in the Boston Navy Yard, and placed on waiting orders; Commander De Krafft, from equipment duty in the Portsmouth Navy Yard, and ordered as Chief of Staff to the North Pacific station; Lieutenant Maynard, from torpedo duty, and ordered to the North Pacific station.

AN M. C. INDIGNANT.

CHARLESTON, S. C., August 17, 1872.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

The statement of the New York World of the 13th instant, that I had written a letter declaring myself for Horace Greeley, is false and malicious.

R. C. DE LARGE,
M. C. Second Congressional District, S. C.

THE POLITICAL HEADQUARTERS.

Saturday is always a dull day at the various political headquarters, and yesterday was no exceptioon to the rule. At the Glenham Hotel everything was remarkably quiet, as indeed it has been for the past few days.

A gentleman from North Carolina gave some details of the feeling that prevails in that State since the election. He says that extensive frauds have been practiced and that the republicans do not venture to deny that such is the case. He thinks that Greeley and Brown will be certainly elected in November, as the unfair practices that have been resorted to have been productive of great good to the liberal cause.

A Jersey politician predicts that Jersey will give Greeley the largest majority she has ever given to any Presidential candidate. The democrats and the liberal republicans are working most harmoniously together and are leaving no stone unturned to secure a great victory. Jersey is alive with enthusiasm, and the influence of such men as Governor Randolph and Governor Parker is productive of splendid results.

A letter from Illinois, addressed to a private gentleman in this city by a prominent Chicago lawyer, states that a careful canvass of the State has been made, all classes of the population having been talked to, and that it is almost certain that the liberal ticket will be elected by at least ten thousand majority.

Among the callers was General Banks, whose speech on Wall street has been postponed. Colonel Allen left for Long Branch, to be absent until Monday.

The Democratic Headquarters.

Considerable routine business was transacted at the democratic headquarters, and there were a large number of callers, but none of them were of more than local prominence. The advices received from all parts continue to be favorable, and if they can be relied upon a sweeping victory will be achieved by Greeley in November.

The Grant Headquarters.

Colonel Chandler has again left the Grant headquarters to be absent some days. There seems to be an alarming scarcity of news, the clerks when applied to for information invariably replying that there is nothing to communicate. Whether this can be ascribed to the laziness which the heat has produced or some other cause it is difficult to say.

THE HUNGARIANS.

Ratification Meeting of the Hungarian Grant and Wilson Campaign Club.

The newly formed Hungarian Grant and Wilson Campaign Club, Mr. William N. Loew presiding, held its second meeting at its headquarters, 385 Broome street, last night, for the purpose of formally ratifying the nominations of the "great" republican party. The chairman delivered a stirring opening address, saying that political parties are the bearers of the history of a nation. They must exist. In this country the republicans and democrats are now the opposing parties, and they have the same sacred rights of existence as the Deakists and the followers of Tisza have in Hungary, or as the liberals and conservatives have in England. But the party lines must be closely drawn, and while I honor every man who stands up manfully to defend his convictions, and while I respect every man who fights in the ranks of a noble minority, I despise—I accuse of cowardice and treachery—any man and any party which, for the simple sake of momentary success, dares to debauch and to prostitute himself or the party with elements which are strange to his being—who dares to sacrifice the very nature of his being. And, looking over the field of the political arena, what a disgraceful sight do we behold!

M. EDWARD J. CRAMER, in addressing the meeting, congratulated the assemblage on the progress they had made in their organization and their efforts to abide by that party which in the past had saved the country and which in the future will guide it in the wake of progress and prosperity. Who was the present leader of the democratic party? Horace Greeley. What qualifications did he possess? His knowledge about farming and passing a busy life in running for all sorts of offices, to be elected to stay at home! He was represented as a harbinger of peace, while in fact he was an ever-busy advocate of a policy of annihilation. There was no guarantee that that political windmill in the past will not be a political windmill in the future. As the New York Tribune shouted in 1868, so did they shout to-day, to support at all hazard the republican party.

The next speaker was Dr. Gustav Trescotte, who severely criticised the course of Senator Schurz, and a series of resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting were read and adopted by an enthusiastic vote. Communications were read from General George H. Sharpe, Weil Von Gernsback, G. Ehrlich and prominent Hungarian residents, and from Stewart L. Woodford.

THE CONVENTION OF THE IRISH UNIONS.

The meeting of the Irish societies of the city and county of New York, which was to have been held at 42 Prince street, did not result as successfully as might have been supposed. Five delegates from each of the temperance and church societies were to have been present, but in some cases there were organizations not represented by one. The object of the Convention, as announced by the chairman, was to revise bylaws, collect dues and re-arrange the constitution in such a manner as would tend to the more perfect consolidation of the Unions. The theory of this was discussed by several of the members, some arguing that it belonged to each society to alter its own constitution, and not to the whole societies there convened. The gathering, however, being very small, very little business of importance transpired. Nothing was heard from the committee appointed at the last meeting to transact business relative to the assisting the orphans of the Catholic Protectory, recently destroyed by fire; nor was there any report from the Committee on the Revision of Bylaws. The meeting, on the whole, was a failure.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

The Goat Island Job To Be Abandoned—Agreement of the Committee of a Hundred with the Central Railroad Company—Politics, Cutting, Robbery and Suicide.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 17, 1872.

A sub-committee of the Committee of a Hundred has agreed with Governor Stamford on a basis of compromise with the Central Railroad Company on the terminus question. The Goat Island project is to be abandoned, and the Central Company will construct a bridge at Ravenswood across the bay and a road thence along the water front to Mission Bay, where the final terminus of the Central, Southern and San Joaquin Valley Roads will be fixed. A track is also to be run from the terminus through the city to North Beach, freight to be delivered along it without extra charge. The city, on its part, is to modify the surveys of Mission Bay, and give a subsidy of $2,500,000 in six per cent bonds.

The ship Mary Bell sailed from Puget Sound, leaving behind the first mate, shot through the lungs, the seaman who shot him, and who in turn had been shot in the head, and two of the crew who were witnesses of the mutiny.

The Susanville stage was robbed near Reno, Nevada, after a brisk fight between passengers and highwaymen. Nobody was killed.

Hattie Wilson and Mrs. Thompson committed suicide in the same house in Virginia City yesterday by taking laudanum.

A large meeting of Germans, in the interest of Grant, was held here last evening.

A well known laundryman, named George Hallet, was stabbed, and as it is supposed, fatally, this evening, by Catherine McDonald, a domestic in his employ, who had quarrelled with Mrs. Hallett.

The steamer Colorado, which sailed for Japan and China to-day, carried $1,618,300 treasure. The Panama steamer had only $17,000 in specie on board.

Janin, who was sent out by the first diamond company, having returned without reaching the alleged diamond fields, has declined to give the press any information. Diamond stock is not in demand. Nevertheless an expedition, consisting of ten men, has been fitted out by a new company and left to-day. Several new companies are forming.

SUNSTROKES YESTERDAY.

Fritz Heller, aged forty-eight, of Bushwick avenue and Jackson street, Brooklyn, while at work on pier 39 East River, was prostrated by heat. Recovered and left for home.

Patrick McEntee, aged thirty-seven, no home, was found sunstruck in White street. Taken to Park Hospital.

George W. Ellison, aged forty-four, of 74 Norfolk street, was overcome by heat and taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Bridget Welsh, aged thirty-three, residing at 314 Mott street, was found sunstruck in the street. Recovered and taken home.

William Kassemhorn, aged twenty-one years, of 154 East Fourth street, was prostrated by heat while at work. Attended by Dr. Roster and sent home.

Antone Shun, aged sixty-five years, of 230 York street, Brooklyn, overcome with heat in Pearl street. Attended and sent home.

A. O. McGrew, aged forty-four, of Greenpoint, a reporter, was found in a basement at the corner of Reade street and Broadway and taken to the Park Hospital.

An unknown man, aged thirty, was found dead in a doorway of 25 Third avenue. Cause of death unknown; supposed to be from heat, as he was seen walking through the streets a short time before by Officer Maskey, of the Seventeenth precinct. Coroner notified.

ANOTHER HEAVY BOND ROBBERY.

A Splendidly Worked-up Case—Peddling Western Bonds in a New York Market—Spencer Pettis and Dr. Parks in Quod.

Last Monday an individual, calling himself Dr. A. J. Parks, called at the office of Anfenger & Ehrenreich, No. 33 Pine street, and left with the firm bonds of the St. Paul and Pacific Railroad to the value of $16,000, requesting them to sell the same to the best advantage. Accordingly the firm issued a circular to the effect that they had the bonds in their possession for sale, and requesting bids. This document was sent around to the principal banking houses and brokers, among others to Jay Cooke & Co. and Merrill, Tilney & Co., of No. 11 Wall street. The first-mentioned firm offered 61 and the other 61½ cents on the dollar. With a view, however, to increasing their offer if necessary Merrill, Tilney & Co. telegraphed to Williams Brothers & Dunbar, bankers, St. Paul, Minn., requesting them to "make best bid for $16,000 St. Paul and Pacific bonds."

Now, it appears that some time since the Minneapolis Bank, of Minneapolis, was robbed of $18,000 in bonds, $16,000 of which were the identical bonds Dr. Parks had left with Messrs. Anfenger & Ehrenreich for sale, and when received Merrill, Tilney & Co.'s telegram they at once notified the Minneapolis Bank of the fact. This notification resulted in the following despatch:—

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., August 15, 1872.

To J. L. WORTH, Cashier National Park Bank, New York:—

Williams Brothers & Dunbar, bankers, St. Paul, received the following telegram to-day:—"Make best bid for 16,000 St. Paul and Pacific real estate loan, due ninety-two, interest June and December, offered at sixty-five. Eight thousand small denominations. Signed Merrill, Tilney & Co., bankers, New York." These are the bonds stolen from us. Will you take all necessary measures at once to secure them and the thief? There were stolen at the same time $2,000, seven per cent bonds, Minneapolis, and $1,500, town of Carver.

R. J. BALDWIN, Cashier.

On receipt of this Mr. William K. Kitchen, President of the Park Bank, sent for Captain Sampson, the well known Wall street detective, and, stating the whole case, requested him to take it in hand and spare no trouble or expense in endeavoring to sift the matter to the bottom, remarking that he might draw on him for whatever was necessary. With his usual energy Sampson set about

HIS ARDUOUS TASK.

He first called on Merrill, Tilney & Co., and asked if they were negotiating for the bonds in question. Yes, they were; were negotiating with Messrs. Anfenger & Ehrenreich for them. Sampson knew the gentlemen composing this latter firm—knew them to be upright, square business men, and therefore determined to at once see them. He called in at their office, and during an interview with Mr. Anfenger explained the whole affair so far as known to him, and requested to know from whom he got the bonds. Mr. Anfenger explained that Dr. Parkes had left them with him, as above stated, taking the gentleman wholly into his confidence. Captain Sampson requested him to get the bonds for him. This was agreed to, and the two arranged between them that Sampson, under an assumed name, should offer sixty-two cents and that Anfenger was to keep Parkes busy by littlepetty delays in the negotiation, so as to allow Sampson to telegraph to Minneapolis and get the numbers of the bonds or some other information in regard to them by which they and PARKES COULD BE HELD.

This worked most admirably; but Sampson was unable to get the desired information, as the following telegram in reply to his (in which he stated that he could get bonds and prisoner if proof was sent) will show:—

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., August 16, 1872.

WILLIAM K. KITCHEN, President National Park Bank:—

Seventeen five hundred dollar bonds. Thirty-two hundred. Fifty interest coupons collected by you June 3. Cannot give numbers yet. R. J. BALDWIN, Cashier.

This, Sampson thought, would not do, so he determined to gain more time on Parkes in which to collect evidence. To this end he instructed Mr. Anfenger to say to Dr. Parkes that Colonel Henry Cunningham—who was, of course, none other than Sampson himself—had been unexpectedly called out of town on account of sickness in his family, who were stopping in the country, but that he would return again the next morning (Saturday) and would leave a check for bonds with him (Anfenger) at eleven o'clock. By eleven o'clock the next morning Sampson had made up his mind to and so met him at Anfenger & Ehrenreich's when he came for his money. A carriage was called, and the Doctor and Sampson being comfortably seated inside started for Police Headquarters. On the way up the officer asked his prisoner where he got the bonds, and was informed that they were given him by the notorious Spence Pettis.

Parks having been locked up, the next business in order was the arrest of the gentle Spence. Sampson requested Captain Irving's assistance in this matter, and having previously learned that the object of their search was to call at Park's office, 52 Broadway, during the afternoon of yesterday for the purpose of getting the money for his bonds, they at once repaired to that vicinity and laid in wait for their game. They had not been watching a great while when they noticed a somewhat notorious individual by the name of Steve Gordon closely watching them. On discovering that he was observed Gordon left, and as soon as told Sampson to follow him, remarking at the same time that wherever he found him he would find Pettis also. Sampson started, and going across the street entered the building in which Parks' office is situated and passed on up stairs, and then through a long passage way towards the rear of the establishment where, on looking over the staircase towards Parks' office, he saw Gordon and Spence Pettis in earnest conversation. Of course the latter was at once arrested and taken to the Central Office, where he now occupies a cell near his friend Dr. Parks. On telegraphing to Minneapolis that he had arrested the men and obtained the bonds, Sampson was urgently requested to retain both until the necessary evidence can be forwarded.

A BRUTAL POLICEMAN.

A Pedler Clubbed Insensible—Severe Reprimand to a Blue-coated Preserver of the Peace.

Yesterday afternoon John Flynn, a sober, industrious pedler, stopped his wagon on the corner of Thirty-ninth street and Eighth avenue, to go into a house. When he came out Officer Fitzgerald, of the Twentieth precinct, who scarcely ever arrests a prisoner whom he does not unmercifully maltreat, ordered him peremptorily to drive away. This Flynn refused to do, saying he had a license. Fitzgerald sprung upon him and struck him with all his force on the head with his club, inflicting a severe scalp wound. Flynn turned upon his brutal assailant and tried to get away from him, but the blue-coated brute renewed his assault and beat him on the head till it was a mass of cuts, bruises and blood. Almost fainting Flynn allowed himself to be led away and taken to Jefferson Market.

Justice Cox asked the charge against the prisoner. The "preserver of the peace," in a stammering manner, replied, "Disorderly conduct." When asked who clubbed him in such a fearful manner Fitzgerald said, "I did." Justice Cox asked why he did it and received the reply that he refused to go with him. Justice Cox gave Fitzgerald a severe reprimand, and said he would hesitate very little in taking a charge against him for assault. He discharged Flynn, to go to the Police Commissioners and make a complaint against Fitzgerald.

A RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

A Train on the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad Thrown Off the Track.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., August 17, 1872.

The evening express train coming East on the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad last evening was thrown from the track by a creek bridge that had been undermined by high water, about two miles north of this city. The engine, tender, baggage car and one coach were considerably damaged.

John Kelly, of Albany, a brakeman, was caught between two cars and probably fatally injured. Conductor Merrihew, the engineer, fireman and baggage master were slightly injured. The passengers escaped unhurt.

The same creek is interfering with the running of trains on the Syracuse and Binghamton Railroad. The travel of the Utica and Chenango Valley Railroad was delayed last night and this morning.

CENTRAL PARK METEOROLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

Abstract of Report for the Week Ending at Two P. M., August 17, 1872.

Barometer.—Mean, 30.025 inches; maximum at 12 P. M., August 15, 30.144; minimum at 2 A. M., August 14, 29.912; range, .232.

Thermometer.—Mean, 79.3 degrees; maximum at 4 P. M., August 14, 93; minimum at 1 A. M., August 16, 70; range, 23.

Rain Fall.—August 12—Rain from 3:30 A. M. to 7 A. M.; amount of water, .34 inch; August 12, from 7:15 P. M. to 12 P. M.; amount of water, .01; August 13, rain from 0h. 0m. A. M. to 1:45 A. M.; amount of water, .06; August 13, rain from 9:15 A. M. to 9:30 A. M.; amount of water, .01; August 13, rain from 9:15 P. M. to 11 P. M.; amount of water, .13; August 15, rain from 0h.0m. A. M. to 0h. 30m. A. M.; amount of water, .04; August 15, rain from 5:45 P. M. to 6 P. M.; amount of water, .02; August 16, rain from 0h. 0m. A. M. to 2:30 A. M.; amount of water, .33; August 16, rain from 11 A. M. to 9 P. M.; amount of water, 1.24; August 17, rain from 1:30 A. M. to 4:15 A. M.; amount of water, .01; August 17, rain from 9 A. M. to 9:30 A. M.; amount of water, .04; August 17, rain from 11 A. M. to 11:30 A. M.; amount of water, .03.

Total amount of water for week, 2.26 inches.

Distance travelled by the wind during the week, 747 miles.

The Fever Ship.—Thousands of people who each day have passed within sight of the Spanish steam ram Numancia, lying with her freight of pestilence in our Upper Bay, will rejoice to hear that she has been taken ten miles further from the city. So, too, will every one of the two million people in New York and the near-lying cities who though, perhaps, not actually afraid of yellow fever contagion from the ship under her severe sanitary regulations and the strict surveillance of the Quarantine authorities, breathe more freely on contemplating the matter at the Southwest Spit. Yellow Jack is one of those acquaintances to whom only "distance lends enchantment," and we may thank the newspapers and Commissioner Blunt that the Numancia is further off than yesterday.

The Work of Pacification in Mexico.—From Monterey, by way of New Orleans, we are again assured that the work of national pacification is progressing satisfactorily in Mexico. General Rocha reports the surrender of several notable revolutionist leaders, concluding his despatch to the seat of government with the words, "I am positive the revolution has terminated." Wonderful news from Mexico!

From Australasia we have, by way of San Francisco, a telegraph report in detail of the latest news from the Antipodes. The despatch goes to confirm our first statement of a great and beneficial industrial advance in the colonies, despite the disturbing influences of party politics and of Church influence made subservient to the uses of politicians. Intensely cold weather prevailed in the southern provinces of New Zealand, heavily laden teams crossing the Wapore River on the ice.

The Week in Wall Street wound up with gold at 115¼, or one-half per cent lower than it was the previous week or before the recent heavy imports of foreign goods, the introduction at this port during the past week having been upward of ten millions of dollars. Are the heavy imports "discounted" already, or is there some quiet, unobserved source of foreign exchange which is settling our trade balances for us without our ken? Stocks were less active, as if the brokers had yielded to the depression of the warm weather again. Money was run up to six per cent on Friday, but closed yesterday at 2 a 3 per cent.

A Good Example—That of Mr. Greeley and Secretary Robeson in joining hands over the smoking chasm of a "Down-East" clambake, and in eating clams together like a band of brothers. Let us have more of this and "let us have peace."

Mayor O'Neill has been too much for the refractory superseded Police Commissioners of Jersey City. He will sign no more warrants for them, and they will act wisely in accepting the situation by yielding gracefully to their lawful successors in office.

The Party Conventions and Their Nominations for State and Local Offices—What the People Will Require.

Although the time has not yet arrived for the return of the political leaders to the city and the commencement of the actual business of the campaign, a great deal of quiet work is being done by those who have interests at stake in the election. The call for the State Conventions of the democrats and liberal republicans has revived that interest in the local issues to be decided next November which has seemed to flag during the warm weather, and people are beginning to look about them to ascertain in what position they stand and to see what sort of a prospect lies before them. The breach in the republican party in this State is wide and serious, and imparts a new feature to our local canvass. It splits the State representation in the United States Senate in two; takes a large enough slice off the republican side of the House of Representatives to throw a majority of the New York delegation into the Greeley scale; makes an inroad in the State Senate; carries off the best part of the State Assembly, and brings over to liberalism some twenty-four journals in various parts of the State hitherto avowed republican organs, or leaning towards that organization. To set off against this, there are the disaffected democrats who profess to be so sternly democratic that they can support neither Greeley nor Grant, and who demand a third candidate of the thorough copperhead faith; but their number in New York is not large, and to be consistent with their professions they cannot well oppose the democratic State nominees without figuratively turning their pockets inside out and showing exactly how much they favor "straight out" democracy. We hear all sorts of reports from correspondents and individual politicians of the prospects in this town and in that county; of a democrat here who avows himself for Grant before Greeley and of localities there in which a reward is offered for the discovery of a single Greeley republican. One correspondent is startled to find in one place democrats forming a Grant Club, and another is surprised to hit upon another spot where the regular republican strength is shown by a careful canvass to have increased since last election. But all these discoveries, predictions and surmises amount to nothing, and would prove unsafe guides to follow in calculating upon results. The main features of the State canvass are distinct enough and can alone be relied upon as indications of the respective prospects of the contending parties. The vote of New York in the Baltimore Convention was cast solidly for Greeley, and nearly every district in the State in the election of delegates to that Convention favored a union with the liberal republicans on Presidential candidates. At present scarcely a democrat of standing and influence has refused to abide by the decision of the Democratic National Convention, and hence it is fair to conclude that in New York there will be but trifling defection from the Baltimore ticket, unless through some political combination in this city. On the other hand, the secession of such men as Greeley, Fenton, Alvord, Littlejohn, Judge Harris, Waldo Hutchins, Judge Selden and other prominent leaders from the Republican ranks is open and avowed, and they must carry with them more or less of the rank and file of the party. It would, therefore, seem that the political chances in New York strongly favor the Democratic and Liberal union movement, and that whatever may be the general result Greeley's own State must be conceded to his side of the list if the politicians are to decide the election.

But it is by no means certain that the politicians will have things all their own way in this contest, and they may find their calculations at fault when the votes are counted on the evening of the 5th of November, as they did at the close of the polls last year. The reform movement then commenced has not been forgotten by the people, and the fact that the victory they then won has been stripped of its fruit through the faithlessness of the politicians who used that movement for their own purposes has not changed the popular determination to carry reform into every department of the public service. Last year a Senate of reformers was sent to Albany, only to be covered with disgrace in the early part of the session by the discovery of improper practices on the part of its clerk, and of corruption on the part of one of its members. One of the most notorious leaders of the old Tammany ring was chosen to a seat in its body and the reform Senators stood pledged to expel him; yet the session closed without a movement toward such action, and it is notorious that the threat of an exposure of their own past corruptions tied the hands of these model reformers. Now the people will be careful not to elect such men again to office, and the lesson of last year will teach them to scrutinize closely and jealously the names of all candidates who may be put forward for positions of public trust. Hence if either political party in the present election should venture to place undesirable nominations before the voters, it is probable that its ticket will be defeated by the same element which swept the old Tammany régime out of existence last November, however great may be its apparent political strength. The Republican Convention meets in Utica on Wednesday next, the 21st instant, and it is a matter of necessity that it should reinforce itself as much as possible by the selections it makes for State officers. It has the personal popularity of Mr. Greeley throughout the State to struggle against, and an unprecedented secession from its party to make up. It is madness in the republicans to trust to bargains with the new departments and the old Tammany rings in this city for success, or to rely upon their supposed power, through the connivance of the Election Bureau and the assistance of the new General Election law, to manipulate the ballot boxes or the canvass. The small ward politicians who are advising them to such a desperate course to destroy the adverse majority in this city are only luring them on to their ruin. They should take broader and more honorable means to improve their chances of success, by making nominations that will recommend themselves at once to the confidence of the people, and by casting behind them all those political adventurers who have betrayed the cause of reform. The democrats and liberals who meet in State conventions on the 4th of September should be careful that no influences are allowed to force into nomination on their side candidates who will revive old issues, keep alive local dissensions or bear the suspicion of any friendly connection with the old Tammany rings. The democratic party in this city has been thoroughly regenerated, and through its efforts mainly was the reform triumph of last November made secure. The liberal republicans, who have severed their old political associations, have been charged with a greedy desire for office and the honesty of their reform professions has been called in question. Both democrats and liberals, then, are interested in making the character of their candidates a practical guarantee of their integrity and good faith in the union they have formed in the cause of honest government. If they fail to do so their apparent political strength in the State will not save them from defeat.

The responsibility for the result of the contest does not rest alone with the State conventions. It extends to those who are to be entrusted with municipal nominations and with the selection of candidates for Congress and for the State Legislature. As New York was the victim of the old frauds and the principal agent in the revolution of last November the people will look to the character of the municipal and legislative nominees to discover which party is honestly in favor of reform. The republicans must not forget that they labor under the disadvantage of having elected last year, under the mask of reform, one of the most corrupt Legislatures that has ever sat in the State Capitol. If they do not discard every Assemblyman who was in Albany last year, with probably half a dozen exceptions, they may as well retire from the contest. In this city they are reported to have made their peace with the old Tammany politicians, and to have driven illegal bargains with certain of their old enemies. It will be necessary that they should disprove these rumors by the character of the candidates they select for municipal positions. Anything that savors of a trade or an unnatural combination in their policy would be fatal to their prospects. On the other hand, the democrats still bear the name of Tammany, and every effort of their opponents will be directed towards fastening upon them the odium that attaches to the old organization. It is true that the new Tammany has nothing of the old corruption about it, and that the names now powerful in the Wigwam are recognized as the most distinguished actors in the revolution of last Fall. But if the regenerated democracy would prove its constancy to the principles it upheld so unselfishly a year ago it must offer to the people candidates whose names are a guarantee of integrity and capacity. We submit this advice to the leaders of the party organizations on both sides, and we repeat the prediction that in the coming contest the power of the quiet, undemonstrative voters will make itself felt, as it did a year ago, and that it will carry to triumph whichever party it accepts as the real friend of honest government.

The East African Slave Trade—Stanley and Livingstone.

There is a class of people, and unfortunately a very large and noisy class, which hails every new achievement in the onward march of science with the same unvarying cuckoo cry of "Cui Bono?" It is true, say they, that we are so much the wiser for this latest addition to our knowledge, but what practical results is it going to yield us? And the Livingstone explorations, as displayed to the world by Stanley's successful quest, have, of course, like every other noble and unselfish task of the same character, been liberally covered with these depreciatory sneers. But we are glad to see that, apart from the intrinsic value and interest of these discoveries, they have already brought forth fruit which will compensate the world a hundred times over for the money and energy and heroism expended in gathering them from the dim depths of a vast and almost unknown land.

More conspicuous than aught else, alike in the story of Stanley and the letters of Livingstone, stand out in painful relief the hideous enormities of the East African slave trade. Both the explorer and the journalist seem thrilled with horror at the extent and the iniquity of this infamous commerce and tell the sad truth in words that burn with righteous indignation. Nor has their testimony been given in vain. In her prorogation speech Queen Victoria, roused by these terrible disclosures, made what is practically a solemn pledge to her people that this scandal and reproach to the whole human race shall be forthwith abolished, and that slave catching and slave trading shall cease, as an institution, in this its worst and most firmly rooted stronghold. And the means of achieving this good work are by no means very difficult. By far the vast majority of the unhappy victims of this traffic are captured for the use of the subjects of the Sultans of Zanzibar and Muscat, two petty Powers, now scarcely better than tributaries of the British Indian government, which for a quarter of a century has interfered in their affairs on the slightest provocation. The Sultan of Zanzibar, indeed, owes his nominal independence of Muscat to the decision of a representative of Her Majesty, and Muscat has quietly submitted to wholesale bullying from the same source times without number. The moment, therefore, that Great Britain resolves to energetically interpose, the slave trade can be stopped, even if it be true, as stated in some quarters, that the region in which the most of the kidnapping is done is only nominally within the domains of the Sultan of Zanzibar, and lies, a sort of No Man's Land, beyond the limits of his real and practical sovereignty. Close the market where slaves can be sold and no one will henceforth find it worth his while to catch them.

We may, then, take it as an assured fact that this horrible traffic will be abolished in the near future. And is not this enough, we repeat, to weigh down the scale against all that has been done and suffered, not to speak of the money expended, which has been, after all, but a comparatively small sum in making this part of Africa a known land? Brilliant, indeed, will the honors accorded to the line of hero explorers—Burton and Speke and Grant and Baker and, last and greatest of all, Livingstone—by whose labors this great reform has been made possible, when, a century hence, the story of the past of East Africa shall be written. Nor will the gallantry of Stanley be forgotten in that shining record of the fall of the most cruel and wicked system of human bondage that ever blighted this beautiful earth. But for his heroic perseverance, the historian will say, Livingstone would probably have perished of destitution, and a humane civilization, ignorant of the dark horrors which lay just beyond its ken, and which he had labored so long, but in vain, to disclose, would have allowed their hideous crimes to linger along in rank and revolting luxuriance for another generation, and perhaps forever.

Siftings from the Religious Press.

The New York Evangelist compiles from the minutes of reports to the Presbyterian General Assembly an array of statistics of its denomination in the United States, from which it appears that its number of churches is 4,730; ministers, 4,441; communicants, 468,164, and Sunday school members, 485,762, and their contributions during the year amount to $10,086,526, being an increase of $1,003,117 on those of the previous year. The editor is enjoying a summer vacation, and, having passed through rebuilt Chicago, on his way to the American Switzerland in Colorado, he is enthusiastic about the reappearance of the Garden City. He likewise puffs the palace cars, which creature comforts religious editors, like their secular brethren, appreciate. A forcible article cautions the clergy against moral delinquency, admonishing them that the great Teacher said, "Let him that standeth take heed lest he fall," and saying:—"It is true that Christianity justly claims to be tried on its own merits. It is not responsible for the delinquencies of its professed friends or chosen leaders. And yet the world will insist on judging the one by the other. The faults of the champion are imputed to the cause he advocates, and religion is exposed to reproach and dishonor as the result. A stumbling block is thrown in the way of belief, and thousands are only too ready to herald and magnify the lapse that follows an over-mastering temptation"—which is a very natural reflection after the scandals of Thompson, Huston, Robertson and others, whose cases are familiar to the public.

The Examiner and Chronicle (Baptist) devotes two articles to Sabbath discussion; in one condemning Sunday journeying and excursions and in the other hoping that the Park Commissioners will not authorize sacred concerts in Central Park on Sunday. A correspondent sharply criticises the annual report of the Baptist Home Missionary Society. He quotes:—"To payments on account of Freedman's Fund, as per detailed statement, $44,894 12," and observes, "We turn to the Freedman's Fund account, on page 42, to examine the detailed statement referred to, and find such general charges as these:—'To cash paid teachers and beneficiaries, $25,185 14.' How much disbursed to each teacher? Who are the beneficiaries? And what amount was paid to each? 'To cash paid erecting and repairing school buildings, $6,349 68.' What schools, where located and the amount to each? 'To cash paid proportion of salary of Secretary, Assistant Treasurer and clerks, $2,381.' To whom, and the proportion and amount to each? 'To cash paid interest on contingent donations, $1,403 34.' What are they, and how contingent?" From which it may be inferred that there may be looseness in Baptist as well as in Tammany bookkeeping, and that the Methodist Book Concern is not alone in suspected irregularity of keeping accounts.

The Boston Pilot (Roman Catholic) reviews at length the recent Randall's Island investigation, characterizing it as a whitewashing operation and making severe criticisms upon the cruel punishments which have been in use. It also throws pretty solid doubts on the unsectarian character of Rev. B. K. Pierce, the chaplain of the institution, who is also the editor of a Wesleyan paper in Boston.

The Golden Age is mild in religion, but balances it by being fiercely political. Its one religious article is entitled "A Religion that is Natural," which asserts:—

> The only religion that has any hold on any man, or claim to his belief and service, is that which is imbedded in his nature and illustrated in his experience, a religion which is part of the constitution of things, and without which man is a tuneless harp, a spiritual invalid. If our theologians would spend their strength and learning in setting forth the laws and illustrating the duties and enforcing the claims of this natural religion, of which Jesus was the divinest teacher but not the inventor—a religion old as creation and indestructible as man and as necessary to the well being of society as sanitary conditions and legislative enactments—we should hear less of the decline of the Church and see less of the wickedness of the world.

The Christian Intelligencer (Dutch Reformed) leads off with "Differences and Arguments," arguing that there are many points upon which Christians of divers denominations can agree, and that to do so is better than to differ. In illustration it tells a story of two Scotchmen living in one house who carried religious discussion to such length that they declined to speak to each other. Each was bound to thatch his half of the roof:—

> So ae day as they were on the roof thatching, each on his ain side, they reached the tap, and looking ower, face met face. What could they do? They couldna flee. So at last Andrew took off his Kilmarnock cap, and, scratching his head, said:—"Johnnie, you and me, I think, hae been very foolish to dispute as we hae done concerning Christ's will about our kirks, until we hae clean forgot His will about ourselves; and so we hae fought so bitterly for what we ca' the truth that it has ended in spite. Whatever's wrang, it's perfectly certain that it can never be richt to be uncivil, unneighborly, unkind, in fac' tae hate ane anither. Na, na, that's the devil's wark and no God's. Noo, it strikes me that, maybe, it's wi' the kirk as wi' this house. Ye're working on ae side and me on t'ither; but if we only do our work weel we will meet at the tap at last. Gie's your han', auld neighbor." And so they shook han's and were the best o' freens ever after.

Imitation of the thatchers might diminish the theology, but would certainly improve the Christianity of some of the denominational organs.

The Observer (Presbyterian) shows the working of outdoor services in Edinburgh, and commends their adoption here. It also advocates the cultivation of Christian unity among the various sects, instead of strife.

Church and State (Episcopal) takes a drive at Darwin, and apologizes to the brutes for the insult of presuming that man with all his vices could have been descended from them. It believes that the present time opens a wide field for religious usefulness.

The National Baptist labors to establish the efficacy of prayer, which Professor Tyndall proposes to test. His method of testing it in a hospital is considered objectionable, saying it would not be proper to expect a miracle. As results of prayer, the great work of the American Board of Foreign Missions and the Methodist denomination are mentioned—the one originated by the prayers of John Wesley and the other by those of two Congregationalist ministers in Massachusetts.

The Christian Union (Congregationalist) asks, "Who Is On the Lord's Side?" It says:—

> In the endless diversity of parties now existing on the fundamental questions of belief and life, by what sign shall friends and allies know each other? In all the seeming chaos there is an issue joined between two great principles: between goodness and evil; between the Lord and Satan; between tendencies that will elevate and others that will degrade society. But the two armies are not distinguished by uniforms or standards or passwords. There are a hundred flags and a hundred war-cries. Can we in any general way determine to whom we shall give our sympathy and the right hand of fellowship?

Answering these queries it adds:—

> We hail as brethren all those who are serving in the holy war of faith and love. We rejoice to know that there are such in every land and in every sect. They are in the Catholic Church, in the Greek Church, in the bodies that are called heretical. There are men who, not taking on them the name of Christ, are doing the very work He did, giving their lives for their fellow men. Let us give warm hands in greeting and help to whoever in any way is trying to bring man out of self unto God.

The Standard (Baptist) condems "half-truths" thus:—

> The most dangerous tendency of our own times is the prevalent inclination to adopt and be satisfied with the half-truth in place of the truth; with the verisimilitude rather than the actual verity itself. Men forget that truth is uncompromising; that a half-truth is an error, and all the more to be dreaded because it is not wholly an error.

If the editor had said "truth is one thing and is lovely, while error is a hideous lie," the ordinary mind would probably more fully apprehend his meaning.

The Tablet asks, "Can the Jesuits Be Suppressed?" It observes:—

> In attacking the Jesuits the enemies of the Church know full well that they attack herself, but they do not seem to know that the Society of Jesus partakes of that wondrous vitality, that recuperative power, which is one of the distinguished characteristics of the Catholic Church. They forget that neither Bismarck, nor Juarez, nor Victor Emmanuel, can crush out a life that God has given for His own service and His own glory, which is the one sole end and aim of the Society of Jesus.

The Liberal Christian (Unitarian) is largely occupied with the discussions of the late International Prison Congress, favoring such use of punishment as would increase the moral sensibility of the convict, and thus induce his reformation.

The Jewish Messenger laments the lack of rabbies and exhorts its people to make good the deficiency.

The Union Advocate calls attention to a rather serious difficulty at the Episcopal Theological Seminary, wherein the pupils seem to have become more ritualistic than the Faculty and to have submitted to certain requirements under protest alone. This quarrel the Advocate attributes to the Book of Common Prayer, which, though usually esteemed a harmless compilation, it sees to be full of dangerous germs.

A Distinguished Visitor from Brazil.

That extensive portion of South America which forms the Empire of Brazil, with its stretch of near three thousand miles along the Atlantic, its rivers, the largest in the world; its mines of diamonds and gold, its wide plains and their countless herds of horses and cattle, we scarcely know better than we do the dim territory of Central Africa. We know that a line of steamers gives constant communication between New York and the chief cities of that great nation, and that thence we receive a large share of our coffee, our medicinal drugs, hides, diamonds, honey and caoutchouc, while thither a few of our merchants send large quantities of flour, butter, cotton manufactures and other commodities. Our mariners know her coast, but little know we of the twenty-five hundred miles of width which carry her western limits to the borders of Chile and Peru and the vast tropical forests through which her wide rivers flow thousands of miles to the sea. In this favored land nature so bountifully provides for the wants of man that, though the population probably reaches ten millions, not one acre out of a hundred has ever been brought under cultivation. Our relations with Brazil, though friendly, are not so intimate as it would pay for us to make them; and it is to be hoped the visit we are now to receive from one of her reigning family may result in closer commercial and personal relations between the peoples of the two countries. His Imperial Highness the Duke of Saxe, son-in-law of the Brazilian Emperor, is a passenger on the steamer from Rio Janeiro, due here to-morrow. He is described as an intelligent and courteous gentleman, who comes to the Republic of the North to study, during a visit of some months, our people and institutions. That he will be well received there is no doubt, and self-love tells us he will learn many things during his contact with our institutions which will impress him favorably with us. It is confidently expected that a great commerce will grow up between the two countries, advantageous alike to both, differing so widely as they do in productions and resources, yet so favorably placed for interchange, and that the most friendly relations will ever continue between the great Empire of South and the great Republic of North America.

The Next Season of Italian Opera.

Surely the new managers of Italian opera at the Academy of Music are abundant in promises, to judge from the list of their company and the extensive répertoire. It is to be expected that they will not be like their predecessors, who "keep the word of promise to our ear and break it to our hope." The new management have secured in Madame Lucca, an artist who acknowledges no peer in Europe and who has for years past made herself the idol of the public in the three great operatic centres, London, Berlin and St. Petersburg. Then comes Miss Kellogg, whose popularity in America is unquestioned. The rest of the company, except M. Jamet, the principal basso, are entirely new and their claims for public recognition have yet to be examined. The management, however, have done well in dispensing with the services of those hangers-on at the Academy who have from time immemorial labored industriously to kill opera by their inexcusable deficiency in small parts. All the secondary singers are to be brought from London. Again, the chorus will mainly consist of members of the company at Covent Garden, and a new chorus master, who ranks very high across the water, is engaged. We hear of costumes and appointments entirely new and many other encouraging announcements. The question now is for the management to keep faith with the public. A prospectus and its fulfilment are frequently as opposite as the promises and after career of a successful candidate in politics. Messrs. Maretzek and Jarrett have an excellent opportunity now to place Italian opera on a sound basis; but let them not forget that the time has long gone by when the American public could be deceived in this respect. The immense annual exodus to Europe and the opportunities there of witnessing opera in its grandest form have made the patrons of the Academy more critical than ever. The metropolitan public are ever ready to sustain genuine talent, but woe betide the manager who endeavors to pass off a counterfeit for the genuine article on them. The season will open about the end of September with Mme. Pauline Lucca as Selika in "L'Africaine," her best rôle.

Compass Deviations on Shipboard—A Nautical Invention.

The deviation of the magnetic needle in iron ships has lately been made the subject of special investigation in England, with results that promise increased security to navigation. The study of this magnetic problem has been a very difficult and costly one, and has received in America but little attention. The problem itself in nautical importance is second only to that of terrestrial magnetism, which was first successfully unfolded and solved by Columbus, and which suggested that incommunicable secret of longitude which Sebastian Cabot on his deathbed boasted of having received by divine revelation.

Careful experiments have shown that the compass on board iron ships is sensitive to many local attractions. Not only does the mysterious index change its indications by the relative distribution of iron over the vessel, but its diversion will depend upon the course which the ship is taking, upon any oscillation or careening, and upon her ever changing geographical position. It is even found the deviation is very perceptible, which is due solely to the position occupied by the vessel while it was lying on the building slip, where it acquires a definite magnetic character, the needle invariably turning to that part of the ship which was farthest from the north while she was in process of construction.

A gentleman of Southampton, England, has recently invented a simple and improved method of determining the local attraction of ships, which is said to be very valuable. A centre staff, distinctly marked, is set up on some select spot on shore, and a segment of the magnetic circle described from this staff as a centre with a radius of a hundred feet. This part of the circle is divided into degrees, and the line of the magnetic meridian determined, and the true bearing of the staff and its intersection of the segment given, leaving the observer on board only to notice what degree the centre staff cuts upon the circle. This is the true bearing, and the difference of the compass is the local attraction.

It is by the diligent improvement of such methods, which, mechanical as they may seem, are of vital importance to safe navigation, that the perils of the sea may be averted.

North Carolina.—Governor Caldwell has informed the public, in a despatch from Raleigh, that the official figures of the late North Carolina election cannot be known till after the meeting of the Legislature on the third Monday in November next, when the returns will be opened before the two houses and the results declared. As it thus appears that this official announcement will not occur till a fortnight or so after the Presidential election, it is a matter of no consequence; for the present we must be content with the Governor's estimate that Caldwell's majority will range from eighteen hundred to twenty-five hundred, there or thereabouts.

Counting the Chickens Perhaps Too Soon.—The President has been informed by a high authority in Pennsylvania that Hartranft will certainly be elected by a large majority, though this has certainly not been the opinion of Colonel Forney, whatever his opinion now may be.

OBITUARY.

Carafa, the Composer.

A composer whose fame and even his name have passed out of recollection has just died in Paris at the age of eighty-seven. Carafa de Colobrano, better known as Carafa only, was born at Naples on November 28, 1785, and at a very early age studied music under Professors Piaggi and Fenaroli. Compelled to serve in the Neapolitan army, he was made prisoner by the French at Campo Tenese, in Calabria, in 1806. Prince Murat took a fancy to him and attached him to his service as an equerry. He served in the expedition to Sicily with the rank of captain in Murat's guards. The events of 1814 relegated him to his former musical pursuits. He speedily brought out an opera, "Il Vascello d'Occidente," which was well received at the Del Fondo Theatre, Naples. Several other works, "La Gelosia Coretta," "I Due Figaro," &c., followed in quick succession. In 1821 Carafa de Colobrano—for that was his full name—came to Paris, and soon obtained letters of naturalization. His first work (produced at the Théâtre Feydeau, now the Opéra Comique), "Jeanne d'Arc," was rather a failure than otherwise; but his next, "Le Solitaire," raised him to a great height of popularity. The opera accepted as his chef d'œuvre was called "Masaniello," but the subsequent success of "La Muette de Portici," completely eclipsed Carafa's earlier work on the same theme. Carafa enjoyed the friendship of Rossini, for whom he composed some ballet airs for "Semiramide." He was elected a member of the Institute in 1837, and was an officer of the Legion of Honor since 1847.

SUICIDE IN THE BAY.

The man John Lacy, or Melissy, reported in yesterday's Herald as having attempted suicide by jumping off the Staten Island ferryboat Middletown on Friday, after having swallowed a quantity of Paris green, died yesterday at the Infirmary, Stapleton, Staten Island. He died from the effects of the poison.

A SEAMAN DROWNED.

James Peed, mate of the bark Lavonia, lying at the Upper Quarantine anchorage, was drowned yesterday at noon by the upsetting of his boat near the vessel. Peed was about twenty-seven years of age and a native of New York.

THE ALABAMA CLAIMS.

The American Argument Published—Pamphlets to Read While Waiting for Payment.

TELEGRAMS TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

GENEVA, August 17, 1872.

The supplementary arguments of the American counsel before the Board of Arbitration have been published in pamphlet form.

The arguments of Mr. Evarts cover 100 pages of the pamphlet. Those of Messrs. Cushing and White are less extended.

THE ARBITRATORS AND JURISTS IN RECESS ENJOYMENT.

Citizen Jacob Staempfli, of the Board of Arbitration, has gone to Berne. He will return on Monday in time to be present at the sitting of the Court.

Lord Tenterden, Sir Roundell Palmer and Professor Bernard are visiting Rev. Merle d'Aubigné, the historian of the Reformation, at Monestier.

THE IMPERIALIST CONGRESS

British Argument on the Subject of the Royal Assemblage.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

LONDON, August 17, 1872.

The London News discredits the Standard's report that the meeting of the Emperors of Germany, Russia and Austria at Berlin is for the purpose of settling pending questions on European national relations.

IRELAND.

Renewal of the Rioting in Belfast—Fighting Still Maintained in the Streets—A Police Barracks Wrecked.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

LONDON, August 17—2 P. M.

A despatch just received from Belfast, Ireland, states that the party riots have broken out afresh, and that severe fighting is now going on.

A barrack of the police and several dwelling houses have been wrecked by the mob.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SCENES WHICH OCCURRED AT THE COMMENCEMENT.

Further advices from Belfast to London confirm the serious nature of the rioting there on Thursday. There were several collisions between mobs of Protestants and Catholic processionists, during which a large number of persons received injuries of a more or less serious nature.

The entire city was in an uproar of excitement, and the disturbances were only quelled for the moment by the most active exertions of the police. Many of the rioters were arrested.

FRANCE.

Specie in Flow to the Bank—Visit of an American Diplomat.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

PARIS, August 17, 1872.

The specie in the Bank of France increased 1,500,000 francs during the past week.

VISIT OF AN AMERICAN MINISTER.

Hon. R. C. Schenck, United States Minister to England, has arrived at Havre.

WHAT UNITED STATES SAILORS FOUND AT CHERBOURG.

Some sailors of the United States frigate Congress, which is lying in the harbor of Cherbourg, recently discovered in the water the body of M. Milland, the Chief of the Observatory at that port, who had been missing for some time and is supposed to have been accidentally drowned.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

The Prussian Engineers and Their Work at Belfort.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

PARIS, August 17, 1872.

The report that the Germans are fortifying Belfort in violation of their treaty obligations is declared to be without any foundation. The Prussians have only completed the works which were commenced by the French Commandant during the siege of Belfort, and which were left in an unfinished state.

SPAIN.

Party Profession of Don Carlos' Whereabouts.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

MADRID, August 17, 1872.

It is reported that Don Carlos has again returned to Geneva.

Cabinet and Parliamentary Progress Under the Combined Aid of Science and Industry.

Alarming Consequences from a Land Slide—Clerical Influence in Politics—A Man's Struggle for Life on the Gallows—Severe Weather in New Zealand.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 16, 1872.

The Australian advices by the steamship Idaho, which connected at Honolulu with the Colonial mail steamer, are as follows.

New South Wales.

The Parker Ministry has been re-elected. The Parliament of New South Wales is now in session. In the province of Victoria, after the collapse of the Duffey administration, Mr. Francis succeeded in forming a new Ministry, which, in despite of a pastoral letter from the Catholic Bishop enjoining his followers to vote in the opposition, was sustained at the election.

Telegrams are now received in South Australia nine days from London.

MARKETS AND WAGES RATES.

The Sydney markets are unchanged.

The coal miners have struck for twelve cents per ton additional wages. A number of the mine owners have already complied with the demand. Wood has slightly advanced.

STEAM COMMUNICATION WITH AMERICA.

On the reception of the news that the United States Congress had failed to subsidize Webb's steamers, the English company despatched an agent to England from New South Wales to purchase at least two large steamers for the California line.

New Zealand.

Intensely cold weather prevailed in the Southern provinces of New Zealand. The Waport River was frozen over, so that heavy teams crossed on the ice.

The steamer Nevada encountered a hurricane, the most terrific ever experienced on the New Zealand coast. The Colonist press highly compliment her seagoing qualities.

SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES OF A LAND SLIDE.

In Tasmania a land slide of five hundred acres stopped the course of the River Devon, causing an overflow which devastated a large section of the surrounding country, the richest in the colony.

Fiji.

Advices received in Sydney from Fiji represent that in the attempt to execute Franks, for the murder of William Muir, after the drop fell the rope slipped, the prisoner got his arms free, seized hold of the rope and begged the spectators to cut him down or shoot him. He was cut down and finally reprieved.

A NEW CABINET.

Messrs. Ward, Thurston, Clarkson and Swanston, have formed a new Ministry for Fiji.

MEXICO.

General Rocha's Report of Ceballos' March—Surrender of Revolutionary Leaders—Repeated Assurance of National Quiet.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

NEW ORLEANS, August 17, 1872.

General Rocha telegraphs from Monterey that General Ceballos has marched to the City of Mexico.

Rocha goes to Paleos to receive the surrender of Treviño's forces.

Pedro Martinez and his troops have also submitted.

Garcia de la Cadena, on refusing to surrender, was surprised and captured, together with his command.

Rocha telegraphs that he is positive the revolution has terminated.

CUBA.

Field Operations of the Insurgents in the Central Department—Spanish Accounts of Military Execution—The Governor Off for Spain.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

HAVANA, August 16, 1872.

The Constancia publishes interesting particulars of the movements of the insurgents in the Central department. On the night of the 29th ultimo they made a raid on the Nuevitas and Puerto Principe Railroad, and burned a bridge. It was repaired by the Spaniards the next day, and communication restored.

SPANISH STATEMENTS.

The Spanish résumé of operations in the departments for the past two weeks states that 113 rebels and five Spaniards have been killed during that time.

In an editorial article on the situation the Diario says:—

"We are now at the middle of August, and the indications are that a winter campaign against the insurgents will be necessary. We are convinced that this campaign of 1872-73 will be as it should be, the last we will have to sustain."

The Diario says that if necessary sufficient troops will be at the disposal of the Commander-in chief to hedge in the insurgents with a circle of bayonets.

OFF FOR MADRID.

Governor Zabalza sailed for Spain yesterday, notwithstanding reports in official circles that he would not go.

YACHTING.

Cruise of the New York Yacht Club—The Departure for Martha's Vineyard Deferred Until Tuesday—Arrangements for a Sweepstakes Race To-Morrow.

NEWPORT, August 17, 1872.

There appears to be some objection to the Columbia receiving the Commodore's Cup, which was sailed for yesterday, as Mr. Homans, of the yacht Foam, has forwarded a protest, which the Regatta Committee, Messrs. S. L. Haight, W. B. Bend and W. Kiebs, have now under consideration. The intent of the protest is based on the Columbia having only made a half tack when rounding the stakeboat Julia, which, Mr. Homans says, is contrary to the sailing regulations, and also because the Columbia on the port tack did not give way to the Foam when the latter was on the starboard tack. This matter is now being investigated by the Regatta Committee, but will probably not amount to anything.

There was a strong southerly breeze this morning, and about ten o'clock the flagship signalled the fleet to prepare to get under weigh for the Vineyard; but as the Commodore found that many were anxious to remain at Newport over Sunday he signalled for all captains to repair on board. On taking the vote it was found that the Eva was the only yacht anxious to start, so it was decided not to leave before Tuesday.

Mr. L. Lorillard, of the Wanderer, then proposed to sail the schooner yacht Resolute a match around Block Island and return, but Mr. A. S. Hatch declined sailing.

A sweepstake race of twenty-five each was then arranged to be sailed on Monday, over the regular course to Block Island and return. About ten, including the fastest yachts in the fleet, entered.

The sloop yacht Vision arrived this afternoon from the westward.

The schooner Wanderer went out for a sail about noon, with Mr. Lorillard and Mr. Babcock on board.

The fleet will leave on Tuesday for Martha's Vineyard.

Yachting Notes.

The following yachts passed Whitestone yesterday:—

Yacht Alarm, N.Y.Y.C., Mr. A. C. Kingsland, from New York for Newport.

Yacht Josephine, N.Y.Y.C., Mr. B. M. C. Durfee, from New York for Newport.

ROYAL HONORS TO AN AMERICAN ARTIST.

Commissions to Mr. William Bradford from the Queen and the Marquis of Lorne—Interesting Glimpses of the Home Life of the Royal Family—How Stanley is Lionized in London.

The following extracts from a private letter received here by the last English mail contains some interesting gossip in reference to the appreciation by the London haut monde of an American artist, Mr. William Bradford, and of an American explorer, Mr. Henry M. Stanley. They will be read with interest by all patriotic, artistic and literary Americans:—

LANGHAM HOTEL, LONDON, August 9, 1872.

* * * * * * *

You have heard of William's (Bradford's) success at Osborne. The Princess Louise has given him an order for a picture and the Queen also has given him a commission for one of his most important works. He spent an hour and a half at Osborne House and was invited to stay to lunch, but concluded it was not best to take all offered favors. The Princess Louise was delighted with the pictures and sketches, and took her mother into her room to see them in the afternoon, when the Queen expressed herself delighted with them, and, on the strength of it, gave the order referred to. The Marquis of Lorne called at the hotel (Isle of Wight) next morning and stayed some time. When he arrived William (Bradford) was in the coffee room talking with Mr. Hoppin, President of the Union League Club, a warm advocate of ——'s, and Mr. Hoppin said incredulously, on being told of the order:—"You need it in black and white to make Americans believe it." Just then a servant walked up to William and said:—"His Lordship the Marquis of Lorne awaits you in your parlor." Mr. Hoppin turned to Bradford and said:—"That is black and white enough."

* * * * * * *

William (Bradford) has just returned from breakfasting with the Duke and Duchess of Argyll—a breakfast given to Stanley. General Schenck and others were present. William rode down with Stanley, who stays at this hotel (the Langham), and now has gone with him and the Duke and Duchess of Argyll to see his pictures at McLean's. At four o'clock we are going to Mr. Stanley's room to see some curiosities he has brought from Africa. The Duke and Duchess of Argyll will be there also.

It may be mentioned that Mr. Bradford's commission from the Queen is the first royal favor of the kind granted to an American artist since the days of Benjamin West, who was himself more a sort of half-naturalized Englishman than a legitimate citizen of the United States.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, August 17, 1872.

A game of base ball was played to-day between the Boston and Forest City clubs, which resulted in a score of 18 to 7 in favor of the Boston Club.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. Brougham's "Joan of Arc."

One of the features of the coming dramatic season will be the production of "Joan of Arc," a new tragedy by Mr. John Brougham. The same subject has been already illustrated by the genius of several great playwrights, but Mr. Brougham's conception of the story gives it an entirely new meaning and interest. Instead of making Joan the commissioned instrument of Heaven to save her country, she becomes in his hands, though without losing the respect and sympathy of the audience, the dupe of a pious fraud. A friar of her village, realizing the nobleness and grandeur of her character and conscious of the necessity of adopting some desperately novel scheme to redeem France from utter subjugation, devises a series of supernatural manifestations, near a flourishing elm (haunted, according to tradition, by fairies and other unearthly beings), which convince Joan that her mission in life is to lead the French armies to victory. As the friar is a director of one of those companies of miracle players (composed chiefly of acolytes in the church) which were so common in mediæval times, there is in this variation from the chronicle of history no inherent improbability. Joan, having accepted the supposed call of Heaven, sets out for the Court in company with the friar, persuades the King of the genuineness of her mission, and, taking command of the army, lives through a year of unbroken military success. Returning to Court she is driven into exile by the amorous persecution of the monarch whose crown she has saved, and flying to her native village, where she finds the fairy elm blasted by lightning, is captured by the English. Then follows her trial as a witch, and in this hour of extremest need the one belief that has hitherto sustained her fortitude is suddenly shattered by the confession of the friar that he cheated her eyes and ears with false visions and voices, and that her fondly cherished faith in the divinity of her mission is but an empty delusion. This cruel blow is more than she can bear, and heartbroken and utterly hopeless, her mind falls into ruins. There is yet another scene—a painful but a strikingly pathetic one—in which Joan, still delirious, while being taken to the stake, lives over again in fancy her former triumphs. The clanking of the chain, however, as she is being fastened to the stake, restores her reason, but happily only for a moment. She has scarcely time to realize her position when the aching, broken heart gives a last weary throb, and the executioners are cheated of their victim.

This is but the barest outline of the play, but it is enough to show that it is based upon a daringly novel view of this worn and almost hackneyed subject. The incidents are arranged with the skill of a veteran playwright, and the interest gradually rises until in the closing scenes the mind of the reader or spectator is utterly overcome with pity and sympathetic sorrow. Of the literary workmanship of the piece it would be hard to speak too highly. The rhetoric is always graceful and smooth, and, though sometimes florid, is never turgid. Some of the codmey scenes, with which the gloom of the piece is occasionally relieved, are written in Mr. Brougham's happiest vein of scholarly humor.

It has not yet been decided where "Joan of Arc" is to be first produced, but Miss Helen Temple, a promising young actress, has been chosen to take the chief part, and will doubtless do it full justice.

The Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Mr. Augustin Daly will inaugurate a fourth campaign at this popular theatre on the 3d of September, and, from the announcements he now makes, there is every reason to believe that the coming season will be even more brilliant and successful than its predecessors.

A new piece, entitled "Diamonds," by Mr. Bronson C. Howard, the author of "Saratoga," will be first placed on the bill, and will, doubtless, have a long run. Among other novelties to follow it are a new society drama, by Dr. Mosenthal, the author of "Deborah," depicting fashionable life in Berlin; an original comedy, illustrating the manners and character of American frontiersmen and of the New York haut monde, by Mr. Bret Harte (his first attempt as a playwright), and a new piece, by M. Victorien Sardou, specially written to fit the members of Mr. Daly's comedy, and purchased, as it is said, at the extravagant rate of $1,000 a week. This répertoire will, probably, more than fill up the season, in view of the long runs which have hitherto marked the career of the present management, and which have been the legitimate result of careful and finished production.

The company, while it retains the principal among the old favorites, has been strongly reinforced by new talent, and now presents the following muster of brilliant and accomplished artists:—Mr. Charles Fisher, Mr. George Clarke, Mr. James Lewis, Mr. W. Davidge, Mr. Louis James, Mr. W. J. Lemoyne, Mr. Henry Crisp, Mr. B. T. Ringgold, Mr. C. H. Rockwell, Mr. Owen Fawcett, Mr. G. H. Griffiths, Mr. G. F. Devere, Mr. D. Whiting, Mr. E. Pierce, Mr. F. Chapman, Mr. J. H. Burnett, Mr. G. Godfrey, Mr. W. Beekman, Mr. Barney, Miss Fanny Davenport, Miss Clara Morris, Miss Fanny Morant, Mrs. G. H. Gilbert, Miss Linda Deitz, Miss Sara Jewett (her first appearance on any stage), Miss Kate Charlton, Miss Mary Cary, Miss Nellie Mortimer, Miss Rosa Dearham, Miss Griffiths and Miss Roberta Norwood. Late in the season Mrs. Caroline Abbott will make her début.

It should also be stated that the theatre, during the three months that its doors have been closed to the public, has been greatly improved and elaborately redecorated. An entirely new stage has been laid down; a novel system of footlights has been introduced; the ceiling has been adorned with an original subject, painted in fresco, entitled "The Crowning of Comedy;" the old orchestra seats have been replaced by chairs, enamelled in blue and bronze; new carpets have been furnished all over the house, and the walls are now relieved by hangings of crimson satin.

During the season Mr. Harvey B. Dodworth will have direction of the music. Mr. John Moore is to be stage manager and Mr. Joseph E. Tooker business manager, while the box office will be under the charge of Mr. James E. Morrissey.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

At Home.

Chanfrau plays Bob Brierly at Wood's this week.

"The Bells" will be the week's sensation at the Bowery.

The Lingards continue their engagement at the Olympic.

Mr. Eddy appears as the Police Spy to-morrow night at Tony Pastor's.

Josh Hart opens the Comique next week with a first class variety company.

Charley White is rapidly bringing his Athenæum in Broadway into permanent public favor.

Mr. W. R. Floyd, manager of the Globe theatre, Boston, has perfected his arrangements for the coming season.

Mr. Augustin Daly produces "Le Roi Carotte" for the first time in this country at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday.

Booth's theatre opens on Monday evening for the Fall and Winter season with the great drama of London called "The Bells."

Miss Agnes Ethel has arrived from Europe in the France and will appear at the Union Square Theatre, on the 26th inst., in a new play, composed expressly for her by M. Victorien Sardou.

Terrace Garden Vocal and Instrumental Concerts are given twice a week under the management of Rudolph Rossinsky and with the aid of the vocalists Mr. Carl Formes and Miss Alina Krause.

Mr. Dan Bryant announces that he will reopen his Twenty-third Street Opera House on Monday evening, August 26, for the sixteenth season of this popular troupe. He has engaged the great burlesque artists, Messrs. Kelly and Leon, and Nelse Seymour and Dave Reed. Mr. Bryant closed his travelling trip on last Thursday night in Poughkeepsie. He has been away from New York since the 20th of April.

Mr. Thomas Berry, a well known, wealthy and public-spirited citizen of Washington, is the owner of the site of Wall's Opera House. He recently purchased a large lot adjoining, and he is now erecting on the enlarged site a magnificent building, designed as an opera house, for Mr. John T. Ford, of Baltimore. The structure will be worthy of the capital city in capacity, elegance, decorations and all the modern appliances of the stage. It will cost about two hundred thousand dollars.

Abroad.

Madame Adelina Patti left London for Hombourg on July 26.

Signor and Mme. Foli left London for the Continent August 5.

M. Faure has left London for Brussels. Thence he goes, with his family, to Etretat.

M. Dufour, publisher of the Gazette Musicale for nearly sixteen years, died on July 25.

The eldest daughter of Mario is residing in Scotland, with a noble family. The youngest is in Florence with her parent.

Mlle. Sessi has taken the pretty villa at Passy, near Paris, once occupied by Madame La Grange. Mlle. Albani is also residing in the same Parisian suburb.

Madame Adelina Patti has consented to sing in Paris, at the request of Madame Thiers, in "The Huguenots," for the benefit of the sufferers from the war. She will sing at Homburg for a few nights, prior to her engagement at St. Petersburg, and from there will go to Vienna to play during the Exhibition, and she will be in London in May, 1873, for Covent Garden, where she has renewed her engagement for two years at £200 per night, reserving her own répertoire. At the end of the season 1873 Madame Patti will make a tour in the United States.

THE YELLOW FEVER HARVEST.

The Spanish Ram Numancia in the Lower Bay at Last.

THE TRIP TO HER ANCHORAGE.

No New Cases and No Additional Deaths Among Her Crew.

Arrival of Two More Fever Ships.

Six Vessels and About Thirty Victims of the Pestilence Now in Port.

Pilot Commissioner Blunt on the Situation.

In all probability that very excitable portion of the population of this great city which has been in a quandary whether to fly to the prairies or to remain here and die of that yellow fever epidemic which they believed to be so awfully imminent will fan themselves gracefully down into a state of perpetual calm when they learn that the great Spanish frigate Numancia, with its few cases of yellow fever on board, is twenty miles away from their breakfast tables. At a quarter to five o'clock last evening the ram got under way and proceeded quietly down the bay from the Narrows to the Southwest Spit, where she now lies at anchor. About one o'clock yesterday afternoon the tugs N. B. Starbuck, Captain Jacob Brandow, and the W. F. Walcott, Captain Monks, stopped at the Quarantine Station, Staten Island. On the former vessel was Pilot Gillespie, who brought the Numancia into port, and on the latter Pilot John L. Roff and his brother, Peter W. Roff, Jr., also a pilot. The pilots called upon Health Officer Vanderpoel, and Pilot Gillespie stated that he was prepared to pilot the Numancia to an anchorage in the Lower Bay. Pilot John Roff, however, exhibited an order signed by Pilot Commissioner Blunt, directing him to take the vessel down and anchor her off the Southwest Spit, and of course Pilot Gillespie at once gave way to Roff, who at once went on board the Numancia from the Walcott and informed her commander that he would be prepared to navigate the ship down by half-past three or four o'clock. Not deeming it either prudent or necessary that he should remain for an hour or two on board an infected vessel, Roff returned to the landing, with his tug, and awaited the hour of departure.

THE NUMANCIA'S FIRES

had been "banked" on Friday night, and steam, therefore, was soon gotten up for the tugs. Shortly before four o'clock the two tugboats proceeded to the Numancia's anchorage, Gillespie remaining ashore, and the great frigate at once commenced to haul in the slack of her cables. As soon as she was short hauled the tugs, which had already fastened their hawsers to the frigate, began to give her headway, so that she might not drop back with the tide, and as her anchor left the bottom the ram got her engines to work, and at 4:45 P. M. was fairly on her course, steaming slowly and steadily through the Narrows. The tugs kept up a good pull on her bow, so as to steady her, and she moved as majestically as an iceberg. At a quarter past five she passed the forts, Wadsworth, Tompkins and Lafayette, and at the same time about the narrowest part of the channel, the Plymouth Rock, looking like a pleasure palace on a rampage, swept swiftly past her on her way down to Long Branch. It was a marked contrast to see these Leviathan ships so close together and to feel that one was a great engine of war, with a cloud of pestilence hovering over her, and the other a craft built for luxury and ease and freighted with hundreds of happy people speeding on to scenes of enjoyment. Nothing occurred to vary the monotony of the voyage down, and at seven o'clock the Numancia was hove to off the Southwest Spit.

THE TUGS COMMENCED SOUNDING

at once, and found plenty of room, with a depth varying from thirty-two to thirty-seven feet. About twenty-five minutes past seven the Numancia let go her anchor at a selected spot about three quarters of a mile west-southwest of the Spit buoy, and New York was eased of a bugbear which has been worrying timid souls all the week. The Numancia is, therefore, now about twenty-one miles from New York, riding safely at anchor with sixty fathoms of cable out and with abundance of swinging room, in thirty-six and a half feet of water. Her actual draught is thirty-one Spanish feet, or about twenty-eight feet English measurement. The tugs sounded at intervals all the way down, and the shoalest water they passed through was five and a half fathoms. Before leaving her soundings were taken for over half a mile all around her, and nothing shallower than thirty-two feet was found. She is about a third of a mile from the regular ship channel, and inward or outward bound vessels need not make nearer approach to her in passing than at that distance. The tugs and pilots returned to the city about half-past nine o'clock last night, having performed their work in the most satisfactory manner. In order to show the

HISTORY OF THE SINGULAR DIFFICULTY

which has surrounded the Numancia's visit to this harbor, the following correspondence will be of interest:—

HEALTH OFFICER'S DEPARTMENT, QUARANTINE, TOMPKINSVILLE, S. I., August 15, 1872.

GEORGE W. BLUNT, Esq., Chairman of the Board of Pilot Commissioners:—

DEAR SIR—Since my interview with you I have called at the office of the Spanish Consul, but he had not yet arrived. I left a note requesting him to call on you and obtain a pilot who should take the vessel to the Southwest Spit, if in your judgment such anchorage could be made with safety to the vessel. If my request to the Consul is not complied with in the next six hours I desire you to take measures to have such removal made.

The pilot taking the vessel down will remain on the bridge until the ship is anchored, when he may leave at once by small boat, which may accompany the vessel. Very respectfully,

L. OAKLEY VANDERPOEL, Health Officer.

The following certificate was furnished by the commander of the frigate to Pilot Gillespie:—

ON BOARD IRON-CLAD FRIGATE NUMANCIA.

I, Don Eduardo Rovira y Bellon, captain of the navy of the first class, and commandant of His Majesty's iron-clad frigate Numancia, do hereby certify that the pilot, Mr. Gillespie, has navigated this ship into port in a highly intelligent manner for a distance of more than seventy miles from New York, and from the time of his taking charge until the actual safe anchorage of the frigate in the strait entrance, called the "Narrows," at the port of New York, he has acted to my entire satisfaction.

EDUARDO ROVIRA.

PORT OF NEW YORK, August 16, 1872.

Dr. Vanderpoel expressed the utmost satisfaction when the frigate had at last got under way for her new quarters, and was pleased that the anxieties of the people were at last allayed in reference to her presence on our waters. Dr. Mosher, Deputy Health Officer, boarded the Numancia a short time before her departure and found no new cases of fever developed, and reports the convalescents as doing well without exception. The patients from the Numancia at the West Bank Hospital are also prospering very favorably and no additional deaths had occurred. The frigate will be visited every day by the port Health authorities while she lies at the spot, and will be abundantly supplied with fresh water, provisions and vegetables. The Spanish Consul called upon Dr. Vanderpoel yesterday afternoon and left with him some papers and packages for the ship's officers, which were duly forwarded.

The following statement of Mr. Blunt, made to a HERALD reporter yesterday afternoon, shows that the Board of Pilot Commissioners had surrendered to his decision:—

STATEMENT OF MR. BLUNT.

I was sick yesterday (Tuesday) and unable to attend the meeting of the Board. My old friend, Admiral Stringham, formerly of the Ohio, whom I have known for fifty years, coincides entirely with me that there is fitting anchorage for the Numancia in the Lower Bay, and sent me word to that effect yesterday. I will now tell you the whole story, so that you can judge its merits. On Thursday the Health Officer, Dr. Vanderpoel, came to see me, unnecessarily excited, as I thought, about my communication to the press of this city respecting the capacity of the harbor. I took particular pains to say to the Doctor that I had heard good reports from all the pilots as to his general disposition and his desire to do his duty. I then called in the pilot, Gillespie, before us, who, had brought the Numancia up to the Narrows, and told him that he had violated the Quarantine rules of the port. I then said that I should send her down the bay at Dr. Vanderpoel's request. The Doctor asked my opinion about the lower anchorage, and I mentioned as a proper place between Coney Island and the Lower Quarantine Hospital. He said he did not like that, as it was in the track of the excursion steamboats to Coney Island (which it isn't; but let that pass). I then said, "Very well, anchor her off the Southwest Spit." Gillespie, who was then present, was sulky and did not want to take her back. He has only had a full branch for two years. By that I mean after a man has safely piloted, without complaint or accident, for three years in fourteen, sixteen and eighteen feet water he is entitled to what we call a full branch.

VIOLATING QUARANTINE ORDINANCES,

THE SPANISH CONSUL.

Dr. Vanderpoel, as an act of courtesy, said he should consult with the Spanish Consul. I remarked, "That's your matter, but in all quarantine matters you are paramount." He then took his leave. The Spanish Consul meanwhile had sent for me and I accordingly went to his office and said that the Numancia should be anchored in the Lower Bay, to which he fully assented. I then went home (this was on Thursday) and was too sick to come to the office on Friday. On Friday the action of the Board of Pilot Commissioners, forbidding the Numancia to leave her present achorage in the Narrows, took place. To-day an order was sent down to the Health Officer at one o'clock, of which the following is a transcript:—

"Pilot JOHN ROFF—Take charge of the Numancia and anchor her off the Southwest Spit. G. W. BLUNT."

CO-OPERATING WITH THE HEALTH OFFICER.

All my idea in this matter has been that I had no right to interfere with the Health Officer, but that at the same time I was bound to stand up for the capacity of the port of New York to receive any vessels that might come, and, what is more, all the pilots, as I have heard, approve my action. Although I surveyed the harbor half a century ago I feel no particular vanity at being an old authority, but I maintain that the experience that I have had entitles my opinion to a certain amount of weight.

TWO MORE FEVER SHIPS.

Yesterday afternoon two additional vessels having yellow fever on board arrived at the Lower Bay, making a total of six vessels thus infected now in port.

The first was the bark Pelayo, from Havana. Her captain (Juan Rosas) and the captain's servant (Salvador Rosas) were both suffering from fever and were removed by the Quarantine ambulance boat, in charge of Dr. Thompson, to the West Bank.

The other vessel was the brig Balcar, from San Blas, Central America. Her second mate (Thomas Albers) and a seaman (Frederick Diercks) were both down with fever and were also removed to the hospital. These make a total of twenty-eight fever cases in hospital and aboard ships now in the port, composed, of course, of patients and convalescents. The deaths in port have been three, and the deaths on the voyage or at sea (from three vessels) nine. The Health officials expect that quite a number of additional infected vessels will come in, this being the season for the epidemic.

How the Alarmists Affect Trade.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Within the last two days I have received letters from a number of Western merchants in Pittsburg, Cincinnati and St. Louis inquiring whether it is safe to come here on account of the yellow fever. They inform me that Boston and Philadelphia wholesalers have telegraphed that it is dangerous to come to New York. The sensational reports in the city papers are outrageous. There has not been an original case of fever in the port. This Dr. Vanderpool will certify to. These facts I have telegraphed to several Western papers. Will the New York press longer tolerate sensational reports which are driving away the Fall trade?

BARNARD'S IMPEACHMENT.

Proceedings of the Court on Friday and Saturday.

THE VOTE ON THIRTY-ONE ARTICLES.

A Full Vote of Guilty on Nearly All the Counts.

TROY, N. Y., August 17, 1872.

The Troy Budget has positive information in regard to the action of the Court of Impeachment in the Barnard case in its secret sessions of Friday and Saturday, and will publish to-morrow to the following effect:—The Court adjourned this afternoon at three P. M., having voted on thirty-one of the thirty-eight articles of impeachment, leaving seven articles to be voted on on Monday.

Judge Barnard was pronounced guilty of violation of his oath of office, of being unmindful of the duties of said office, of being guilty of mal and corrupt conduct in his said office on nearly all the articles voted on. In most cases a nearly unanimous vote of the Court was polled.

On the third article, relating to his action in the Erie suit of James Fisk, Jr., and Justin D. White against Heath and others, thirty-six—all the members—voted "guilty."

On the fourth article, in relation to his action in the suit of Fisk and Earle against Heath and others, thirty-six voted "guilty."

On the fifth article, Fisk against the Union Pacific Railroad, the Court voted thirty-five "guilty." Judge Allen was excused from voting because he had been counsel in the case.

On the sixth article, in relation to Barnard's action in the case of Fisk and others against the Union Pacific Railroad, in which Tweed, Jr., was appointed receiver, the Court voted thirty-five "guilty." Judge Allen excused.

On the seventh article, in relation to Barnard's action in the suit of Fisk against the Union Pacific Railroad, directing Tweed to open the safe and pick or blow off the lock of the safe, the Court voted thirty "guilty." Judges Church and Peckham, and Senators Johnson, O'Brien and Tieman "not guilty."

On article eighth, in relation to certain orders in the Fisk-Pacific Railroad suit, thirty-five voted "not guilty." Judge Allen excused.

On the twenty-first article, relating to Barnard's action in the suit of Aaron S. Bright against the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, thirty-five voted "guilty."

At three o'clock P. M., the Court adjourned till Monday at ten o'clock A. M. It is thought the Court will be able to finish the case on Monday.

THE WEATHER.

WAR DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER, WASHINGTON, D. C., August 18—1 A. M.

Synopsis for the Past Twenty-four Hours.

The barometer has continued rising over the South Atlantic and Gulf States, where it remains highest, with prevailing fair weather and light southerly winds; clear weather, with southerly and westerly winds, prevail from Ohio to Virginia and northeastwardly over the Middle and Eastern States; the area of low barometer and cloudy weather, with light rain, has moved from Missouri to Eastern Michigan. No reports have been received from the Northwest or Upper Lakes.

Probabilities.

The area of the highest barometer in the South Atlantic move southeastwardly, with clear weather and light southerly and westerly winds from Florida to Virginia, and partly cloudy weather, with variable southeasterly and northwesterly winds on the Gulf; cloudy weather, with rain areas from the Ohio Valley to the lower lakes and eastward over Northern New York; generally clear weather from Virginia to Maine, with fresh southerly winds.

The Weather in this City Yesterday.

The following record will show the changes in the temperature for the past twenty-four hours in comparison with the corresponding day of last year, as indicated by the thermometer at Hudnut's Pharmacy, HERALD Building:—

The Savages in the South in War Paint.

SENDING OUT THE MILITARY.

Opinions of the Governor and Commanders of the Department.

SALT LAKE CITY, August 17, 1872.

The Indian imbroglio is decidedly critical. All the savages in the southern part of the territory appear to exhibit hostility, and are committing all sorts of depredations. Last night five Indians entered a settlement at Mount Pleasant and tomahawked a telegraph operator as he was leaving his office. His skull was fractured by five blows, from which he will probably die.

The citizens are greatly alarmed, and desire Wells, the commander of the Nauvoo Legion, to order out the militia.

Governor Woods, General Ord and General Morrow feel confident that they have force enough to quell the disturbance. Three companies of the Thirteenth infantry, under Captain Hough, left here this morning, also Major Gordon's company of the Second cavalry, for San Pete. Cavalry drawn from the line of the Union prairie are arriving and being sent forward at once.

General Morrow goes to have a conference with the Indians to-night in advance of his force. General Ord goes to Beaver on Monday.

There is a large force of cavalry in the department now under orders, ready to take the field if necessity requires. Fears are entertained for the safety of outlying settlements and mining camps in the south should a general war break out.

The Peace Negotiators from the Government.

DENVER, Colorado, August 17, 1872.

Governor E. M. McCook and Mr. John McDonald, of St. Louis, commissioners to negotiate with the Ute Indians for extinguishing the title to their reservation in Colorado, leave here to-morrow en route for the Los Pinas Agency.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, August 17, 1872.

Sheridan and the Indians.

General Sheridan, in a telegram received by the Secretary of War to-day, dated Chicago, August 17, says that the late exaggerated telegrams of Indian difficulties are founded on an unnecessary alarm. He neither anticipates trouble nor expects any difficulty on the frontier that cannot be controlled by the force now stationed in the territories.

Retirement of a Quartermaster.

Revised Custom House Regulations.

There have been prepared, under the direction of Mr. Elliot, acting Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, supplements 1, 2 and 3 to part 9 of the Revised Customs Regulations of the United States, forming a twenty-four page pamphlet, copies of which have been distributed to the Collectors of Customs for their guidance in making returns on the subject of foreign commerce, shipping, &c., to the bureau above named.

Supplement No. 1 contains a full list of commodities, alphabetically classified, to be used in all statements of foreign merchandise (except that relating to home consumption and imposts), the unit in which the quantity of each article is to be expressed being indicated opposite to its place in the list in another vertical column.

Supplement No. 2 contains a revised list of foreign countries, indicating the order to be observed in making out all statements of commerce by countries. Supplement No. 3 gives a similar list, to be used in making out the statements of entries and clearances of vessels engaged in the trade with the United States. The arrangement of countries, although in the main alphabetical, is such that may be readily grouped by geographical situations or political divisions, as it may be desired to arrange the statistics of their trade. In a second column, opposite each country named, is given a list of the islands, subdivisions, ports, &c., it comprises. These well digested lists will greatly assist in securing that uniformity of method in making out the returns which is so difficult of attainment and yet so indispensable to facilitate collation and to the accuracy of the general results.

The balances in the Treasury at the close of business to-day were as follows:—Coin, $71,504,321, including $30,190,200 coin certificates; currency balance, $7,208,502.

THE FRANKING PRIVILEGE.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, August 17, 1872.

Governor Hayes, in a short speech before the Republican Executive Committee to-day, while not formally accepting the nomination for Congress in the Second district, said that if he was sent to Washington he would eschew the franking privilege, and vote to abolish it.

ALONG THE COAST.

The Scenery and Reflections Thereon from the Branch to Cape May.

MONTAUK THE EASTERN STAR.

Beauties, Belles and Pleasantries of the Seaside.

THE BRIGHTON OF THE UNITED STATES.

Gossip and Political Speculations on Pending Issues.

COASTWISE, August 15, 1872.

"A weary round, upon the whole," said a rich and unemployed bachelor who had been in quest of society, as he does annually. "It is a solemn thought," said he, "that a man without a wife and making a virtue of a contented mind should so soon exhaust all the American beaches. There are but three which bring great crowds of metropolitan folks together—only three!"

"And these?"

First, the Branch; next, Cape May, and last, Newport. All the rest are merely provincial or important prospectively. The great Brighton of New York is still to be created. It must be to the sea what Saratoga is to the land—approachable by rail and by smooth water—not spread out, but compact and sociable. With a safer beach than Long Branch, a higher climate and altitude than Cape May, and without the complacent and frigid society of cottagers, like Newport. It must be a hotel settlement, with more ample and durable edifices than these great pigeon-holed cigar boxes we see. And there is only one spot for it that I know of."

"Montauk?"

"Yes. Montauk is the natural bathing place of New York."

MONTAUK THE EASTERN STAR.

No New Yorker who has visited this spot fails to say the same. It is upon the soil of the Empire State; it is the noblest promontory south of Mount Desert, on the Atlantic coast; it is fifty miles nearer New York than Saratoga by land, and has the smooth water of the Sound and the Peconic Bay as far on the way relatively as the Hudson reaches toward Saratoga. Sag Harbor is but twenty-seven miles from Montauk, as Albany is thirty-eight from Saratoga. By running outside of Gardiner's Island thirty miles along its shore a steamer can land people at Fort Pondbay—which is a dent within Montauk—that is, after a small breakwater be placed there, which the government engineers favor.

VISIT TO MONTAUK.

I went to Montauk during the present season and found the impression prevalent there that Mr. Winchester, of New York, had been buying up from time to time the eighths (two hundred and eighty odd in number) of "the heirs of Montauk," in the interest of the Messrs. Lorillard and others. Montauk is held "in common" by the heirs of the old settlers of East Hampton, and these must be "bought out" before the splendid green plateau there can be utilized. At the tip of Montauk, where the bluff is eighty feet high, the government has a small lighthouse reservation, and the light-keeper is allowed to keep a limited number of lodgers. There are here but three houses within ten miles of this lamp, all farm places, affording entertainment, although the few remaining Montauk Indians possess some cabins.

The verdure, the fishing, the salubrious air, the lofty downs and protected dells of this Land's End of the Empire Commonwealth must ultimately make it the Brighton of New York. There are no mosquitoes; the country is full of wild cattle; water is excellent, game plentiful; and the sailing to Block Island, Gardiner's Island, Fisher's Island and the ports between Saybrook and Newport is of unexampled variety and inspiration. A few seasons may elapse before strong hands gather in this headland and erect a space of it into a summer corporate city, which may also in time have some commercial support.

SARATOGA AHEAD.

As the matter now stands none of our seaside resorts compare in income with the compact and handsome inland spa city of Saratoga, which is erected "to stay," and I have the information from the rival hotel proprietors that Congress Hall alone there, a brick hotel, can clear $60,000 a season, after paying seven per cent a year and refunding ten per cent annually upon a constructive capital of above six hundred thousand dollars. The hotel is said to take $260,000 a year, with but 500 rooms. The Grand Union at Saratoga, with 824 rooms, has already achieved an income during the present season surpassing any previously known. None of the beach places measure income on steady patronage with this, and the great reason is that Saratoga is the spa of New York, the cosmopolitan summer capital of the inland, while the seaside has developed no equal settlement in point of compactness and completeness.

SARATOGA THIS SEASON.

"Yes, there are more people here this season than ever before. People sometimes look doubtfully when we say this, but it is true of each new year. The facilities of the place are extended from year to year, and still everything is full. Two more new hotels are demanded, and may go up this fall. There's the new Grand Central, which adds 400 rooms, and I venture that it will be filled a week after it opens."

Such was the testimony of the town editor, and no doubt it is correct. I can see Saratoga grow every season, and the reasons are manifold. First, the wonderful number and variety of its springs and their necessity to a nation of people with our habits of eating, drinking and cooking. This is the dyspeptic's paradise. A month of regular physicking at Saratoga fits many a man to return to the intense and immethodical labor of the year. These invalids are frequently the most forceful and influential men in our country, whose over-applied lives drive them to the springs for recuperation, and they assemble around them their camp followers and colleagues in politics, railroading, divinity, law and literature. To find any old friend or eminent person, stop a month at Saratoga, and he is pretty sure to come along in due time. The position of the village is another recommendation to it; for nine-tenths of the best scenery and of the summer resorts of the country lie within a day's reach of Saratoga, and it is central to all. From the West the great stream of travel pours by Niagara, taking en route the Glen at Watkins, and the cataracts of Taghanock, Trenton and the Genessee. From the South come by way of Long Branch and the Catskills, the current flowing toward the White and Green mountains, the trout streams of the Adriondacks and the fishing pools of Maine; the Canadian current presses toward New York city by the stern sceneries of lakes George and Champlain. Besides the springs there are two great running meetings here every season, the most complete gaming establishments in the country, the most extraordinary hotel establishments and unequalled music and society.

THE HOTEL KINGS.

You can conceive the scale upon which these hotels are managed when I give the statement of a proprietor of the Grand Union, that his hotel was out $40,000 by reason of being open quite early in the season, before the company had assembled; yet this loss was a trifle upon the fruits of the flood-tide travel. The Congress Hall, erected four years ago upon coupon bonds, is already so prosperous that its proprietor has the ambition to go to Congress, like Marvin, the ex-proprietor of the United States Hotel. The Grand Central is said to have been erected by a gentleman without ready capital who yet had no difficulty in securing the necessary credit to build a brick house 340 by 200 feet and five stories high. Altogether there are now forty-nine hotels at Saratoga.

THE RIALTO BUILDERS.

The architecture of the three principal houses is significant of that remarkable change of form in American structures which is rapidly setting aside the familiar sharp roof, gable chimneys and dormer windows of the America that was half a dozen years ago. A Worcester (Mass.) architect made the plans for the new Congress Hall and the Fort William Henry Hotel at Lake George, and these imposing renaissance villas necessitated the rehabilitation of the Union Hotel, which was faced with an iron piazza of three stories in height, in the style of slender palm trunks shooting up from leaf to leaf cluster at intervals. But more quaint and crotchety than either is the new Grand Central Hotel—formerly designed to be known by the better name of the Arlington—which has also a pair of immense piazzas, a corner pavilion eight stories high, a dome like that contemplated for the New York Post Office, five tiers of dormitories and a row of shops. The main office is not imposing nor spacious; electric bells extend through the house. The roof is treated with Savoyard windows, whose roofs incline forward, slippling fashion: pearl lamps string the piazzas round like a necklace of light, and the profile of the roof is in broken masses, which would demean the structure to say that it is palatial.

Mr. A. T. Stewart proposes to spend $200,000 the coming fall upon the Grand Union, mainly in plumbing, bell-hanging, &c. Moon's celebrated thin potato house on Saratoga Lake has been sold to Jerry, the bar steward of the Union and Gilsey Hotels, the property to be transferred next October and immediately rebuilt. The price paid was $50,000. Moon has been twenty years on the spot, and has made a fortune. His prices, long called extravagant, are fairly matched by those of the New Cedar Bluff Hotel.

The popular springs this year are the Hathorne and Empire, among cathartic waters, and the Hamilton and United States springs among the tonics. Opinion gains ground, denial and analysis to the contrary notwithstanding, that the Congress spring is growing less effective in its cathartic properties. It is still patronized by the largest crowds and is, perhaps, the most palatable of all the waters; but at the drinking hours one hears the remark daily made by old habitues:—

"This water is weaker than it was last year."

The common round now with the multitude is to drink first, before breakfast, at the Hathorne spring, which is a tedious performance, as the water flows slowly, and then to home around by the Congress and wash the strong saline flavor of the Hathorne away with the more palatable beverage.

Several of the springs are closed to all appearances. The Star Spring has no dipper boys; the Crystal is not yet risen from the ruins of the fire which burned the structure above it; the Seltzer Spring is closed and the High Rock Spring has been dug out to the extent of making a cavity as big as a whole dwelling house, while a steam engine, meantime, drills at the rock source of the water day and night. This is the oldest and one of the noblest springs at Saratoga; it was "bulled up" some time ago and failed to pay, owing to mismanagement, expenses and the taint of sulphur in the water. It was sold at auction for $16,000, and the new proprietors have removed the rock and pavilion and are searching for pure water.

GOOD IDEA.

There is a current scandal here that a certain eminent spring was, not long ago, "recuperated" by the secret importation of two thousand sacks of salt, which salt was dexterously repacked in barrels and used in bottling. Experts affect to perceive a great saline superiority in the bottled water of this spring over the flowing fountain. There is plenty of natural salt in the ground, however. The Geyser water, for instance, nauseates by its saline excess. The old Hamilton Spring has recently been improved and adorned, and its mild cathartic and diuretic qualities make it preferred over the exhilarating and sometimes dangerous tonics of the Clarendon and Columbia waters. The same encomium may be made upon the United States Spring, now only four years old, which flows within ten feet of the Pavilion Spring and is under the same colonnade. These springs, lying in the same general valley, might be connected by a more agreeable promenade than at present. The remoteness of some of them from hotel conveniences makes a romaunt among their sources a riskful business. They are nearly all tastefully ornamented, although one or two, like the old Putnam, are in some dilapidation of covering. The value of all the spring property in and about Saratoga (not to include any large appendages of real estate) is probably above five hundred thousand dollars. The use of artificial mineral waters has not injured the sale of natural waters.

FROM THE SPRINGS TO CAPE MAY.

The present letter being a transcript of rapid passages between the watering places, writing as I travelled, requires no apology for its discursiveness.

Pullman car trains run from Jersey City without change to Cape May, for the first time in the history of this latter old watering place, which is, next to old Point Comfort and Newport, the oldest bathing beach on the American coast. The time from New York is six hours; the cars are supplied with linen screens, covering the trucks so as to prevent dust. The distance from New York is about one hundred and sixty miles, and the stoppages are few and brief. The Pennsylvania Railway management, looking with impartial regard upon both Long Branch and the capes of the Delaware, has greatly increased the facilities to reach both, and Cape May, while, perhaps, inferior for driving and riding, has the best beach on the Atlantic, and for bathing, pure and safe, attracts New Yorkers more than any beach south of New Hampshire. Six or eight carriages can drive abreast on the hard sand, and almost daily about six thousand people can be seen in the surf over a section of less than half a mile, while lifeboats, cork rafts, &c., are deputed from each hotel to relieve the foolhardy from the possible fruits of their own recklessness. No lives have been known to be lost here for many years.

THE CAPE MAY BUSINESS.

Cape May, although the top of the long peninsula of New Jersey, has been a settlement for pilots, fishermen and lightkeepers since the period of Philadelphia's commercial prime. It is now a populous, compact and cityfied corporate town, with a daily newspaper in the season, a sufficient police force and magistracy, and hotel property probably worth two and a half millions of dollars. Twenty-five years ago it was the chief seaside resort, per se, in the United States, presenting the first of that mighty sequence of great hotels which now line all the Northern coasts. The three great hotels at present are Congress Hall, the Stockton House and the Columbia Hotel, which, together, can accommodate 2,500 people. They are connected by a beach and gangway walk of plank, by streets full of pretty shops and by the beach sands as well, and, with the lesser houses of entertainment, constitute almost a continuous block of large frame façades and piazzas, not of such difficult and distant intercommunication as Long Branch. A new gambling house—called "Club House," to misrepresent it—is just finished here, and Philadelphians and Baltimoreans compete at the stale old games among the low company they involve.

The following are some of the latest notes upon this pleasure resort:—

THE SEASON AMONG THE QUAKERS.

The benefits arising from taking Cape May's municipal affairs from the hands of the City Council, native and to the manner born, and placing them in the hands of a commission composed of property owners, principally from other cities, are everywhere apparent. The season is at least a week in advance of any of its predecessors; the number of stylish turnouts eclipse those of any former year, and the general representation of guests from all over the Union is much more marked. In past days it was difficult to find a visitor to Cape May outside the States of Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. To-day we find them hailing west of the Rocky Mountains, from the Gulf States and even from abroad. Several of the foreign consuls and members of legation are here.

THE HOTELS,

therefore, are all doing excellently well. Congress Hall maintains its rank as a representative house, and at the present writing every room within its portals contains its full quota of guests, and cots adorn the card room and parlors. Among its guests we find John Hopkins, the richest man in Baltimore, and who is at present building that city a new general hospital and a college; Senator Robinson, of North Carolina; J. H. Campbell, ex-United States Minister to Holland; B. F. Briggs, Congressman from Delaware; Rev. J. P. Newman, Chaplain of the United States Senate, and Mr. Abell, editor of the Baltimore Sun.

Mr. Hopkins is worth $16,000,000, yet he complains of being always poor.

"Hopkins," said a Quaker friend, "I'll tell thee why thee keeps poor. I guessed it out."

"How?" said Hopkins.

"Thee bought, in the first place, many years ago, a piece of property with a mortgage, and exerted thyself to pay off that mortgage. Before it was paid thee had bought another piece and another mortgage. And even at this day thee hast a mortgage to discharge upon the last piece of property thee acquired."

"You've guessed it right," said John Hopkins.

THE STYLISH EQUIPAGES.

Decidedly the handsomest teams on the road at Cape Map are owned by Mr. William F. Potts, a millionnaire iron merchant, of Philadelphia, and Mr. Robert Dryden, a retired merchant, of Baltimore. The former drives a pair of iron-gray horses that take the shell road in three minutes while harnessed to a landaulet; the latter has a pair of blooded Kentucky sorrel mares and a trotting Morgan pony, the three drawing some of Brewster's prettiest rolling stock. Gould, a dealer in furniture in Philadelphia, drives a four-in-hand; George S. Brown, the Baltimore banker, has six horses stabled here; George T. Peabody, of Philadelphia, has a handsome drag and pair; ditto, M. Hall Stanton, President of the Philadelphia Board of School Comptrollers, and John T. School, a prominent democratic politician.

A feature of Cape May are the pony phaetons driven by the young ladies, with their beaux seated in the rumbles. These pretty little conveyances, most of them constructed of basket work, and some of them quite handsome, dot the beach every afternoon after sundown.

The Philadelphia steamboat runs every second day from Philadelphia to Cape May. The New York steamer to Lewis, opposite, does not stop here. At the Stockton House, owned by the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, and managed by Mr. Charles Duffy, of the Continental, Philadelphia, are Chief Justice Thompson, of Pennsylvania; S. M. Felton, ex-President Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad; General E. B. Grub, of Burlington, N. J.; Harvey Fisk, of New York; William H. Ellicott, Henry W. Shriver, J. R. Mordecai, George S. Brown, General Morgan, L. Smith, of Baltimore; Louis Potestad, of the Spanish Legation at Washington; William B. Keen, of Chicago, and T. B. Peterson, the book publisher, of Philadelphia.

THE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEES.

Greeley and Grant are both looked for at Cape May in August. The President will stop at Congress Hall, and Greeley, after addressing an agricultural fair at Cape May Court House, will pay a flying visit. Greeley will show Grant what he knows about sea bathing, and Grant will show Greeley what he knows about breakers. Both candidates are also expected at Saratoga.

JUDGE W. D. KELLEY.

The above distinguished Philadelphia Congressman, who comes to Cape May, will, it is said, make no speeches against Greeley in this campaign, as the democrats in his district have indicated a disposition to put up no candidate in compliment to Kelley's bold resistance to the passage of the Ku Klux bill. He will go to Congress, it is said, by the united vote of the constituency. This is making marvellous headway, indeed.

BALTIMORE ARCHBISHOPRIC.

Positive Assurance of Bishop Bayley's Appointment—The Bishop Elder's Report Authoritatively Pronounced "Not Correct"—The Newark Bishopric.

In view of the fact that the See of Baltimore takes precedence of all others in the Catholic Church of the United States, in consequence of its seniority of establishment, it is only natural to surmise that not only the Catholic clergy but the Catholic laity all over the country are considerably agitated over the conflicting reports regarding the appointment of a successor to the late Martin John Spalding, Archbishop of Baltimore. There is now, however, the very best authority for saying that the appointment of Bishop Bayley, of Newark, to the Archdiocese is no longer a matter of doubt, but an assured fact. Yesterday afternoon a HERALD representative visited the Bishop's residence, an extremely modest and unassuming brick building, located in Bleecker street, directly in the rear of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, thinking it probable that the Bishop himself would be best informed in relation to the matter. He had not returned from Madison where, as before stated, he is taking a short season of rest, necessary after a season of arduous and wearying labor. His secretary, Rev. George H. Doane, was present, however, and received the reporter with characteristic cordiality. He expressed his regret that the appointment had given rise to so much controversy. Sorry and sad enough were he and his fellow clergy to lose their beloved friend and Bishop, but it was painful to see any conflicting stories as to his elevation to the See of Baltimore. He (Father Darne) had not the smallest particle of doubt of Bishop Bayley's appointment.

THE CONVINCING PROOFS.

Bishop Bayley has received a letter from the Very Rev. Dr. Chatard, rector of the American College at Rome, in which the latter referred to the promotion as a matter about which Bishop Bayley had, of course, been apprised before the letter could have reached him. Bishop Gibbons, Vicar Apostolic of North Carolina, Father Doane stated, had also received a telegram from Rome conveying the intelligence that Bishop Bayley had been chosen as Archbishop Spalding's successor. Besides this, one or two letters have been received bearing the postmark "Roma," and addressed to "Most Reverend James R. Bayley, Archbishop of Baltimore." The most convincing link, perhaps, in the evidence going to prove the Bishop's selection is the authoritative statement of Archbishop McCloskey that the first report announcing the receipt by him of a telegram from Rome setting forth Bishop Elder's appointment was "not correct." He so telegraphed to an anxious journalist in Baltimore. The official bulls are probably now on their way from Rome, and may be looked for in about a week or ten days. As they have to be written on parchment with great care, in the Latin language, the delay is accounted for.

Speaking for himself, Father Doane said he had hoped, as the Bishop had himself, that the reported appointment of Bishop Elder would prove true, but the evidence to the contrary was so ample and strong that further hope was useless. The parting of Bishop Bayley from his clergy in Newark, as well as his people, will be most affecting. Few, none, indeed, will feel it more than Father Doane; for, as he said yesterday, the Bishop had been his friend and father as well as his spiritual guide and counsellor during his (Father Doane's) entire connection with the Catholic Church. They had dwelt under the same roof and eaten at the same table for fifteen years. The Father spoke with some emotion and evidently felt in his heart every word which issued from his lips. Regarding the Bishop's probable successor, the Father said it was the merest guesswork yet. He had heard very little on the subject. In other quarters it was learned that the names of the Rev. Father Schmitt, of Trenton; Very Rev. Father Corrigan, of Seton Hall College, and Dr. Preston, of New York, were mentioned, Dr. Preston being the favorite.

CLERICAL CHANGES.

Transfer of Father Penny—Appointment of Dr. Duffy.

The Rev. John McCloskey, Archbishop of New York, has transferred the Rev. Father Penny from St. Joseph's, Sixth avenue, to the assistant pastorate of St. James'. The Rev. John J. Duffy, D. D., has been appointed assistant pastor of St. Joseph's. Dr. Duffy was born in this city and educated at the American College, Rome, at which establishment he graduated last June with the highest honors.

NEW YORK CITY.

The vital statistics during the week ending at noon to-day are 752 deaths, 163 marriages, 401 births and 43 stillbirths.

The arrests by the police for the week ending August 16 were 1,784. The arrests each day were as follows:—August 10, 279; 11th, 278; 12th, 308; 13th, 238; 14th, 223; 15th, 254, and 16th, 204, making the above total. There were 1,456 police lodgers during the week.

Mr. E. J. Hall, Chief of the Ordinance Bureau of the Mayor's Office, reports having received during the past week 245 complaints of violations of city ordinances. They were referred to the proper departments for remedy. Marshal Hart, of the License Bureau, issued 299 licenses during the same period, which brought a revenue of $2,607 25.

James Donahue, Superintendent of the Free Labor Bureau, Nos. 8 and 10 Clinton place, makes the following report of business for the week ending August 17:—Applications for employment, 1,074; of these there were 252 males and 822 females; male help required, 212; female, 901; situations procured for 193 males and 755 females; whole number of situations procured for the week, 948.

Yesterday afternoon, as the second mate of the bark Lavinia, which is lying at the upper Quarantine, was on his way from Staten Island to the vessel, in the yawl boat, with her sail up, she capsized in some unaccountable way, and before any assistance could reach her the mate drowned—it is supposed he was disabled in some manner. His name was not learned.

Peter Givers, a boy about seventeen years of age, was arraigned at the Yorkville Police Court yesterday morning, charged with cruelty to animals. He and other boys took an old horse belonging to a poor woman in Yorkville down to the East River, where Givers shot him. The others drove spikes into the poor beast's sides and broke one of his legs. They then pushed him into the river and he was drowned. Warrants are out for the arrest of the other boys, and when arrested all will be prosecuted by Mr. Bergh's officers.

The superintendents, watchmen and laborers engaged in the care and maintenance of the Croton Aqueduct in Westchester and Putnam counties have not yet received their pay for the month of June last, owing to the fact that a warrant drawn to the order of a city paymaster appointed by Comptroller Green, who claims the right to make the appointment and which right Chamberlain Palmer declines to recognize, is not paid. The laborer is worthy of his hire, regardless of the petty squabbles of city officials, and it is high time that they should be ended.

Fire Marshal McSpedon reports twenty fires for the week ending August 17 at noon. The estimated loss is $3,340; amount of insurance, $21,200. The causes of the several fires were as follows:—Carelessness of occupants and employés, 6; children playing with fire, 1; explosion of chemicals, 1; foul chimney, 1; gaslight set fire to goods, 1; gaspipe, leaks in, 2; grease falling into fire, 1; kerosene lamp, explosion of, 1; kerosene lamp, upsetting of, 1; malicious mischief, 1; spontaneous combustion, 2; superheated steam, 1; not yet ascertained, 1.

THE RED RIVER REPORT.

A Herald Reporter's Interview with General Banks—The General Is Not Afraid of Them—And Does'nt Appear To Be.

"General, you're just the gentleman I want to see. Can I have a word or two with you?" said a HERALD reporter when he accidentally ran across General Nathaniel P. Banks, of Massachussetts, yesterday afternoon.

"Certainly, sir," said General Banks, "how can I oblige you?"

"Just look at this," said the reporter, pointing to the paragraph of the Washington despatch in the HERALD of yesterday, wherein it was intimated that the government candidate was about to publish, or cause to be published—and that without an apology for delaying to this late day, what the administration now pretends to consider a public duty—the official report of the famous Red River expedition, of 1864, and great failure of General Banks in that connection.

The Massachusetts statesman looked at the paragraph in question, and said he knew nothing about it. There was nothing in connection with that affair that he could have reason to be ashamed of, and no charge could be brought against him thereanent which he could not thoroughly refute or explain to the satisfaction of his friends or the public. "Oh, no," concluded the General; "there is nothing in that; it is an empty administration threat. I don't know, of course, what they may fix up; but, whatever it is, I am not afraid of them." And he looked out from those bold clear eyes as if he certainly was not afraid very much.

THE INGERSOLL MYSTERY.

Who Arrested the Great Chairmaker? The Police and the Sheriff's Office Respectively Claim Credit.

The published facts show that Chairmaker Ingersoll has been sailing around the city for nearly six months—ever since indictments were found against him by the Court for participation in the most glaring frauds that were ever perpetrated upon a city on this or any other Hemisphere; that he has almost daily visited his residence in East Forty-seventh street, and from there proceeded to his home in Connecticut. Yet Sheriff and Police Commissioner Matthew T. Brennan and his officers were unable to arrest this man. It remained for a detective of the Eighteenth precinct to capture the great man and the offender. After he had secured him the Sheriff's officers were very happy to take him into custody and hold him upon another (civil) charge.

Yesterday afternoon a reporter of the HERALD called at the office of Sheriff Brennan. He was informed that Mr. Brennan could not be seen. He, however, entered the ante-room of the Sheriff's office, and a few minutes later was admitted to an audience with Sheriff Matt. T. Brennan.

REPORTER (placing before Mr. Brennan Attorney General Barlow's order requesting him to deal leniently with Andrew J. Garvey)—Mr. Brennan, I would like to know whether there is any combination made, or any agreement between you and Attorney General Barlow, who left to-day for Lenox, Massachusetts, to make Garvey a State's witness?

Mr. BRENNAN—I have seen Mr. Barlow but a few times in my life; but I most emphatically say that I know no political party. I am here to execute the law and I strive to do it.

"But, Sheriff," said the reporter, "it has been asserted that you released Ingersoll the other day without requiring him to enter into bail."

Mr. BRENNAN—It is a lie. There was tendered more bail than was required. That letter to me signed by Barlow is partially correct as regards Andrew J. Garvey. The Attorney General sent me a verbal message through my deputy, Mr. Stevens, which I never received. When I received the letter I asked my deputies, and then for the first time I learned that the Attorney General hadmade a verbal request of this kind of Mr. Stevens.

"But," said the wily reporter, "how comes it, Mr. Brennan, that the arrest was made by a ward detective?"

This question rather staggered the genial Sheriff; but, recovering himself, he said he could not explain it, except by the fact that the order of arrest of Ingersoll was renewed from day to day. He, however, personally entered Judge Bedford's Court and arrested Ingersoll on the civil suit.

Mr. Brennan most emphatically declared to the reporter that in all the processes of his office he had observed the law, and he gave an amusing account of Wheeler H. Peckham's visit to his residence at half-past twelve o'clock on the night in question. Peckham, the Sheriff says, violently knocked at his door, on the Boulevard, and was refused admission by the attendant. Peckham left indignant, and the next morning appeared at the Sheriff's office at the proper hour and transacted his business, although highly indignant that the Sheriff of the city and county of New York had not turned out of bed at the behest of Wheeler H. Peckham.

The interview, which lasted half an hour, was principally of a private nature. Speaking of the old veteran, William M. Tweed, the reporter put in the question:—

"Sheriff, where does the Boss stand? It is said he has joined Grant."

"I do not think so," said Mr. Brennan. "His sympathies have always been with the democratic party."

"But, Mr. Brennan, it is openly charged that he has joined O'Brien and Grant."

Mr. BRENNAN (with a peculiar look in his eye)—I do not know where Tweed stands. I have seen him but seldom since his arrest. I would like to pay my respects to him, but have refrained for the reason that were I to call upon him every reporter in the city would be at my heels, and it would be announced that I had visited Mr. Tweed on official business. Mr. Tweed has always been a democrat, and I believe is still one. I do not believe that he will throw his influence into the administration balance.

After a few commonplace observations on politics generally and the weather the reporter withdrew.

THE STEAMSHIP VIBILIA.

A Suez Line of Steamers from London to India and China—Arrival in This Port of the Pioneer Steamship on a Trial Trip.

Inaugurating a new era in travel and commerce to India from London has been the recent establishment of a new line of steamships to run between the English capital and various East Indian ports. A pioneer steamship of this line, the Vibilia, arrived at this port on last Tuesday, she having come here on a trial trip. This steamship, which is built of iron, was built at Newcastle-on-Tyne, was constructed specially for the navigation of the Suez Canal, the China seas and Indian Ocean. Her construction was in conformity to the long experiences in eastern navigation of Captain C. H. J. Baker, her present Commander. As far as perfection is possible in the construction of ocean steamships, it is shown in this. Her ventilation, a consideration of primal importance, is perfection itself. Her cabin, a model of elegance and beauty, is the synonym of coolness and comfort. On either side are windows admitting free circulation of air, all her panels are of marble and bird's-eye maple, and the floor lined with Minton tiles. This cabin is also furnished with a piano, a pleasing and almost indispensable addenda to the enjoyment of steamship travellers. The same regard to thorough ventilation and comfort shows itself in the staterooms. More capacious and elegant staterooms are not to be found in any of our ocean steamers. There are also five bathrooms, an indispensable luxury in this age of advanced steamship civilization. In every respect, in size, construction, beauty of lines, appointments and perfection of finish this steamer certainly stands head and shoulders ahead of any steamer ever before entering this port.

The Vibilia, as will be seen by her dimensions, is a colossal steamer. Her length is 302 feet, breadth of beam 36 feet and depth of hold 26 feet. She has bunk accommodations for 450 tons of coal, registers 1,240 tons and carries 2,240 tons of cargo in a draft of 19 feet water. Her consumption of fuel is only seventeen to nineteen tons of coal in twenty-four hours, and when loaded she steams twelve knots—a thing unheard of in previous ocean steamship navigation. The Vibilia is now lying at pier No. 14 East River. She started from London on the same day as the Helvetia; but, although stopping at Plymouth for forty-eight hours to take in coal, arrived at this port nearly three days in advance of the latter steamer. In every respect the trial trip has proved satisfactory, the engines never having had to stop once, which (she being a new steamship) is a wonderful performance. She brought no passengers with her, but will take a limited number on her return, which will be in about a week. Those contemplating a voyage to Europe cannot do better than inspect her accommodations, or any inquiries of Bruce & Co., 13 Broadway, her agents, will be cheerfully answered. Meantime it is said that this line is the precursor of a similar line soon to be established between London and New York. If such a line is established, and if it is composed of such fine steamships as the Vibilia, it cannot, in the rapid increase in transatlantic travel, be otherwise than successful.

AUDACIOUS ROBBERY IN BROOKLYN.

Four Hundred Dollars Taken from a Cashier's Desk—Pistols and a Rowboat Effect a Safe Retreat for the Thieves.

One of the most daring and successful robberies ever committed in Brooklyn was reported by the police of the Second precinct of that city last evening. About five o'clock two rough looking young men, one of whom carried an envelope in his hand, entered the office of the sewing machine manufactory, of Blees & Co., corner of John and Bridge streets, and approaching the desk at which the head of the firm was seated, engaged in paying off the workmen, gave Mr. Blees the decoy note. The latter undertook to break open the document, and while thus engaged the accomplice of the ruffian who delivered it suddenly seized a roll of greenbacks, amounting to $400, that was lying on the desk. The men present were stunned for a moment by surprise at the audacity of the act, but, regaining their presence of mind, closed in about the robbers to dispossess them of the money. The thieves, however, were armed, and drawing revolvers presented the muzzles of their weapons at them, threatening to shoot any one who attempted to molest them. As they did so they receded, and backing out of the office gained the sidewalk. They then turned and ran off rapidly down John street to Gold street and through the latter thoroughfare to the dock. They were pursued and a "hue and cry" raised, but their weapons warned back their pursuers to a respectful distance. At the wharf they were met by three of their gang, who had a rowboat in waiting. Into the latter craft they tumbled "pell mell," and were rapidly pulled away from the Brooklyn shore out into the stream and thence to New York, where they landed. Subsequently Patrolman Bedell, of the Second precinct, ascertained that Hugh O'Connor, alias John Smith, twenty-two years of age, had been seen in close conversation with the robbers just prior to the consummation of the audacious act, and the officer took O'Connor into custody on suspicion of his being an accomplice of the rascals. The prisoner, who bears a bad reputation among the police, passed a pistol to a friend as soon as the officer arrested him. The impression is that the accused planned the undertaking, and if he will only "peach" or "squeal," as the detectives term it, they will be able to arrest the daring thieves.

THE NEW YORK CUSTOM HOUSE.

An Inside View of the Government Collection of the Duties of the Port.

What Politics Have To Do with the Working Executive—The Custom House Departments Described—Interesting Statistics—The Import Duties in 1800—An Old Time Vessel.

One hundred and forty-eight million, nine hundred and eighty-one thousand, seven hundred and seventy-eight dollars and seventy-three cents was the amount of duty collected at the Custom House in this city for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1872, or an average of $2,745,412 81 for every week in the year. When it is taken into consideration that this is the receipt of only one collection district, although the largest in the country, some idea can be formed of involved in handling such fabulous amounts, and the complicated yet compact system of organization to accomplish the desired result. The business of importation during the past ten years has received an impetus from the introduction of the fleet seagoing steam vessels and the successful operation of the submarine telegraph lines, which, in a measure, have connected the two continents as by a bridge.

THE GREAT PROSPERITY of our country likewise contributes largely to the increase of imports, while a reduced tariff, judiciously distributed on dispensable articles, whereas others are entirely duty free, will have a tendency to stimulate greater traffic and a corresponding increase of governmental revenue. Of all the departments under the United States government that of the New York Custom House is everything else but a sinecure. In this establishment there is the greatest amount of

HARD LABOR PERFORMED;

and from the messenger to the Collector of the Port the small pittance paid as salary is richly earned. During office hours, and sometimes before and long after, the officer is forced to be at his post. The most perfect system of co-operation and checking is observed, and seldom, if ever, any errors appear without being at once detected. While the heads of the various bureaus are generally appointments due to political preference, the clerical force, as a generality, are not disturbed. Thus, if an officer is true, faithful and competent, he need not fear decapitation, no matter what administration comes into power.

A NUMBER OF THE DEPUTY COLLECTORS have held office for a length of time, ranging from four to sixteen years, while Mr. C. P. Clinch, the Assistant Collector, has performed his functions for upwards of four score years. Mr. Van Buskirk, the venerable head of the Custom House Inspectors at the Barge Office, begun his official career in the government service in 1831, and still remains at his post in the full vigor of manhood. Mr. S. G. Ogden, the Auditor, is an occupant of his office since 1841; while Mr. T. V. Mumford, a clerk in charge of the immediate transportation, without appraisement, received his appointment in 1829, and held the same, without interruption, ever since. Mr. W. D. Robinson, cashier, and Mr. F. H. Fay, one of his tellers, were appointed in 1841. Deputy Collector John R. Lydecker came into office 1857; Mr. Joseph Treloar, Chief Clerk to the Assistant Collector, 1853, and some thirty others who have been employed at the Custom House from ten to thirty years. Thus it may be seen that, notwithstanding the general belief, is not always the sine qua non of obtaining a Custom House position, at least in the important branches of this establishment. Since the advent of General Arthur not a solitary removal, except for cause, has occurred, and neither does he contemplate to effect any, even to please the political factions.

POLITICAL PREFERENCE

THE CIVIL SERVICE BILL

is strictly observed by him, and promotions are made in cases deserving preferment similar to that of a commercial house. The great secret to the mystery how such an enormous amount of business can be transacted here without any ostentation is, that the Golden Rule, "Everything in its place, and a place for everything," is strictly observed.

To give a detailed account of every branch connected with the Customs Department of this port would fill the entire pages of one edition; but we propose merely to mention some of the most important coming under the immediate supervision of the Collector, which will indicate some idea of the perfect system observed. First comes

THE WAREHOUSING ENTRIES.

The merchant presents his entries with marks, numbers and contents of packages to the entry clerk, who marks on an entry, the rates and amounts of duties. The entry clerk makes out the permit, stamps the invoice and endorses thereon the amount of invoice value of goods for the information of the appraiser; also endorses thereon the several rates at which goods have been taken. The entry is then taken to the naval office, where the same process is had by comparison and amounts if found correct checked. From there the entry goes to a deputy collector, who orders the packages for examination, and if all the goods are not sent to the appraisers for examination that the goods, in case they are called for, are produced on demand. The merchant then swears to the entry, whence it goes to the Naval Office cashier, who checks the amount of duty and puts the amount of such to be paid on a sheet record. The entry then is presented to the Collector's cashier and the duties paid, when the documents are checked by the cashier as evidence of being correct. Hereupon the permit is signed by the Naval Officer and Deputy Collector and taken to the store. The goods then pass into the hands of the Appraiser, who compares the appraised value with the invoices. From here the entries are transferred to

A BOND MUST BE GIVEN

THE LIQUIDATING DEPARTMENT of the Custom House, which at the present time, owing to the immense importations, sustains the greatest strain of labor. The duties performed therein are as follows:—To liquidate an entry the liquidator has first to observe the report of the Appraiser on the invoice, whether any additions have been made to raise the importation to the market value at the time of exportation from the port of embarkation; whether a penalty has been assessed in consequence of undervaluation by ten per cent of the whole invoice. There are such as woollens, on which the Appraiser has also to report the weight, as they pay both ad valorem and specific duty. This requires great nicety on the part of the liquidators, who have to reduce foreign coinage and weights to the American standard; and as the duties on glass have to be assessed by the square foot, it is easily conceived what labor devolves upon the liquidator, who has to reduce the square foot to inches of every pane in each of the various sized boxes imported. Goods are sometimes imported when a portion of the invoice has been short shipped.

SOME CLASSES OF GOODS,

THE DUTY OF THE LIQUIDATOR

then is to ascertain from the report of the discharging officer of the vessel what portion of the invoice has to be allowed in rebate of duties. On all weighable and gaugeable goods returns have formed the basis of liquidation. But proof of short shipment lies with the importer, the liquidator not being justified to adjust an entry without such evidence. There are sometimes entries of dry goods covering as many as two hundred and fifty cases of merchandise, with perhaps of fifteen or twenty classifications, which it is the duty of the liquidator, by the Appraiser's report, to adjust. The liquidation department is under the superintendence of the Deputy Collector of the Third division and forms and one of his most important adjuncts.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF OUR READERS

we herewith give the various duties performed by the Collector, Naval Officer, Surveyor and Appraiser. As all of them form the Custom Department together it is interesting to know the particular functions each has to carry out pursuant to law.

THE COLLECTOR OF THE PORT

receives all reports, manifests and documents to be made or exhibited on the entry of any ship or vessel according to the regulations existing, records in books to be kept for that purpose all manifests, receives the entries of all ships or vessels, and of the goods, wares and merchandise imported in them. The Collector, with the Naval Officer, estimates the amount upon the respective entries. He also receives all moneys paid for duties, and takes all bonds for securing the payment thereof, grants all permits for the unlading and delivery of goods, and, with the approbation of the principal officer of the Treasury Department, employs proper persons as weighers, gaugers, measurers and inspectors; and also, with the like approbation, provides, at the public expense, storehouses for the safe keeping, examining and appraising of goods and such scales, weights and measures as may be necessary.

THE NAVAL OFFICER

receives copies of all manifests and entries, and, together with the Collector, estimates the duties on all goods, wares and merchandise subject to duty (and no duties shall be received without such estimate), and keeps a separate record thereof; countersigns all permits, clearances, certificates, debentures and other documents to be granted by the Collector; examines the Collector's abstract of duties and other accounts of receipts, bonds and expenditures, and if found right certifies the same.

THE SURVEYOR OF THE PORT

superintends and directs all inspectors, weighers, measurers and gaugers within his port, and reports once a week to the Collector the name or names of the above officers who may be absent or neglect their duty; visits all ships or vessels which arrive, which he is to report daily to the Collector, and, in fact, the Surveyor may be termed the executive officer of the Collector.

THE APPRAISER

must be practically acquainted with the quality and value of articles of importation, and conduct the appraisement of goods as may be ordered by the Collector to have the proper value ascertained.

THE VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS

in the Custom House are divided into nine divisions, all under the supervision of the Collector and Assistant Collector. The latter by law exercises all the powers conferred upon the Collector, hears and decides all questions that arise within the scope of his duties and responsibilities, particularly all questions relating to rates of duties, damage, penalties and forfeitures, and has the custody of the records of official correspondence. Mr. Charles P. Clinch has been Assistant Collector now for upwards of forty years, having served under one dozen different administrations.

THE FIRST DIVISION

is the Auditor's Department, accounts with the Treasury, disbursements, return of duties and excess of deposits, payment of drawbacks, liquidation of consumption entries and adjustment of damages; statistics of imports, exports, tonnage and passengers; correspondence relating to the business of this division.

THE SECOND DIVISION,

the Cashier's Department, attends to the collection of duties and fees.

THE THIRD DIVISION, or Department of the Storekeeper of the Port, is the most important branch of the Custom House, and embraces the superintendence of all warehouse business, warehoused and unclaimed goods, the private and public warehouses, and all the correspondence growing out of or connected with the same, and the current business of the office.

IN THE FOURTH DIVISION is conducted all business preparatory to the entrance and clearance of vessels; the registry, enrolling and licensing of vessels; granting protection to seamen; recording bills of sale and mortgage of vessels; the examination and comparison of manifests with officers' returns, and all correspondence growing out of or connected therewith, and the current business of the office.

FIFTH DIVISION.

Under this head come the following duties:—The control and direction of the business of all the entry clerks other than those in the Warehouse Department; fixing rates of duties and all other questions arising out of entries for and landing of goods for consumption, and the exclusive direction of the issue of "free permits" and the current business of the office.

THE SIXTH DIVISION has the control and direction of the invoice clerks, and the custody of all invoices and certificates, and the current business of the office.

THE SEVENTH DIVISION.

Under this come the control and direction of the order clerks, and the issue of delivery orders and the current business of the office.

THE EIGHTH DIVISION has the custody of the public store, the control of the Collector's clerks and laborers employed therein; the reception and distribution to their respective appraising rooms of all packages sent to the store for examination and appraisement, and the delivery of the same to the importer, or the transfer thereof to bonded warehouse, as the case may require.

IN THE NINTH DIVISION

come the supervision of all exports entitled to drawback of internal revenue and customs duties on articles manufactured from foreign materials; the ascertaining and certifying such duties; the charge of all export entry papers for the benefit of drawbacks and officers' returns thereon, and of certificates in proof of the landing of such exports abroad. Total number of ships arrived from foreign ports at the port of New York, from January 2, 1800, to December 31, 1800, 1,095. About two thirds of these were American vessels, the balance French and Dutch, and only two carried the English flag.

ONE OF THE OLD-TIME VESSELS was the ship Brutus, commanded by Captain Solomon Bunker and owned by Thomas Jenkins & Sons, of Hudson. The Brutus was built at Hudson, on the Hudson River, in 1798, at that time a large port of entry, and being 270 tons burden was considered a floating caravansary. On the 21st of June, 1800, the Brutus arrived at New York from Bristol, England, with an assorted cargo, consisting of grinding stones, ground white lead, pipes, iron pots, window glass, hollow ware and 2,000 bushels of white salt. The entire duties collected from the cargo of that vessel amounted to $8,393 06. Thirty-eight consignees shared the cargo of this ship, averaging to each a duty of $220 87. In those times this amount was considered very large. To compare the business then and now would be invidious, as one of our merchant princes alone pays as much duty in one year as the entire trade of the city then afforded.

THE PITCHER HOMICIDE.

The Drunken Debauch in Washington Street—Inquest by Coroner Keenan.

About six o'clock P. M. on the evening of the 29th of July Patrick Braniff and Thomas Collins, two Ninth ward celebrities, had a quarrel corner of Horatio and Washington streets, resulting in a fight between them, during which, with a broken pitcher, the former struck the latter in the neck, nearly severing the jugular vein. Braniff lingered at Bellevue Hospital until the evening of the 10th inst., when he died.

Coroner Keenan yesterday held an inquest at the Coroners' office, when the following evidence was recorded. Counsellor Kintzing appeared for the prisoner, Collins. The evidence is as follows:—

Sergeant James B. Wilson, of the Ninth precinct, testified that on the evening of the 29th July, while standing on the corner of Washington and Little Twelfth streets, he saw Collins emerge from a grocery store with a pitcher in one of his hands; while carrying it out the pitcher was broken; witness saw Collins strike Braniff in the neck with it, and at once arrested him; the wounded man in the meantime ran up to a water trough, near a livery stable; the prisoner (Collins) was under the influence of liquor; he was locked up in the station house and the wounded man was sent to Bellevue Hospital. The sergeant did not witness the assault, but he heard that deceased and the prisoner had been fighting. The witness further testified that deceased had been arrested several times for larceny, and that the prisoner had also been in custody for violations of the law.

Jesse Columbus testified that on the evening in question he witnessed the fight; said prisoner had a pitcher of beer, from which deceased wanted to drink; that Collins set the pitcher down and a struggle ensued between the men, in which the pitcher was broken, but finally Collins secured it and struck deceased with it in the neck.

The accused was here sworn (after the usual caution) and testified that the deceased asked him to treat; he replied that he had no credit; witness subsequently entered a lager beer saloon and secured a pitcher of beer; the beer was consumed by witness and deceased, and the pitcher was given to Braniff to take back to the saloon; later deceased pursued witness to Washington street with the pitcher in his hand; witness asked him why he had not returned the pitcher, and he said he had got some more beer. Witness swore that he remembered nothing more until Sergeant Wilson arrested him. At that time he (witness) was under the influence of liquor, having drank considerable.

Deputy Coroner Marsh, who made the post-mortem, described the wound which, in his opinion, caused death.

The jury rendered a verdict that deceased came to his death from injuries received on the 29th of July at the hands of Timothy Collins, at the corner of Washington and West Twelfth streets.

The Coroner at once committed the prisoner to await the action of the Grand Jury, refusing the application of Counsellor Kintzing to admit the accused to bail.

POLICE COURT INCIDENTS.

Peter Duanee and a correspondent from a Western paper in this city were among the unfortunates who fell into the hands of the police on Friday night. They were arraigned at the Yorkville Police Court yesterday, where the correspondent made himself known to Justice Coulter, the presiding magistrate. He was found insensible on the street, not from whiskey, as the officer charged, but from the effects of some kind of drug. The Court said he would take the most charitable view of the matter and allowed him his liberty.

Peter, the other prisoner, said he was from Chester, Pa.; he had come to this city on a visit to his sister, got drunk, was drugged and lost $85, all the money he had, and a coat worth $35. He was allowed to go on condition that he left the city immediately.

EARNINGS OF THE ERIE RAILWAY.

WALL STREET, SATURDAY, August 17—6 P. M.

On 'Change to-day wheat was steady and less active. Flour showed an improving tendency and moderate activity. The cotton market was unchanged.

THE COTTON MOVEMENT.

The receipts of cotton at all the ports for the past week were 2,472 bales, against 1,178 bales the previous week. The total receipts since September 1, 1871, are 2,714,436 bales, against 3,995,054 bales for the corresponding period of previous year, showing a decrease in the present crop of 1,280,618 bales. The exports from all the ports for the week were 7,688 bales, against 17,647 bales last year. The total exports for the expired portion of the cotton year are 1,952,367 bales, against 3,136,607 bales for the same time last year. The stock at all the ports is 67,298 bales, against 114,421 bales for the same date in 1871.

THE IMPORTS OF THE WEEK.

The total imports at this port during the past week were $10,139,006.

The imports of foreign dry goods at the port of New York for the week ending August 16, and since the beginning of the year, have been as follows:—

For the Week.	1870.	1871.	1872.
Entered at port...	$1,975,143	$3,236,154	$5,422,036
Thrown on market	2,177,728	3,473,826	6,000,850
Since Jan. 1.
Entered at port...	62,378,752	85,319,950	95,047,895
Thrown on market	62,936,257	82,913,954	87,422,651

The imports of merchandise, other than dry goods, amounted to $4,716,970.

MONEY FOUR TO TWO PER CENT.

An effort was made to establish the rate for money at 4 per cent, and a little business was done at that figure; but the quotation dropped to 3 per cent, and the closing transactions were at 2 a 2½ per cent. An effort is being made to get up a sensation over an active money market at Montreal. The latest advices from Peoria represent money easy in that centre, so that we needn't be alarmed about Montreal. Prime discounts are steady at 7 per cent, and foreign exchange left off moderately firm on the basis of 108⅞ and 109⅝ as the asking rates for prime sterling.

THE BANK STATEMENT.

The weekly statement of the associated banks is favorable in so far as it shows a much stronger position of the banks in their reserve, which bears a larger proportion to liabilities than it did last week, the surplus above the legal limit having increased about $650,000. The least satisfactory feature is a loss of two millions in legal tenders, which is offset so far as reserve is concerned by a more than equal gain in specie, but points to an outward movement of money—doubtless as a beginning of the usual efflux of currency at this season and later on in the Fall. The loss in deposits is just the amount of the loss in greenbacks. The decrease in loans is nominally three and a half millions, three millions of which is a correction of an error in last week's statement. The gain in specie is the most inexplicable result, and has been taken to mean that the gold clique sold a good deal of their holdings when the market dropped to 114⅝ early in the week. The statement compares with its predecessor as follows:—

	August 10.	August 17.
Loans	$299,586,500	$295,802,800
Specie	18,199,000	20,399,300
Circulation	27,313,000	27,290,600
Deposits	237,668,200	235,757,600
Legal tenders	54,570,600	52,533,400

The changes since last week being as follows:—

Decrease in loans	$3,583,700
Increase in specie	2,200,300
Decrease in circulation	22,400
Decrease in deposits	1,910,600
Decrease in legal tenders	2,037,200

GOVERNMENTS STRONG.

A decided revival in the European inquiry for our bonds has been the feature of the government market toward the close of the week, the demand running chiefly on the "long" sixes and on the 67's, the latter being fairly active to-day with an advance to 116. Even after the decline in gold the market retained its strength, prices closing as follows:—United States currency sixes, 113¾ a 113⅞; do. do., 1881, registered, 115¾ a 116; do. do., coupon, 118⅛ a 118¼; do. five-twenties, registered, May and November, 116⅜ a 116⅝; do. do., 1862, coupon, do., 116⅜ a 116⅝; do. do., 1864, do. do., 116⅜ a 116⅝; do. do., 1865, do. do., 116¾ a 117; do. do., registered, January and July, 115¼ a 115½; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 115¼ a 115½; do. do., 1867, do. do., 115⅞ a 116⅛; do. do., 1868, do. do., 115⅜ a 115⅝; do. ten-forties, registered, 109⅜ a 109½; do. do., coupon, 113¼ a 113½; do. fives of 1881, registered, 112⅜ a 112⅞; do. do. do., coupon, 112⅜ a 112⅞.

GOLD WEAK—115⅜ a 115.

The gold market, after temporary firmness in the forenoon on the showing of the heavy imports of dry goods and a solitary quotation at 115⅜, became heavy in face of the many reputed "bull" influences, and declined to 115, the reaction being helped by a suspicion that the clique had sold heavily when Daniel Drew's broker bought the three millions yesterday, the downward tendency being stimulated by the gain of two millions of specie in the bank statement. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	115⅛	1:14 P. M.	115
10:15 A. M.	115⅜	2 P. M.	115⅛
11 A. M.	115⅛	2:35 P. M.	115
12 M.	115⅛	2:55 P. M.	115⅛
1 P. M.	115⅛	3 P. M.	115 a 115⅛

In the gold loan market the rates range from two per cent for carrying to flat for borrowing. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$45,552,000
Gold balances	2,560,925
Currency balances	3,059,121

The specie exports to-day amounted to $330,989, the total for the week being $582,175, mostly silver. The Sub-Treasury paid out $22,000 gold on account of interest and $42,000 in redemption of called bonds.

THE SPECIE MOVEMENT.

The total exports of specie from this port during the past week and since the beginning of the year have been as follows:—

Total for the week	$582,175
Previously reported	55,155,315
Total since January 1, 1872	$55,737,490
Same time 1871	52,877,862
Same time 1870	43,001,365
Same time 1869	24,686,519
Same time 1868	63,767,063

STOCKS DULL AND STEADY.

The stock market was in the main steady but dull, and very little was doing. Pacific Mail and Western Union were exceptionally weak, but had little influence upon the rest of the market and their decline attracted little attention. Northwest was heavy and fell off a fraction, but assumed more steadiness at the close. Erie in London advanced as if in sympathy with this market, which has been higher ½ a 1½ per cent the past few days. Ohio and Mississippi was strong on the better return of earnings for the month of July. The Chicago and Alton Railroad Company have declared a cash dividend of five per cent, payable September 2, the transfers closing August 20. In the Philadelphia market to-day Reading was quoted 57⅛ (115).

The Southern State bonds were quiet, dull and nominally steady.

We offer for sale a limited amount of the Leavenworth, Atchison and Northwestern Railroad Company's First Mortgage Seven Per Cent Bonds, interest guaranteed by the Pacific Railroad Company of Missouri.

The Bonds are due October 1, 1889; interest payable April 1 and October 1 at the National Bank of Commerce. Whole amount of the loan $500,000.

The road runs from Leavenworth to Atchison, Kansas, 21 155-1000 miles, and is leased to the Pacific Railroad of Missouri until December 31, 1889. By the terms of this lease the Leavenworth, Atchison and Northwestern Railroad receives 45 per cent of the gross earnings, but never less than $42,500 per annum. The Pacific Railroad of Missouri agrees to deposit the semi-annual interest on these bonds in the National Bank of Commerce.

The road has been in operation under this lease for the past two years.

We can, therefore, confidently recommend these Bonds as a first class security in every respect, and advise investment in them, as we are enabled to offer them at the low price of 85 and accrued interest.

BROOKLYN AFFAIRS.

The total amount of taxes paid during the past week was $66,822.

There were 495 persons arrested in Brooklyn during the past week.

John Van Hyde, a fisherman at Canarsie, was killed by lightning on Friday afternoon while out in his small boat.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Sarah Scribner, who resides at 161 Pearl street, was found dead in her bed. The Coroner was notified.

Lena Teis, a child aged four years, fell from a third story window of its parents' residence, 51 Humboldt street, Williamsburg, last evening and sustained fatal injuries.

Peter Dolan was held to answer by Justice Delmar yesterday for stabbing John Zanders,, one of the proprietors of the Tivoli Garden, 500 Atlantic avenue, on Friday night.

The Comptroller was informed yesterday that the amount required for the proposed increase of the police force to December 31, of the current year, will be $17,866 67. The Comptroller will issue certificates for the above amount.

William Graham, a coalheaver, was last evening run over and severely injured by a grocery wagon, driven by Michael McBennett. The accident occurred at North First and First streets, Williamsburg. The sufferer was cared for by the police.

Adam Hammer, a native of Germany, fifty-five years of age, accidentally fell through a hatchway in the Long Island Sugar Refinery, Williamsburg, yesterday, and was instantly killed. His remains were conveyed to his late residence, 64 Scholes street.

Yesterday Mayor Powell addressed a letter to the Rev. Mr. Clark, directing him to abandon his enterprise of getting up a lottery in Brooklyn for the erection of a new church. The Mayor says he is convinced the enterprise is not deserving of Brooklyn support.

A son of Mr. Philip Whackman, residing in Mauger street, near Morgan avenue, Williamsburg, was bitten by a dog two weeks ago, and during the last two days he has been exhibiting symptoms of hydrophobia. At a late hour last night his case was watched over with great anxiety.

The damage done by the heavy rains on Friday was not so extensive as was first supposed. The foundations of some new buildings in Gowanus were injured, and the cellars of many dwellings in some of the lower wards were filled with water, as the sewers were not large enough to carry it off. Some of the sidewalks in South Brooklyn were washed away.

The Kings County Veterans are organizing colonization societies for the purpose of repairing to the far West, there to locate the bounty lands voted to them by the last Congress. It is required by law that, in order to obtain the land warrant, actual settlement must be made by the claimant. An effort will be made next Winter to have this law modified, in order that veterans who have not the means whereon to subsist for twelve months on government tracts, remote from centres of civilization, may have it in their power to sell their land to others who can make it convenient to locate there.

During the past week the wills of the following named persons were admitted to probate in the Surrogate's Court:—Mary McPherson, of the town of New Lots; Francis G. Blanchard, Patrick McGovern, Charles Wood, Johann G. Mannhardt, Hannah Thompson, Hemieus M. Harms, Mary Ann Rucel, Benjamin Searls, Elizabeth C. Seaman, Margaret Brosman, John Malone, Emma C. Graeve, John Collins and William Jones, all of the city of Brooklyn. Letters of administration were granted on the estates of the following named deceased persons, viz.:—Hugh Humphrey, of the city of Philadelphia, Pa.; John Denton, of the town of Flatlands; Catharine Chase, Anna A. Feedhouse, William Parsons, Katharine King, Michael McLaughlin, Bridget O'Brien, John Alwill, Henry W. Barron, August Bomhard, James Carboy, James Devine, Thomas C. Moody, Frederick Hartner, James Walsh and Caroline Krimer, all of the city of Brooklyn. Letters of guardianship of the person and persons of Frederick King to Christopher Kiney, of Alfred V. Meserole and Abraham Meserole to Jeremiah V. Meserole, all of the city of Brooklyn.

THE SEVENTEENTH WARD MURDER.

The physicians at Bellevue Hospital did not make an inquiry into the mental condition of Mark Flanagan, who murdered his wife in East Seventeenth street a few days ago. As there appears to be some doubt of his insanity Coroner Keenan yesterday committed him to the Tombs, where the inquirendo lunatico will be held. The inquest will be held at the Coroners' office on Wednesday next.

HOW PILOTS BLACKMAIL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Knowing that your valuable paper has ever taken a lively interest in the shipping of the United States, I desire through your columns to bring to the knowledge of the public the outrageous conduct of the body of legalized blackmailers known as Hell Gate pilots toward our coasting vessels. The Legislature of the State of New York, against the protests of masters and owners of the vessels navigating Hell Gate, passed in 1871 an act allowing these pilots to levy half pilotage tax on vessels spoken which might not require the services of a pilot. This law, although extremely arbitrary in itself, considering that this is the age of steam and the facilities for procuring tug-power through the Gate are excellent, thus making pilot service there ordinarily unnecessary, does not appear sufficient to satisfy the rapacity of the pilots. They show a disposition to harass captains in the collection of this odious half-pilotage tax, and I, among others, have been victimized. Soon after my vessel arrived at the pier this forenoon one of the collectors of this "tax on commerce" came on board, claiming $18 for half pilotage, alleging that my vessel had been spoken while passing through the Gate last year. Supposing the statement to be correct (although not being myself on board my vessel when spoken, as alleged), I told the collector I would settle the bill to-morrow upon my getting my freight money, as then I would have the funds for doing so. Two hours afterwards, however, an officer was placed on board and I was forced to pay $73, the claim having been augmented by lawyer's fees to this amount. Now, Mr. Editor, I consider this outrageous treatment, especially as I did not decline to pay the tax. Nor is my case solitary. I am credibly informed that the same precipitous procedure is of daily occurrence and that the belief prevails among captain's that the object of these rapacious pilots in this summary mode of collection is that they share with their pettifogoing lawyer the additional spoils. To the terror we, captains feel lest our property or lives be taken by the river thieves this species of robbery is now added. Can you not suggest some relief?

JARVIS R. NICKERSON,
Master of schooner Z. L. Adams,

THE COURTS.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Selling Unstamped Cigars.

Before Commissioner Shields.

The United States vs. Emanuel Sanchez.—The defendant was held in $1,000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of having in his possession with intent to sell 4,400 cigars that were not stamped. While the case was proceeding before the Commissioner two health officers made their appearance in court, and created some astonishment by stating that the defendant had just escaped from a vessel in the harbor infected with yellow fever. The Commissioner closely questioned the defendant who informed him that he had been in the city over two months. The health officers then retired, apparently satisfied that they had been misinformed.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Decisions.

By Judge Barrett.

The People ex rel. Charles L. Thatcher et al. vs. Board of Apportionment.—The return irregular, but may be amended.

In the matter of the petition for habeas corpus of William Golding.—Writ dismissed and application to bail prisoner denied.

Fernandez vs. Gilpert et al.—Motion to vacate order of arrest granted, with $10 costs.

Hugh Kelly et al. vs. Louis J. Fury et al.—Order granted.

John . Dixon vs. Sarah A. Dixon.—The affidavit of service does not comply with the new rule.

G. E. Simmons vs. Benjamin Wood et al.—Motion denied without costs and with leave to renew, &c.

De la Montagnie vs. De la Montagnie.—Motion for new trial granted.

JEFFERSON MARKET POLICE COURT.

Smal Array of Prisoners and No Serious Offences—Two Ladies with Classic Cognomens—A Big Joke on a Tipsy Gentleman—He Goes to Get Out His Girl and Ges Locked Up.

Something remarkable occurred at Jefferson Market yesterday morning—the returns from the Twenty-eighth, Twenty-fifth and Ninth precincts were blank. There was a dearth of prisoners from the other precincts also. From the Twenty-ninth there were only two, one for intoxication and the other disorderly conduct; four from the Sixteenth, equally divided between drunkenness and disorderly conduct. From the Twentieth there were marched five prisoners, one for intoxication, one disorderly, one habitual intoxication and two for violating the Excise law by keeping their saloons open after one o'clock the previous night. They were promptly discharged by Justice Cox, who presided as committing magistrate. From the Eighth precinct there were six, five of whom were fallen women, and had been gathered off the sidewalks, drunk and quarrelling, the night before. They were all sent on the Island to rusticate and get the bad Eighth ward gin worked out of their systems. The sixth prisoner, named John W. Brown, of 163 Prince street, was charged by William Villien, of No. 506 Broome street, with grand larceny. He was locked up for examination. The Fifteenth precinct sent the largest return, numbering fifteen, six of whom were taken from a house of prostitution in Wooster street, kept by a Madelan Gerard. She was ordered to find bail in $500 for trial, and for the girls it was $10 fine or ten days on the rural suburb known as Blackwell's Island, a favorite summer resort for the young ladies of the demi-monde. The only serious charge was for false pretences, against two middle-aged females, with a decidedly suspicious air about them. One exulted in the classic and euphonious cognomen of Bridget McSwiggan, and the other gave her patronymic as Margaret McMallen. They were arrested by Officer Henry McCadden. They were remanded to the station house till the complainant would appear against them. The only incident to relieve the dull monotony of the day was the locking up of a tipsy individual who had asked for the discharge of an Eighth ward female footpad. He was given a commitment for himself for intoxication instead of a discharge for "his gal." Armed with this document, which he fondly believed would give liberty to his dulcinea he went down stairs to the prison offices and flaunted the parallelogram-shaped parchment in the face of Tom Smith, the keeper. Tom read it and told him to walk into the corridor, on each side of which are arranged the cells. In he walked, his heart bounding with joy at the prospect of an immediate salute from the idol of his noble heart, whom he expected to lead out to light and liberty on his arm like a bride to the altar. His surprise, indignation and disgust may be imagined when Mr. Smith closed the door behind him and called to the man who has charge of the cells to lock him up in cell No. 5. In he was rushed, and there he sweated for two hours. Being then comparatively sober, he was released. He was then accorded an interview with his lady love, who gave him the key of her room, at 56 West Houston street, and a $1 note to get himself a cocktail and a beefsteak.

THE BAILING OF JIM CUSICK.

Politicians Playing Their Little Game—Justice Cox Euchred.

Notwithstanding the strenuous exertions of Justice Cox, of Jefferson Market, the notorious maneater of the Eighth ward, Jim Cusick, is once again walking the streets. Pursuant to prior arrangement Assistant District Attorney Sullivan, Mike Norton, Justice Cox and a delegation of the friends of each met in an apartment of the District Attorney's office, at eleven o'clock, yesterday, and the subject of bailing Cusick was debated. A deadly feud exists between Norton and Cox, and as Cusick is identified with the Norton party the ex-Senator wished to have bail fixed in a reasonable amount. Cox opposed the fixing of bail and wanted the "man chewer" committed without, although he himself, when Cusick was brought before him, fixed the amount at $2,500, thinking, doubtless, that no person would risk that sum. Justice Cox went around to those he thought would likely be approached on the subject of bailing Cusick and endeavored to frighten them from it. At least so it is asserted. One of his own friends, however, named Jim Boyle, of the corner of Greene and Prince streets, he neglected to see, and it was this party who to-day entered into the required bonds in the sum of $5,000 on three indictments, after Cox had left the office.

It is stated that Alderman Robinson will not prosecute on the first indictment, as he says it has assumed the complexion of a political quarrel, and he objects to being a party to it. Cusick's case is set down for trial at the September term of the General Sessions Court.

While together in the office of the District Attorney Norton and Cox fiercely glared at each other, but no breach of the peace occurred. Justice Cox will probably feel mortified when he hears that one of his own followers, Boyle, bailed the protégé of his deadly enemy.

THE PAY ROLL DESTROYER.

Dougherty Arraigned and Committed for Malicious Mischief.

Several disappointed applicants for money from the city treasury, which was never due them, because it was never earned, lounged in their customary lazy attitudes on the benches at the Tombs Police Court yesterday morning, when the case of Joseph Dougherty was called. Justice Scott was on the bench. The charge against Dougherty was for malicious mischief in wilfully and wantonly tearing up a city pay roll at the Comptroller's office on Friday last, because when informed, after applying for the payment of his salary as inspector of pavements, that his name was not on the pay roll and he could not there be paid.

Mr. Henry M. Garvin, auditor of city accounts, of the Department of Finance, appeared as complainant and stated the facts as above set forth. Justice Scott heard the complaint and committed Dougherty to answer in default of $300 bail. Michael Daly, of 18 City Hall, quickly became his bondsman. Dougherty's manner while in Court bespoke utter defiance and a superlative contempt for the whole proceedings.

CORONERS' WORK YESTERDAY.

Coroner Keenan yesterday was notified to hold inquests on the body of James Fox, aged eight days, of No. 507 West Fourteenth street, who died on the 16th inst.; Mary McBride, of No. 41 Watts street, who was found dead in front of her residence yesterday morning; Peter Fasinger, aged seven years, of No. 198 Delancy street, in the basement, who died of scarlet fever; an unknown man, aged about twenty-five years, a German waiter, who died at No. 84 Greenwich street, and was employed in a Broad street restaurant; John Webber, eleven weeks old, of 625 East Eleventh street, who died on Friday of dysentery; and an unknown boy, who died at 423 East Ninth street, on the upper floor.

At six o'clock yesterday morning the stiff body of an unknown man was found in front of 25 Third avenue. Sergeant McGoven despatched officers with a stretcher and the remains were sent to the Morgue. The Sergeant gives the following description of the deceased:—Aged about thirty years, five feet eight inches in height, brown hair, eyes and mustache, dressed in drab coat and pants, blue and white striped shirt, brown felt hat, low calfskin shoes and stockingless. Officer Markey's attention was called to the deceased by two citizens, who observed him lying in the hallway. It is supposed that he died of heart disease.

ROUGH AND TUMBLE FIGHT IN A STATION HOUSE.

A Sergeant and a Policeman Pitch Into Each Other—Resignation of the Officer.

A few days, or rather nights, since an incident occurred at the Nineteenth precinct station house which has caused a good deal of comment in uptown police circles. For some time past it is understood that that there has been trouble between Sergeant Hamilton, recently promoted, and Officer Timothy Riordan, a strapping six-foot Irishman, a good-natured, impulsive fellow, as ready to take a blow as he is to give one. On Thursday night last Riordan reported for duty sometime after instead of at twelve o'clock. Sergeant Hamilton, who was at the desk, spoke to him in a manner not at all satisfactory to Riordan, who resented the language used. They came to blows, but who struck the first is not known, and a regular rough and tumble fight took place there and then. There was no one present at the moment but the doorman, who was of course powerless to interfere. Some of the men up stairs in bed were awakened by the noise and came rushing down, thinking that a mob had attacked the house or the prisoners had broken loose. The combatants were separated, and, strange to say, no marks had been left on the countenance of either. The following day Riordan went on duty as usual, but soon left his post, returned to the station house and sent in his resignation.

A Record of Brutal Murders, Rapine and Recklessness in Texas.

"DEATH TO THE YANKEES."

The Wily Guerilla Chief Seeks Pardon for the Murder of Eleven Americans.

ACTION OF THE TEXAN LEGISLATURE

How He Sought Revenge Against Portugal by Attempted Assassination.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, August 10, 1872.

The doughty Brigadier General Juan Nepomicono Cortina, Mexican Army, "Comandante de la Linea del Bravo," now resting on his bloody laurels, in the full enjoyment of his Texan brevet of "Chief of Thieves and Bandits," merits the attention of the American authorities. The encyclopedia of the Mexican government as to details of the frontier, states that his policy is dictated by one idea—"Let us have war, that we may steal." The "Tiger of the Bravo," now in suburban retreats, contemplates with satisfaction his faithful "aigles," peacefully enjoying the accumulations of many raids, and mayhap plans (within twenty miles) another swoop, in which the writer may be included. Non obstante, he shall not hide his light under a bushel. He was born in Texas, on the Rio Grande, in 1826, and now, at forty-six years of age, is the exponent of Mexican frontier policy. A respectable parentage was to him no advantage. Of roving habits, he soon made himself an accomplished horseman, and the trackless chapparal is to him an open book. Familiar with every nook on the frontier, his future career called largely on the topographical learning of his youth. To-day he is a man of five feet eight inches in height, dark hair and eyes, lighter in complexion than his countrymen in general, and when in citizen's clothes is a fair type of the better class of Mexicans, notwithstanding his personal ignorance, he having hardly learned enough to enable him to write his name. A rover and a never-do-well in youth, he was a "fandangero," or gay young buck. His riding and dancing, drinking and bravado, in nothing separate him from the "gilded" youth of that character to-day on the Rio Grande. Now a man of fairly temperate habits, he indulges only in the association of loose women, notwithstanding he has a wife and child. He is ignorant of the rules of war, skilled only in guerilla fighting, and has been disconcerted and whipped by a dash on his flank of one-sixth of his force.

CHARACTER.

Wily, avaricious, ambitious and naturally intelligent, he is singularly well suited to his bloody calling. A trimmer in politics, thoroughly conversant with the Mexican character, he has steered clear of the results which have overwhelmed more pretentious leaders. A good paymaster, a natural commander, quick and keen, master of the art of deception, he uses all men for his own purposes. A shield to criminals, he gathers around him desperate men. Brooking no rivalry, he has made away with several ambitious subordinates, and in the full consciousness that he holds the frontier in his hands he proclaims himself a "patriot" and appeals to public sentiment. The government cannot depose him and the robber chieftain of one idea—death to the Yankees—is the man for the place he holds, for no one could wrest it from him. His undoubted personal bravery is his great capital, and long experience has given him control over all of Mexican extraction whom he encounters. Exacting implicit obedience, he punishes infractions of his orders bitterly. Unreliable in pecuniary transactions, not to be trusted politically, a robber by habit, he cannot control himself in this respect, and the total disregard he entertains for human life is proved by wholesale murders, either the result of personal vindictiveness or a desire to overawe the rivals who may dream of future treachery.

COMMENCING WITH MURDER.

Driven from his home by crimes committed while a boy, at fifteen he took refuge on a lonely ranch with an old shepherd and his wife. These benefactors had a little hoard of money. The wolf they had succored murdered them both, robbing the ranch and enjoying the proceeds. From this start in life he began his dark career, threading alone or with some picked up companion the desert wilds of the Rio Grande. His work was then that of a simple thief and assassin, and his later deeds outshine these early achievements. Busy in iniquity, he amassed money, then spent it in various excesses. In the Mexican war he was an employé of the United States Quartermaster's Department, and acted doubtless as a shrewd camp-follower. The wholesome fear inspired by the American armies under Taylor and Scott was a check to border operations, and until 1859 the even tenor of his way was one of great rascality. Acquiring an ascendency over his kind, he obtained in 1859 a good outfit for wholesale business. It was thought that Americans would populate Western Texas rapidly. This not occurring, the brooding bandit, familiar with every foot of the Nueces valley, offered to lead a force over the river and drive the hated Sungos beyond the Nueces. The Mexican peasantry were elated at the thought of dividing the countless herds of cattle to be captured (claimed by Cortina as their rightful inheritance)

CAUSES OF THE RAID OF 1859.

The balance of trade was then with Texas. Brownsville flourished; $14,000,000 a year in value was entered at Brazos; the supplies were all bought on the Texan side. At all hazards it was determined to stop the trading. The infamous "Zona Libra" was devised not only to correct the inequality, but to tempt the cupidity of a largely Mexican population in Texas to smuggle. Our duties were then low and it did not pay. The golden moment for Cortina arrived. Well furnished with arms, artillery and money by the merchants of Matamoros, he determined on occupying the Texan frontier. Plunder was his object, and he returned to lay under fire and sword his birthplace. Easily recruiting his ranks, he was in the full tide of apparent success. The path to glory was open; should he reconquer Texas, should he be Colonel, General, Minister, President or Dictator? Faith in himself and long brooding had caused him to weave many a glittering day dream. His clear eye, looking forward, could see no halter—appropriate cordon of his noble order. On the 28th of September, 1859, he occupied Brownsville with a band of followers, many of whom were well known cutthroats (some now, happily, hung and gone to their reward);

MEN WERE MURDERED, ROBBERIES COMMITTED,

and he raised his robber flag. Major Heintzelman and Captain Stoneman, United States Army, moved to the assistance of the citizens. The gallant Colonel John S. Ford raised Texan troops to attack the intruder, who retired to his mother's rancho, eleven miles from Brownsville. From here he operated, murdering defenceless people, robbing the mails and plundering the country. Troops were concentrated, and about December 1, 1859, Heintzelman attacked him, driving him off, giving him a well merited beating. Secure in his line of retreat across the river, and little thinking the dashing Ford would follow him over, he moved up the Rio Grande Valley. He burned and robbed the ranches of the Turners, of Champion; Reist, Neale, Stillman, Rhodes and others. Fire and sword wrought a bloody work along the lonely prairies everywhere. Brutality and abuse were lavished on prisoners, flocks and herds disappeared, personal goods and valuables vanished and women were maltreated. In his march he occupied Ringgold Barracks and Rio Grande City. He seized the principal citizens here and announced with glee his grand entertainment—viz., hanging them and burning their city. By forced marches Heintzelman and Ford overtook them December 6 and beat the bandits, capturing cannons furnished from the Mexican arsenals and munitions furnished by the guilty merchants. The robbers—700 in number—were followed fifteen miles to Roma, where they broke and fled over the river. Many fell under Texan rifles while swimming. Aided by the Mexican government he recruited his ragamuffins and marched down from Camargo to a point called San Bolsa, fifty miles above Matamoros, on the Mexican side. Permanently encamping here he sent his detachments over the river. In constant communication with the authorities at Matamoros he learned of the intended voyage of the steamer Ranchero from Rio Grande City to Brownsville, bringing down citizens fleeing for their lives and a large amount of treasure. Women and children were huddled on the little boat. Langdon, of the First artillery, was to come on the boat. Tobin, with Texans, escorted her along the bank. In the early part of February, 1860, the steamer sailed. Ford, indefatigable and ready for a brush, moved out of Brownsville for the scene of the expected trouble. He scoured the chapparal, dislodging and punishing the lurking bandits. At Zacatecas Cortina, from the Mexican side, opened fire on his advance.

THE STEAMER APPEARING IN THE BEND

above was fired on, and Langdon showed his mettle (as on many later fields) in a gallant defence. The vessel ran past Cortina's line and was covered by Ford's camp. In the afternoon Ford in person crossed and beat the bandit badly, killing nearly thirty of his men. No half measures suited the out-and-out Ford; he consulted with Stoneman and decided to move down on the Mexican bank, Stoneman acting in concert on the Texan shore. It was done next day, and Ford ran into a heavy Mexican force at La Palma, Cortina on the left. An official parley ensued and on agreement Ford was allowed to move on in escort of the Ranchero; and finally assured that the regular Mexican troops would repress Cortina, he recrossed and moved with the boat to Brownsville. None of the stolen property was ever recovered. The Mexican authorities were cognizant of the war, assisted the bandit and only desisted attack when the American commanders had given them several sharp lessons.

ELEVEN MURDERS BY CORTINA.

Cameron county presented seventy-one indictments for murder and robbery against our hero, who was never punished. Outlawed by the State of Texas, he boasts he never signed the Guadalupe Hidalgo Treaty, and for some time laughed at his outlawry. In 1865 his toast at New Leredo was "Eternal hatred to all Americans." In this he is a popular exponent of Mexican feeling. This brutal and unprovoked war has never been avenged, and to-day the ruffian is in sight of the town he once sacked.

During the Confederate occupation of Texas he played fast and loose—selling artillery to the rebels and once attacking them to get a good drubbing. His military talents had now been proven and he was a leader among his kind. As a commander he shows tact, but does not handle men well in the open field. A change of front or a feint excites him, and his conduct on the field proved that he was no match in the field fighting or bushwacking for his determined adversary Ford. By plunder and nefarious traffic with the rebels he had made a fortune. He had £300,000 in the Bank of England, owned houses in various Mexican cities and four large ranches, Los Mayotes, La Camela, El Soldadito and the Burgos. These he well stocked with stolen cattle and horses still bearing their Texan brands.

THE AIGLES IN UNIFORM.

Quick to secure his personal safety he gathered together his thieves under the name of the "Aigles" (the Eagles), and uniformed them like the Devil's valet de chambre in a brass helmet, red breeches, blue coat and brown feet au naturel, or in sandals. These men he allowed liberty, and while retaining them in his pay fed them on stolen beef, and cleared expenses in selling the horses they stole to the Mexican government. On his lands, with their camp women in luxurious relaxation, his robbers passed happy days of ease; on the fertile plains grazed the wing ponies they ride; armed with Winchesters and Spencers, their chief to guide, the "Aigles" are to be greatly feared. The secret of their coherency is in good pay and rations, as well as the absence of red tape. They do not need the usual guard which watches marching Mexican troops, to prevent desertion. Chief and soldier (arcades ambo) have identical interests. A singular mode of recruiting is in vogue in this corps of latter-day free lances. The worthy general gives a grand "fandango." When music and mescal, señoritas and cigars have amused and excited the crowd a guard enters and selects all the young men of irregular pursuits and impresses them.

Desperate subordinate officers control the restless troopers, as Cortina always makes a point of saving any noted criminal of great dash or bravery, to give him a command. In this way and by opening the jails he has secured men whose principles change to suit the times.

DURING THE EMPIRE

the star of Cortina steadily rose. Changing from time to time, he enriched himself, watched his robbers' roost, was alternately republican and imperialist, and crowned his personal baseness by betraying the latter cause. For this personal trait he was promoted to be Brigadier-General of the regular Mexican army. Rich enough, he now coveted permanent command. Given regulars and his own "Aigles" with him, he was made "commandant of the line of the Bravo" (the Rio Grande). When General Treviño sent an agent to President Juarez, to discuss the present cattle troubles and to beg its discontinuance by prompt intervention, Juarez said, "I shall send a commander to the Rio Grande who has displayed his patriotism there years ago."

THE BLOODHOUND ON THE BORDER.

To the chagrin of every decent Mexican the appointment was made and the official sanction of the Mexican government given to the bloody past. Juarez was afraid of the occupation of Mexican territory to enforce the payment of bonds given by him, years before, to raise money for his own uses, and his only remedy was to follow discarded obligations with a national insult. In meeting United States officials Cortina never disguised his independence of the ordinary decent courtesies of life. Sent with despotic power to prevent raids, if he wished to, he set his bandits at work and enriched himself with the herds of the suffering Texan rancheros. The United States commander protested against this appointment, and the official documents were all forwarded with due representations as to the grave results to be looked for. No reply was deigned by the illiberal Indian, who remembered his unpaid bonds.

EFFORTS FOR HIS PARDON.

A conference of Americans with Cortina resulted in a proposal as to his pardon by the State of Texas. The wily robber offered to stop depredations if he was cleared of his count of indictments. He did hang one or two personal enemies, and the pardon was proposed in 1870 to the Governor of Texas. In this act he acknowledged the sovereignty of the State he has devastated. The Legislature declined to remove the blood stains from that armed band, and even before the refusal his emissaries were at their old work. Superior to the local civil authorities, he overawed Palacios, the Commandant of Matamoros, and no check has been placed on his thieving. Sending his soldiers to receive the cattle at the river, he has pocketed the money for the sale of hides and fed his armies on the beef.

INTERVIEW WITH COLONEL FORD.

A singular feature of his wily game as to his pardon was an invitation to Colonel Ford to visit him at his camp. He wished to use the influence of his old opponent, whom he knew to be generous. Ford's friends endeavord to dissuade him from a visit to a place where his life was not worth a pin head. The fearless ranger crossed the river and "interviewed" the bandit, whom he had beaten in three open fights. Cortina entertained his visitor, and used his influences in vain, the honest Texan telling him he would not move in the matter. Many friends who had sworn to revenge any injury to Ford breathed easier when his good gray head was seen safe on the Texan side again. Cortina is to-day in the quiet enjoyment of his dignity, and it remains for the United States government to either force Mexico to remove him or to foot the long account of years. It is idle to talk of quiet on the Rio Grande while this man, all powerful, looks at his long record of insults and indignities offered America, and smiles at the thought of his high official position sheltering him.

PERSONAL INCIDENTS.

Cortina's undoubted bravery is exemplified by his conduct when on one occasion an émeute occurred in his camp. An aid had brought money to pay his troops. A conspiracy was formed by forty of his thieves to kill him and steal the money from his marquee. They opened fire on him, and in a desperate melée he killed four of the offenders with his own hand, sending an officer known as Caballo Blanco in pursuit of the remainder, who were all killed in a summary vengeance. Illustrative of the Rio Grande border life is the

CAREER OF "PORTUGAL," THE BANDIT,

Cortina's deadly enemy—a man once Chief of Police at Matamoros. This man, thirty-five years of age, a superb horseman and unequalled pistol shot, is devoid of fear. He was during his administration desirous of sending back stolen cattle and rendering up to Texas the outlaws. On several occasions, unaided, he pursued and killed or brought in the offenders. On one occasion Juan Porres, a Mexican in the employ of two Americans, who were driving cattle to San Antonio, Texas, from Brownsville, attacked his employers while asleep, killing one and grievously wounding another. He robbed them and fled to Matamoros. A Texan sheriff was sent to Matamoros. Portugal offered his assistance in the capture of this offender, pursued him, and in single combat wounded him. The man was brought before Cortina and released. Seeing that Portugal was not overawed by his influence, Cortina sent for him and ordered him to apprehend a certain Lupo, expecting that the latter would kill the friend of the Americans. It was otherwise decreed, for the man was captured by Portugal and brought in; Cortina, seeing that fate was against him, freed Lupo. Portugal evinced his friendship for Americans in a defence of Mr. Robert Nelson's store at Matamoros, killing a desperate robber.

PLAN TO ASSASSINATE PORTUGAL.

Cortina was determined to free himself of a man so dangerous to his stealing schemes. Sending for Portugal he deposed him from his office, and ordered him to report at the police station at a certain time for an interview. Secret orders were given for the killing of Portugal, who, however, suspected the ruse, and rode up on horseback. The new chief of police treacherously fired on the late incumbent, but was instantly killed by a return shot. Troops were at hand. Portugal rode across the square, defied Cortina in a loud voice to appear, and waited. Attacked by a policeman, he shot him and escaped to Brownsville. A demand was made for him, but the United States District Court ruled that he could not be given up to a private vengeance. Desperate and burning for vengeance, Portugal went back to the Mexican side, and has waged a war against Cortina's command, riding once in a magnificent fit of recklessness before a regiment and defying capture. In the dead of night he has charged the camp, and his vengeance is deadly.

In a community harassed with revolution, filled with men of the above grade, Cortina in high power, what remains to prevent a wholesale raiding on the Texans? "Hatred to the Gringo" is the watchword. The foregoing incomplete sketch of the chosen envoy of the Republic of Mexico shows how much interest has been taken in the preservation of peace on the border.

Shall this continue? Shall Texas be devastated? Must the robber flaunt his flag always in the eyes of people who have paid him a fearful toll in days gone by? We shall see.

UTICA PARK RACES.

Last Day of the Trotting Association Meeting—Johnson's Jennie Carries Off the First Prize in 2:26—Judge Fullerton Wins the Second Race in 2:24 3-4—American Girl Everything in the $5,000 Trial for All Horses.

UTICA, N. Y., August 17, 1872.

This was the final day of the meeting. The day was very fine, the track in fair condition and the attendance the largest of the week, filling the stands and the grounds.

FIRST RACE.

This was a postponed one from Thursday, and was for horses of the 2:30 class. The entries were Mace's Plato, Lovett's Gazelle, Kremer's Dennis, Shumway's Strideaway, Ferguson's J. K. Polk, Wilson's Ella Wilson, Green's Lucille, Gold Dust, Ranscoter's Kilburn Jim, Johnson's Jennie.

First Heat.—At the send-off Kilburn Jim was first away, with Strideaway next, Lucille third and Gazelle fourth. In this order they made the turn, Kilburn drawing away from his horse and leading four lengths at the quarter-pole in thirty-five seconds, Strideaway still second, a length from Lucille, who led Gazelle four length in hand. Kilburn went on and the rest in the same order to the half-mile pole, where Kilburn was away by three to four lengths, doing the half mile in 1:10½. On the turn Gazelle brushed past Lucille, but could not hold her fourth, and all passed the three-quarter pole as before. Kilburn just went on as he pleased, and led home three lengths first, Strideaway second, four lengths from Lucille, third, and Gazelle four lengths away from her. Jennie did not go for the heat. Time, 2:26.

Second Heat.—Betting now 10 on Kilburn to 16 on the field. The get-off gave Jennie the lead Strideaway second, Kilburn third. On the turn Jennie, leading, broke badly and fell to last place This pace sent Kilburn to front, and he headed at the quarter pole, in thirty-five seconds, by a length of Gazelle. Kilburn and Gazelle lapped all down the stretch to the half-mile pole in 1:10. On a lap they, nearly head and head, made the turn and still yoked. She made the head of the homestretch around the turn. Jennie having got at work drew and got third place. A rally between Kilburn, Gazelle and Jennie sent them home in 2:26½, Kilburn first by a length, Gazelle second, lapped out by Jennie, who made a grand race from the quarter pole.

Third Heat.—Betting 3 to 1 on Kilburn against the field. The send-off put Gazelle in the front, with Kilburn second, Jennie last. A rush carried them in this order to the quarter in thirty-five seconds, where Gazelle led two lengths from Kilburn and he three lengths from Strideaway. Kilburn got gradually up as they went to the stretch, and was at Gazelle's wheel at the half-mile pole in 1:10. Here the race was so strong that it drove Kilburn off his feet, and he fell away along the stretch. Jennie had made a rush and had worked up to the leaders. Getting into the turn she passed Kilburn, still on a break, and at once caught Gazelle, and, striding with her a few rods, fronted and led around the turn lapped with Gazelle. The brush on to the stretch ended, Gazelle and Jennie drew away, and gradually dropped all till she landed first by three lengths in 2:23½, Gazelle next, ten lengths from Strideaway, and he six lengths from Kilburn.

Fourth Heat.—The betting was now at 100 to 30 on Jennie. At the go-off Jennie led, Gazelle second, but on the turn she broke badly and dropped to last place, Gazelle went to the fore and had Kilburn next, she making the quarter pole first by two lengths in 35½. This fronting she held on to the half, in 1:11, with Kilburn second, three lengths away from Strideaway. Jennie got to herself soon, but was a dozen lengths back at the quarter. She drew up steadily and got to Strideaway on the first of the turn, cut him down and at the first of the homestretch got to Kilburn and shot past him. Coming on sweepingly she caught Gazelle ten rods from home, lapped and passed her in a trice, and went home first by two lengths. Time, 2:23¾.

Fifth Heat.—Jennie the favorite at any odds. She took the lead at the start, and was lapped at the quarter by Kilburn in 36, but drew away from him and opening the distance, made the half in 1:12, went on alone, and was first home in 2:24¾. Strideway on the far turn fell and was distanced; she was not seriously hurt.

SUMMARY.

UTICA PARK, August 16, 1872.—Purse $6,000; $3,000 to the first horse, $1,500 to the second, $900 to the third, and $600 to the fourth; for 2:30 horses.

SECOND RACE.

This was in the class of 225 horses. The following were the entries:—Champlin's North Star, Mambrino, Lovett's Lula, Harrison's Susie, Roden's George, Roden's Triumph, Brown's Derby, formerly Dutchman; Mace's Judge Fullerton, Doble's Rosalind. Of these only Fullerton, Lula and Derby came to the start.

First Heat.—Fullerton was the favorite at 100 to 15 on the field. After an hour spent in scoring they were sent away; Lula ten lengths in front. On the turn Fullerton left his feet and went wild for a dozen rods; Lula, making hot pace, led Derby ten lengths at the quarter pole in 33, and Derby Fullerton by as much. Mace, behind Fullerton, seeing his position, took it easy and did not go for the heat. Lula went along to the half-mile pole in 1:07, leading there fully fifteen lengths, and going at a good gait. There was no change all along to the stretch, where Fullerton increased his pace somewhat and drew to Lula, but not near, and Lula jogged home ten lengths first in 2:24¾. Fullerton second, passing Derby near the stand as Derby pulled up.

Second Heat.—Betting still in Fullerton's favor at 3 to 1 against the field. There was great delay in scoring, and the spectators got furious at Green driving Lula. There were sixteen scorings before an off-go. Lula had the lead, Derby second. She broke at once, and Fullerton went to the lead, and heading, passed the quarter pole in 37¼, three lengths first. He entered on the stretch at moderate pace. Lula getting settled commenced a brush and going up rapidly caught Fullerton easily in the stretch, and getting to his head lay lapped with him all down the stretch to near the half-mile pole, when the pace carried her to a break and left Fullerton to go alone past the half-mile pole in 1:14½, leading quite four lengths. Derby now went second and Lula was galloping and wild and kept so till she was out of her distance, when Green sent her to a run to get in. Fullerton went along at pleasure. First at the homestretch by six lengths; in the stretch he eased off and Derby got nearer, but Fullerton jogged home first by a length in 2:24¾. Lula just in her distance got there by running. The judges distanced Lula for running, and the crowd cheered at the justice of the judges.

Third Heat.—Betting done. Fullerton had it all his own way and allowing Derby to lie with him nearly all the way, and was home at ease first by a length and a half. Time, 2:31.

Fourth Heat.—No betting. This heat was a mere repetition. Time, 2:31.

SUMMARY.

SAME DAY.—Purse $5,000; $2,500 for the first horse, $1,250 for the second, $750 for the third and $500 for the fourth, for horses of the 2:25 class.

THE $5,000 UNLIMITED TIME TRIAL.

This was the race on which great expectations were entertained, but they were not realized. It was for all horses, time unlimited. The entries were, Mace's American Girl, Roden's Henry, Mace's George Palmer, Green's Lucille Golddust. Henry being a miss did not show up, and Lucille was drawn, having gone in the first race.

First Heat.—The betting was at 100 to 13 and 15 on the Girl. They were sent off with Palmer in the lead, but on the turn he gave it up and they at easy pace made the quarter, lapped and were lapped to the half mile pole; leaving it Palmer broke and the Girl dropped him three lengths and went along at 2:30 gait thence home, Palmer breaking again on the stretch, and she going in first by five lengths at her ease; time 2:24. The crowd were disappointed, of course, and expressed it loudly.

Second Heat.—It was without interest. The Girl led all the way, and Palmer broke a dozen times and was beaten out six lengths in 2:22¼.

Third Heat.—The throng were impatient for better time, and so the pair were sent for it; but the Girl now did a deal of running, as well as Palmer, and the heat was trotted in 2:19, she leading all through. The crowd was then satisfied and cheered lustily.

SUMMARY.

SAME DAY.—Purse $5,000, for all horses; $2,500 to the first, $1,250 to the second, $750 to the third, $500 to the fourth.

Shipping Notes.

The Union Ferry Company's boats continue to occupy the balance dock foot of Pike street, and during the past week the Peconic, Manhassett and Clinton have undergone their annual repairs.

Steamship George Cromwell, 979 tons, of Cromwell's New Orleans line, was lowered from the large sectional dock foot of Rutgers street on Friday, after repairs to her keel.

Steamship Montgomery, 876 tons, of the Savannah line, followed, to take out her shaft. She was lowered yesterday.

Bark A Sandberg (Nor), was lowered from the sectional dock foot of Clinton street on Thursday, after patching metal, and her place is now occupied by bark Lady Bowen (Br), 896 tons, for examination.

On the small sectional dock foot of Rutgers street have been bark Adelaide Pendergast (Br), 272 tons, to patch metal, and brig Myronus, 381 tons, of Ellsworth, Me, for the same purpose.

Ferryboat Northfield, of the Staten Island line, previously reported, was lowered from the mammoth sectional dock at Hoboken on Thursday, after metalling, and the Narragansett Steamship Company's steamer Bristol immediately followed her, to repair slight damages to stem caused by her recent collision. She was floated off on Friday morning, and at once took her place again in the line.

The following have been on the screw docks at the foot of Market street:—On the large dock yacht Josephine, to clean bottom, and bark Athole (Br), 305 tons, to strip, calk and do other repairs. On the central dock yacht Irene, to clean bottom; schrs A A Holton, and S C Noyes, to paint, and propeller Blue Bonnet, to fasten wheel. On the small screw dock pilot boats G W Blunt and Christian Bergh, to clean and paint.

Steamer Newport remains in one of the large Erie Basin dry docks, rebuilding, and the other is occupied by ship Nereus, 1068 tons, to patch metal.

Since our last report Messrs O'Connell & Co's Erie Basin sectional dock has raised railway floats Glen and Mohawk (500 tons each), for calking and painting; schrs Chief and Guy R Phelps, for calking and painting; bark Karl Du Gros (NG), 300 tons, for examination and painting; propeller Blanche Paige, and three barges, all for painting.

Messrs Sherran & Palmer have had on their dock at the foot of Gouverneur street the past week the schr Alaska, calked and painted; four scows belonging to Mr Frank Pidgeon, the contractor; the tugboats John Cooker, Dan Brown and E R Cheney, the latter having been rebuilt from the floor up, widened four feet on the deck and joiner work entirely renewed.

The Philadelphia North American, speaking of the new steamship Pennsylvania, launched at that port on Thursday, says an iron steamship of American material and American workmanship throughout is afloat on the Delaware, and three more will be by her side in the ensuing four months. The contracts were made Aug 3, 1871, for four ships of 3016 tons each, old measurement, to be 355 feet long and 43 feet beam; to carry 75 first class and 854 steerage passengers, at a gross cost of $2,080,000. The Pennsylvania was to be completed Sept 1, the Ohio Nov 1, the Indiana the 1st of December, and the Illinois the 1st of January, 1873. All of the ships are alike, and there were only a few thousand dollars of capital not subscribed when the contract was made.

Marine Disasters.

STEAMER JUNIATA, Catherine, from Philadelphia, while swinging in the river at Savannah 13th, collided with schr Susan B Franklin. The steamer had a considerable portion of her rail carried away aft. The schr had one of her davits carried away.

SHIP GOLD HUNTER, from Philadelphia for San Francisco, was ashore near Greenwich Point 16th, but would probably come off at high water. She was driven on during the blow night of 15th.

BARK EUGENIE (Br), Goudy, from Brunswick, Ga, for Montevideo, put into Yarmouth, NS, Aug 14, leaky and with part of the crew sick; will repair and proceed in a few days.

BARK ASPHODEL, Gardner, from Savannah for Montevideo, which put back Aug 11, leaky, was lying alongside the wharf on the opposite side of the river 13th, where she will discharge her lumber preparatory to going into the dry dock for repairs.

BARK EMILIA (Rus), for Belfast, hauled out into the stream at Philadelphia on Thursday, and during the blow same night went on the bar below Windmill Island, where she remained next day.

SCHR ANN ELIZA (of Frankfort), Clark, from New York, with 5,400 bushels of corn, had just come into Newburyport harbor and anchored off Black Rocks in the storm of Tuesday, when the lightning struck her mainmast, shivering it. Capt Clark, who was standing by near the mast, was stunned for a moment, and one man forward was knocked down. The Ann Eliza is to have a new mainmast put in before leaving port. It is now being made.

SCHR EDWARD LINDSLEY, Hill, from Elizabethport for New London, with a cargo of coal, anchored at the mouth of New Haven harbor on Friday evening. On Saturday morning, the wind blowing fresh and there being a heavy sea, the vessel sprung a leak, filling rapidly. The captain attempted to run her ashore, but before he could do so she filled and sank in about twelve feet of water.

SCHR KATE ROBINSON, from Brashear City, La, ashore near Fire Island, it is reported will be a total loss.

Miscellaneous.

Purser C F Burke, of the steamship Virgo, from Savannah, has our thanks for favors.

The purser of the steamship South Carolina, from Charleston, has our thanks for favors.

SCHR YANKEE BOY, of New Haven, has been thoroughly overhauled and rebuilt, at an expense of about $8000. She will be put into the coal trade.

Notice to Mariners.

SOUTH AMERICA—WEST COAST OF BOLIVIA.

Port Antifogasta, hitherto unknown, but now used as a place of export for nitrate, as also silver ore from the Bolivian mines, and therefore likely to become of some importance, lies between Mount Moreno and Jara Head, about 3½ miles to the southward of Chimba Bay, its approximate position being in lat 23 36 S, lon 70 27 W.

Antifogasta should be approached with caution, on account of the detached rocks off this port, on one of which the Pacific Steam Navigation Co's steamer Payta struck in 1872.

Captain Hammill, of the Pacific Steam Navigation Co's vessel Lusitania, remarks that there is anchorage for large vessels about 1½ miles from the mole of this port, while small vessels may anchor and load to 18 feet within a creek entered by a contracted passage. Three vessels were loading in this creek at the time of the Lusitania's visit.

This notice affects British Admiralty Charts Nos 1277 and 1323; US Hydrographic Office chart No 23.

BALTIC SEA—FEMERN BELT.

Discovery of a bank near Marien Light:—

In resurveying the western part of the Baltic Sea a bank has been discovered with but 10 feet of water over it, southeast of the Marien Lighthouse (Femern Island), at about one-half of a mile distant from the latter. It is of a small circumference, hard bottom (stones and sand), and has been marked preliminarily by a small buoy with a flag.

Approximate position, lat 54 29 34 N, lon 11 15 50 E of Greenwich.

(Hydrographic Office of the Imperial Admiralty at Berlin.)

This notice affects British Admiralty charts Nos 2262, 2150, 2364, 2842 a, and the US Hydrographic Office chart No 299.

By order of the Bureau of Navigation,
R H WYMAN, Captain USN, Hydrographer.
Hydrographic Office, Washington, DC, Aug 1, 1872.
